TO THE POSTERITY OF JOHN UPHAM.

This genealogy has as its foundation the little book published in 1845 by Dr. Albert G. Upham, entitled "Notices of John Upham and his Descendants;" and an incomplete, but very important Upham genealogy, showing many of the earlier generations in New England, collected by the well-known genealogist Thomas B. Wyman, a portion of which was printed in the New England Genealogical and Historic Register, vol. 25, to which he had added notes as matter came to his knowledge, prior to his death some years ago. No attempt has been made to give particular credit to either of these pioneers in Upham genealogy for the reason that the entire work of each—omitting errors which have since been discovered—has been transferred to the pages of this book. Without the foundation afforded by the pains-taking labors of Dr. Upham and Mr. Wyman, this genealogy could not have been prepared.

I wish also to acknowledge that without the continued assistance and encouragement given me in collecting material, by Mr. Henry P. Upham of St. Paul, Minn., and the Rev. Dr. James Upham of Chelsea, Mass., my labor would have ceased, and the present end would not have been accomplished. So valuable has been the aid received from these gentlemen, I feel that while my name alone appears on the title page, they should share in any credit that may be thought to be due on account of its preparation. The numerous others who have so kindly furnished records of particular branches, it is hoped, may find compensation with the re-appearance of their work in the pages which follow, and which are the result of a more or less connected effort, extending over the past seventeen years.

While care has been taken with a view to accuracy, the work goes to the publisher with a fore-knowledge that numerous errors must be discovered with the appearance of the book. My hope is, that among the Uphams who will follow so rapidly in the march of the generations, there may be some one who will be sufficiently interested to revise and correct it, and that a more complete genealogy of the posterity may be thus finally obtained.

It may seem remarkable that so many, apparently unimportant and almost trivial facts, matters and incidents have been recorded with the personal notices of individuals. It is believed, however, that these are of more significance than they will, at first thought, seem, inasmuch as the actions, habits of life, movements and expressions of individuals disclose indications of character, and from the knowledge of the character of an ancestor much that influences one's heredity may be deduced. Probably from a mistaken sense of the fitness of things, and modesty, many are prone to withhold information of this nature concerning themselves or their immediate ancestors — possibly with some feeling that they are too obscure to be of interest; and this kind of information has been exceedingly hard to obtain. They do not consider the possible interest with which every thing pertaining to their own lives and times may be regarded by their descendants. More of this information would leave less ground for the frequent comment that genealogy is "only a string of names and dates."

The Uphams have not as a rule been conspicuous people in the generations which have gone, yet some have risen to eminence, and all seem to have been respectable members of the communities in which they lived. The life and conditions of the generations before the Revolution were identical with that of nearly all New England families of that period in the history of this country.

"Let not Ambition mock their useful toil, Their homely joys and destiny obscure."

It was the preparation of a sturdy race for better (?) things, and the indications are that those who now represent it, and are coming, have not been, and will not be found unprepared to meet the new conditions.

Our common ancestor, John Upham, was evidently a strong man in his day and generation, and we have reason to believe that the qualities which he transmitted were good. It is now more than two hundred and ten years since he died, and the simple stone erected at that time still marks the spot where he was buried, the letters worn with age and the weather of over two centuries. His descendants are numerous, and generally prosperous. Will not some of these initiate a movement toward the erection of a suitable monument to his memory, and secure the ground before it is yet too late?

Yours very truly,

J. K. Upham.

OCTOBER, 1891.

UP-HAM,* OR, THE HOME ON THE HILL.

These verses, speculating on the origin of the name of Upham, were composed, and set to music, by Judge Nathaniel G. Upham, of Concord, New Hampshire (No. 287):

U p high, on an oak-crowned hill
P repared with sedulous care,
H is home, in the olden time,
A n old man erected there.
M any a year have I known his name,
E ach passer-by calls it Up-hame, Up-hame!

Up-hame, Up-ham! Up-hame, Up-home!
However you call it, wherever you roam,
The sons of the old man, remember it still,
The name, how it came, from the home on the hill.
Up-hame, Up-ham! Up-hame, Up-home!
They'll never forget it, wherever they roam.

*Upham is composed of the Anglo-Saxon words, "Up" and "ham," signifying a home, dwelling, or village.—Bosworth's Dictionary of the Anglo-Saxon Language, Ray's Proverbs and Obsolete Words. In the age of Elizabeth the name was written with a final e, soon afterward this letter was dropped, and the name assumed its original form.—(N. G. U.)

THE NAME IN ENGLAND.

Very little of value has yet been learned concerning this interesting matter, though it is believed there is considerable which might be. Dr. Upham — in the “Notices” — said:

“During a brief sojourn in England, in 1844, I became satisfied that, with sufficient leisure for the purpose, much information might be obtained in relation to this point, especially by examining the documents deposited in the Prerogative Office. But an absence of nearly two years on the continent rendered it necessary for me to curtail my visit to that country, and thus prevented me from instituting the requisite inquiries.”

The following notes in this connection are, however, contained in the pages of this book: “There is a period, comparatively late in history, previous to which it would be futile to seek for the origin of the surnames of Saxon or Norman families. Du Chesne observes, that ‘surnames were unknown in France before 987, when the lords began to assume the names of their demesnes.’ Camden relates, ‘that they were first taken up in England a little before the Norman conquest, under King Edward the Confessor’ (1060); but, he adds, ‘they were never fully established among the common people till the time of Edward II.’ (1307 to 1377).”

“The first mention of Upham as a surname, which I have found, occurs early in this period. It is met with in a deed of lands to the church of Saint Maria de Bradenstock, which, according to Camden, was a small monastery in Wilts, founded by Walter, son of Edmond of Salisbury; and we are informed by the Index, that Bradenstock is in the hundred of Kinwarston, lat. $51^{\circ} 23'$; long. $1^{\circ} 39' W$. It is recorded in the Rotuli Chartarum, in Turr. Lond., vol. I, part I, fol. 170, An. 9, John, 1208. ‘The Charter Rolls are the contemporaneous registers of royal grants of lands, honors, dignities, hereditary offices, liberties, and other estates of inheritance to the nobility and commonalty, and of lands, liberties, privileges, immunities, and other estates in mortmain to ecclesiastical, eleemosynary and lay corporations.' This reads as follows: 'ex d. Hug.' de Uphā ij acr' tre' ī campis de Uphā.' (The mark — when used by the abbreviators of these chronicles, always indicates the omission of an m or n.) This document bears the date of 1208. The perusal of the sentence, by gift of Hugo de Upham ij acres of land in the campis de Upham (the Upham fields, or estate), impresses us with a distinct idea that the name and family of the grantor were of some antiquity, and justify the supposition that Hugo, or his father, might have held the lands Upham, and have borne the surname de Upham, for at least sixty or seventy years — the common life-time of man. In this case the surname is shown to have existed within about eighty years of the extreme date assigned by Camden as the period when the English nobles began gradually to assume family names, from their estates; at the same time it is shown to exist on record near two hundred years before the time these names became common. The conclusions, from these facts, in relation to Hugo de Upham and his family, are too evident to be noticed.

"Forty or fifty years subsequent to the date of this entry on the charter rolls, we find from the Hundred Rolls, Temp. Henry III. and Edward I., vol. 2, p. 240 (these rolls contain inquisitions taken in pursuance to a special commission, issued under the Great Seal. This inquisition was taken by jurors chosen from each hundred, and consisted of returns made under oath of all the demesne lands of the crown, manors of the same, wardships, marriages, escheats, etc.), that another person, holding the office of juror in Selkley Hundred, bore this surname: 'Hundr' de Selkel' Nich' de Upham jur' Com' Wyltes, Ano. 39, Hen. III.,' [1255]. Soon afterward we find in the Fine Rolls (in Turr. Londenensis asservatis Henrico Tertio Rege., vol. 2, pp. 375-1246-1272. Memb. 9. Henry III., A. D. 1262, commenced in the sixth year of King John, 1204, and finished under Edward IV., 1483.

The rolls comprise a great variety of matter relating to deaths, succession of heirs, descent, division of property, custody of lands, and heirs during minority, liveries, marriages of heiresses and widows, assignments of dower, for forfeitures and pardons, aids and tallages, affairs of Jews, etc.), notice of several persons who bore the same name: 'Wilts. Hugo de Doveral, t, Letitia ux. ej. Alic. de. Upham. Joh'a, t, Agnes fil. Hug. de Upham dāt dimid. marc. p. una as. Cap. coram. m. de Littlebir,' (that is, Hugo de Doveral—et Letitia uxor ejus, Alicia de Upham, Johanna, et Agnesia, filiæ Hugonis de Upham, dant dimidum marc. por una assisa. capta coram. M. de Littlebir Wilts). The date this entry bears is 1262. Before leaving this part of our subject, we may remark that as Hugo de Upham, of Kinwarston Hundred, Hugo, the father of Joanna and Alice, and Nicholas, the juror of Selkley, were all of the same county (Wilts); and that Kinwarston and Selkley Hundreds were contiguous, it is highly probable that all these persons were nearly related. The name still exists in Selkley Hundred as a local name (viz. the tithings of Upper and Lower Upham), in the parish of Aldbourne.

"We have shown, then, by the evidence of the records, that Upham was a surname already in 1208; and we have expressed the opinion that the same record would, by implication, refer this use of the word to a period prior at least to 1140. The latter date brings us very near to the time when the surname, if of Saxon origin, must have been first assumed. Arrived at this point, the mind naturally seeks for the reasons that induced the bearer to take this particular name as a family designation. In general, at the period when family names first began to be used, they were derived either from the profession, or some personal peculiarities of the individuals bearing them, or from his place of residence, or landed estates. In the latter case it was invariably indicated by the use of either the Latin or English particles de, or of, as Philip de Bourbon, John of Lancaster, etc. We shall endeavor to show that the latter was the fact with regard to the surname Upham; that it was first given to the family of that name, because they were possessors of land, so called.

“Hugo, the first of this name of whom I have found any notice, is designated Hugo de Upham, Hugo of Upham. Now the ‘de’ not only indicates that he derived his name from his estate, but the lands belonging to him are expressly referred to in the same document, as bearing the name Upham: ‘Campis de Upham’ (Upham fields). We conclude, then, that Hugo, and his ancestors holding possession of and residing on the lands known by the name Upham, received the names of Hugo, etc., de Upham. This is also confirmed by the fact, that Upham, as the name of a place, occurs in records previous to the introduction of surnames.

“We have then, in a more or less satisfactory manner, indicated the time and cause of the assumption of this surname. We shall now merely allude to the fact that the ‘de’ was omitted at an early period, and the name received its present form. This change took place previous to 1445, as appears from its form in the following extract from the inquisitions, ‘ad quod Damnum.’ (Calendarum Rotularum Chartarum et inquisitionum ad quod Damnum, A. 19-23, Henry VI., No. 93, p. 385. The inquisitions ad quod Damnum were commenced in the first year of the reign of Edward II., 1307, and ended in the 38th of Henry VI., 1460. They were taken by virtue of writs directed to the escheator of each county, when any grant of a market, fair, or other privileges, or license of alienation of lands was solicited, to inquire by a jury whether such grant of alienation was prejudicial to the king or others, in case same should be made.) ‘Inquisitio capta apud Watlington in com’ Oxen tertio die Aprilis anno, etc., vicesimo tertio coram magro Rico’ Lowe, at aliis commissionaris dui. Regis. ad enquirend, de omnibus illis bonis at catalis Elizabethæ que fuit uxor Reginald Barantyn quam Joh’es Upham nuper duxit in ux’em et ad manus Joh’es Tycheborn ut diceter devenerunt,’ etc. In this case the name is written simply, John Upham.”

“John Upham”—of New England —“and Lieut. Phineas, his son added without doubt the final e to their names, in accordance with the custom of the age of Elizabeth, of giving this termination to many words. This letter was subsequently dropped and the name assumed the original form.”

"We now turn to consider the origin of the name Upham as a local designation. We find it used to indicate a place as early as the time of King Edward the Confessor (1041 to 1061), in the following passage from Domesday Book (vol. 2, p. 36): 'Vpham tenvit Edeva queda feminā t'. r'. p. dim. hid. 7. XXX. acr. mo. terr. Will. de Warrenna in dnio. val. X. sol.' This we suppose to mean that a certain woman Edeva, in the reign of King Edward the Confessor (t'. r'. e'. tempora regis Edwardi), held 'in d'nio' the place called Vpham, it being seven half hides and thirty acres in extent, and lying in the manor of Will. de Warrenna. Val. x. sol.

"This passage is thus referred to in the index to the same:

'Locus Noia.	Possession Genera.	Comitatus.

Upham.	Terr. in d'nio.	Excessa.
Hundred.	Possessor Noia.
Berdestapla.	Will de Warrenna.

"This tract of land held by Edeva, under the Confessor, bore, undoubtedly at that time, as well as at the period when the Domesday Book was made, the name Upham. This places the origin of the name previous to the battle of Hastings, thereby precluding the probability of a Norman origin, and compelling us to confine our investigations to the Anglo-Saxon.

"In deciding upon the antiquity of this word, we must first ascertain if it be a compound or a primitive word. It might be formed by uniting the Anglo-Saxon words: 'Up, an adjective, signifying exalted, high, elatus,' and 'Ham in the names of places denoting a home, dwelling, village.'—Bosworth's Dictionary of the Anglo-Saxon Lang.; Ray's Proverbs and Obsolete Words. Lond. 1768, p. 125. Analogy favors this theory of the origin of the word Upham, for many names of towns, having such a termination, are evidently compounds in 'ham.'

"Our own opinion, however, founded on reasons now to be adduced, is, that the word Upham is primitive, as old as the language itself, and perhaps of Celtic, or even earlier origin. 1. Because it is used in the earliest records, to designate an extensive tract of land; a word the type of which existed in the language, and when applied to land would express an inherent quality. This word is 'Upha, Above, Super., Lye.'—Bosworth's Dict., A. S. Lang. We regret to say that we have no means of ascertaining the date when this word was in use, as no authority is given. Indeed, the author of the Anglo-Saxon Dictionary observes, concerning the authority for words: 'Some words are from Somner, Benson and Lye, for which no other authority can be found. The orthography, inflection and meaning of these words are given without alteration, on the responsibility of these authors.' 2. Because the word, with but a slight alteration, as Hupham, occurs in the Hebrew (Numb. 26:39), a cognate language.

"These speculations in regard to the origin of the name are utterly fruitless in genealogical results, and leave us in doubt whether we should assign a Saxon or Norman origin to him who first assumed the name of Upham.

"It may be proper in this connection to enumerate some of the places which now bear the name Upham.

"Upham, a parish in the county of Hants, England, 65 miles from London, 3 N. N. W. from Bishops Waltham; contained, in 1843, 581 inhabitants. It was the birthplace of Dr. Young, the author of the 'Night Thoughts.'

"Upham, Tipperary county, kingdom of Munster, Ireland. A village in the parish of Killenaule, barony of Sleibhardagh. It is 96 miles from Dublin, and with the parish contains 3,400 inhabitants.—Gorton's Topog. Dict.

"Upham, Ecclesia de, is spoken of in the year 1422, as situated in the Hundred of Kynwolmershee, in the county of Wilts. Kalenders and Inventories of his Majesty's Exchequer, vol. 2, p. 113.

"It may also be proper to refer to works in which individuals of this name are mentioned.

"Thomas Upham of Melverton, England, 1684, is mentioned by Joseph Besse, in his history of the Quakers (pp. 638-643) as one who suffered from religious persecution."

"Proceedings in Chancery (Elizab., vol. 3, No. 19, 1587). Plaintiff, Margaret Upham; defendant, Millissent Culleforde. Object of suit, to protect the plaintiff's title to the widow's estate. Premises, a tenement and closes of land granted to the plaintiff's late husband, Thomas Upham. The defendant claims under another grant, alleged to have been made to her husband — county of Southampton, now Hants."

This comprises all there is in Dr. Upham's "Notices" bearing upon this subject.

For some years I have carefully preserved every item of information, however unimportant, which may some time be found useful as an aid to the discovery of the origin of John Upham, the ancestor of the American Uphams; such items as have been gathered in this way are now recorded here for future reference, and with the hope that they may yet be useful in that direction. In this connection I will also note that Col. Joseph L. Chester — the well-known American genealogist, who recently died in London — wrote me not long before his death, as follows:

"I have always taken notes of the name of Upham wherever I have met it, such as I have now scattered through my collections, which fill more than one hundred folio volumes. I do not know what I may already have about the Uphams, possibly all that is needed. From what is known, and what I know of the Upham family, I should think their origin here might be ascertained; and in the event of a search, I should count pretty confidently on success."

Previous to the above-mentioned correspondence, an effort had been made to find the record of birth, and birthplace of John Upham, through an English genealogist — of less note — who wrote: "In looking up the name, I find they were an old and respectable family, and lived principally at Wiveliscome, in Somerset; a branch also lived at Coventry, in Warwickshire."

The principal result of this was to obtain the following extracts from the wills of Upham in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, Somerset House, London, between 1350 and 1660, viz.:

1587. John Uphame of Brompton Ralph, in the parish of Wiveliscombe, Co. Somerset; names his wife Margaret, and chil., Joane, John and Edward. He held land also at Wiveliscombe.

1587. Joane Upham, late of Dorchester, widow; she mentions no Uphams.

1623. John Upham of Wiveliscombe, diocese of Bath and Wells; names, wife, Winifred, children, John — under 21, Jane, Agnes and Mary. Brothers, George and Thomas Upham. Brothers-in-law, Thomas, Darbaron and John Upham.

1632. Christopher Upham of Wiveliscombe, Co. Somerset; names, wife, Elizabeth, and children, Christopher and Henry. Witnesses to will, George and Roger Upham. Proved by relict.

1633. William Upham of Coventry, Co. Warwick; named his children, Humphrey, John, Anne and Elizabeth; the last three under 21. Sisters, Margery Holmes, Baddock and Dickens. Brothers, John Synalls and Pemberton. Cousin, John Atchinor.(?)

1653. George Upham of Wiveliscombe, Somerset, yeoman; wife, Philip; children, Sisley, wife of John Burge; Petternill, wife of Hoyell; Anne, Judith, Mary and Alice. Mentions his kinsman John Upham of Whitefield. Brother-in-law, Nich. Snowe. Grandchildren, Geo. Baker and Sedgeborow.

1655. John Upham of Kinghampton, Co. Somerset — the elder; wife, Christian; son John, who had children, John, Joane and Christian. Nephew, Zacharias, son of sister Pulsford.

In the pedigree of Wareham, of Compton, Devon and Osmington, Dorset, occurs: "Edw. Wareham of Osmington in com Dorset, married Phillipa, dau. of — Upham of — in com Som set." Their eldest grandson was born in 1600.

From the Registers of St. James, Clerkenwell, — now a part of London — Harl. Soc., Vol. II (1701-1754) christened:

Nov. 21, 1729, Thomas, son of Abraham and Sarah Upom(sic).

Jan. 29, 1732, Elizth Upham; "did not stay to give the Register."

Feb. 24, 1739, Isaac, son of Abraham and Elizabeth Upham; born 14 Feb.

This correspondent also wrote: "There are Uphams living at Taunton and Wiveliscombe now (1877). There is no record of John Upham, born in the year 1597, in the parochial records of that year at Wiveliscombe. They were doubtless a Somerset family, and further information ought to be found among the wills at Wells.

"Wiveliscombe is a market town, and has 2,735 inhabitants; it is remotely situated among the swelling hills, on one side of which it hangs, with its feet in the valley." (Handbook.)

A correspondence with the clergyman at "Upham Rectory," Bishop Waltham, Hants, Eng., and with the clergyman at "Upham Glebe," Killenaule, County Tipperary, Ireland, shows that neither of these have been able to discover the origin of the name Upham as applied to those localities.

The Bradenstock, to which Dr. Upham has referred as the first locality where the name has been found as applied to a family, is mentioned in Murray's Handbook — Wilts, Dorset, and Somerset, London, 1869, p. 7: "Bradenstoke, or Broadstoke, was one of the four religious houses which stood in the early times on, or near the banks of the Avon; the others were Malmsbury, Stanley, and Laycock. 'Its remains,' says the poet Bowles, 'yet appear conspicuous on the edge of that long sweep of hills which formed the S. W. bounds of the ancient forest of Braden, from whence the Danes descended like a storm, to lay waste the country about Chippenham and Laycock. It may be distinguished by the mossy buttresses and battlements afar off in the sunshine.' Bradenstock was founded A. D. 1142, for Augustine, or Black Canons, by Walter d'Evreaux, father of Patrick, Earl of Salisbury, and grandfather of Ela, Longespée's wife. At the Dissolution, it was granted to Rich. Perhall, and afterward belonged to Danvers, and Methuens, now to G. Goldney, Esq.

"The remains of the priory are well worth inspection. They consist chiefly of the walls and roof of a fourteenth century hall, now cut up into several rooms. The very finely-carved oak roof, with the December ball flower on the beams, can only be seen in the garrets. At one end of the hall are the priors' chambers, with corner staircase and turret. A boss in the ceiling of the chief room bears the initial of Snow, the last prior. Beneath are vaulted cellars, temp. Richard II. Close to the house is a plain fifteenth century barn, with a modern roof.

"Dauntsey Station lies two and one-half miles to the right, and is four and one-half miles S. E. of Malmsbury, on Route I. London to Bath—Great Western Railway. It is eighty-seven and one-half miles from London." There is a church at Dauntsey.

The following notes show a few individuals who have been heard of in recent years bearing this name in England:

There was a James George Upham, of the hamlet of Ratcliffe, in the parish of Stepney, Co. Middlesex, Eng. (eldest son and heir apparent of James Upham of the same place, gentleman, by Sarah, his wife, second daughter and co-heir of Rev. Geo. Baxter, D. D., Rector of Glaston, Bucks, and Vicar of East Tilbury, Essex, and Margaret, his wife, one of the daus. of John Huxley of Wyer Hall, in the parish of Edmonton, Middlesex, Eng.), who took the name of Tatem only, in 1807. As per official records at College of Arms, London.

Married: Isaac Guilleman, M. D., of Etham, June 8, 1839, to Anne Pierce, the daughter of John Upham of London, West India merchant. He was born January 25, 1811; as per Guilleman Pedigree.

Married: Edward Upham, of St. Martins, Exeter, and Mary Hoblyn, Aug. 25, 1801; as per register Columb, St. Major, Cornwall.

Married: Richard Helmbridge, of East Coker, Somerset, to Elizabeth Vpham,—apparently about 1560; as per Visitations.

In 1873, was published in London, a "Return of Owners of Lands in all the Counties of England." (The Metropolis excluded.) This had the following Uphams only: "Mrs. Upham, Bridgewater, 116 acres; W. Upham, Taunton, 23 acres; Miss Upham, Taunton, 1 acre."

In 1877, William George Upham, who was in business at 75 High St., Hamstead, London, wrote that his father was Hugh Northam Upham, born in Taunton, Somerset; where his father was also born, his name being William. William George had brothers in London: John Launcelot, Robert Northam, and Alfred Eugene Edward; all of whom were in business, or occupying positions of some kind. Hugh Northam — father of this family — said the family was probably originally from Devonshire. He also said there were but few of the name in England, so far as he was aware, and these he believed all came from the same original family. A George Upham was also mentioned, living at Russell House, South End Road, Hampstead, London, N. W.; he had been a bookseller and publisher in Bond St., had also been at one time connected with the British Museum, and was from Devonshire. Further mention was made of Edwin and William Upham, of Taunton,— relatives of the writer — the latter of whom was town clerk at Taunton. William George Upham manifested an unusual degree of interest in the subject of the origin of the Uphams, and expressed his intention to investigate the matter, but I am not aware that he has ever paid farther attention to it.

In 1881, William Arthur Upham, of London (Atlas Assurance Company, Fire Dept., 92 Cheapside), also wrote, saying he was born in Taunton, in 1834; his father — then deceased — had been the town clerk at Taunton. He too was apparently quite interested in the origin of the family, and expressed a purpose to give the matter his attention, but nothing more has come from him.

In all probability the family has been located within twenty or thirty miles of Bath, for many generations. Edward Upham, bookseller, fellow of the Oriental Society, etc., was mayor of Bath, sometime about 1807; his obituary was in the Gentleman's Magazine about 1836. See, also, Allibone's Dict. of Authors. He was author of several works, an important one of which was his “Sacred Book of Ceylon,” in three octavo volumes. His brother was also a bookseller at Bristol.

These notes are all given, not that they have a special value in themselves, but it is believed they might lead to something should a determined search at some time be entered upon, with a view to establishing the origin of the family and name in England.

It may be well to also call attention to the work of John O'Hart: “The Irish Landed Gentry, when Cromwell came to Ireland.” In this he gives the name as of Irish origin, and says on page 180: “This surname” — Upham — “is an anglicised form of the ancient Irish Uppain; a family descended from Ir, one of the sons of Milesius of Spain, a quo the Milesian Irish Nation.” But the only proof he offers is a reference to the locality in Ireland where the name appears — and which has been already mentioned here — and to the fact that a family of the name were living at Dublin. All his references go to show the English, and not the Irish origin, and are largely those already given in the foregoing; it is therefore concluded that such a theory is not tenable. The family mentioned as living in Dublin, as has been since learned, are obscure fishermen, with no knowledge of their ancestry, and are quite as likely to have been of English, as of Irish origin; though how the name got into Ireland is a matter for interesting speculation.

THE HULL COLONY.

Gilbert Nash, recording secretary of the Weymouth Historical Society, in the printed proceedings of that society (No. 1), has recorded this:

“The Rev. Joseph Hull, a native of Somersetshire, England, a graduate of St. Mary’s Hall, Oxford, and a preacher of some celebrity in the south-west of England, having become dissatisfied with his position, or, inspired with a desire to see the new world just now dawning upon the eyes of Europe, and toward which so many of his friends and neighbors were flocking, resigned, in 1632, the rectorship of Northleigh, in Devon, which he had held for eleven years, and gathering a company of devoted followers who were willing to share with him the dangers, difficulties and pleasures of this new and unknown country, set sail on the 20th of March, 1635, from Weymouth, in Old Dorset, for the lands of the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

“The company consisted of twenty-one families—about one hundred and five individuals—with probably no more definite destination than that so generally indicated above, preferring to leave the precise spot of their location to the direction of Providence. After a passage of forty-six days, a fair one for that period, with such vessels as they could command, and of which we have no further record, they passed in among the verdant islands of that beautiful bay, leaving on their left the bustling settlement of Hull, then a harbor for the inner plantations, and after a pleasant sail of about ten miles cast anchor before Governor Winthrop’s infant village of Boston. This was on the 6th of May, and it was not until July 2, that, with the permission of the General Court, they at length settled upon Wessagusset as their future home, the name of which, in pleasant memory of the port in Dorset they had so recently left, was changed to Weymouth,—a name it has honorably borne to the present time, with its original territory unchanged by addition or diminution.

“This selection was a serious business for the new colonists, whose eyes were familiar only with the highly cultivated fields of old England, who knew little of the capacities of the soil upon which they now trod for the first time, of whose history they knew nothing, and whose outlines, even, they could hardly discern, so thickly were they wooded.

“There was no lack in quantity of land, and but little dispute with respect to titles, owing to war and pestilence, which had nearly depopulated that section; but there was a choice in quality and location, and even that must be left mainly, as they had from the first proposed, to the direction of Providence. So they sailed down the harbor, passing the many islands that dot so thickly its fair surface, and entering the estuary now called Fore River, came to anchor in a small cove about four miles from its mouth, afterward known as Mill Creek, and not far from the spot where Weston’s colony found a landing some thirteen years before.

“Weymouth, even at so early a date, was not wholly a wilderness, for with the Weston settlement of 1622, that of the Gorges in the following year, scattered remnants of whose people yet remained upon the ground, and others who had since come in, quite a population had gathered within the limits of Wessaguscus, while the land had been so generally taken up, and the plantations were so closely connected that the new comers were obliged to make their settlement upon territory further to the southward.

“The tract selected was situated southerly from Burying Hill (beyond which, to the north, were the larger portion of the older farms), with King Oak Hill for a central point, from whose summit, seaward and landward extended a magnificent prospect of hill and stream, of forest and bay, not surpassed in natural beauty by the most favored landscapes of the old world. The temporary habitations of the Weymouth colonists of 1635 were located in the valley lying along its western base, reaching to Burying Hill.

Upon the latter were the meeting-house and watch-house, as well as the burying-place, while the farms were scattered for a distance to the west, south and east. The rude shelters first erected were replaced from time to time by more substantial and commodious structures built upon the farms themselves, when the lands had become better improved, and the danger from Indians less imminent."

In a later paper, prepared by Mr. Nash, and read at the Nov., 1882, meeting of the Weymouth Historical Society, and also at the Dec. — same year — meeting of the New England Historic-Generalogical Society in Boston, and published in the Weymouth Gazette, of February 23, 1883; he makes frequent mention of the Hull Colony, from which the following extracts have been made, the paper itself having a special reference to the history of the first church at Weymouth.

"The Massachusetts Colonial Records (I. 149) state, under date of July 8, 1635, that 'there is a leave granted to twenty-one ffamilyes to sitt down at Wessaguscus.' Gov. Winthrop in his journal (I. 194) says, 'at the court (5 mo. 8) Wessaguscus was made a plantation, a Mr. Hull, a minister in England, and twenty-one families with him, allowed to sit down there — after called Weymouth.'

"The very general assumption that there was no permanent settlement in Weymouth (using the name by which the town has since been known), previous to the arrival of the Hull company, in 1635, can hardly be sustained in the face of the very strong evidence to the contrary. C. F. Adams, Jr., Esq., in his address delivered 4th July, 1874, at the celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of the town, and in his paper on the 'Old planters about Boston harbor,' read before the Massachusetts Historical Society, and published in its collections, proves conclusively that the Gorges company, which settled upon the deserted plantations of Thomas Weston's people, in September, 1623, and which, it has usually been thought, was wholly broken up in the following spring, left a number of its emigrants there, who remained and become permanent settlers. These were joined from time to time by single families or small companies, until, upon the arrival of Mr. Hull's company, the settlement had attained quite respectable proportions.

"A careful analysis of the court and town records will show that, instead of the company from Weymouth, England, in 1635, being the first settlers, there were, at the date of its arrival, certainly not less than fifty families, and perhaps seventy or eighty, already residing there; and it is more than possible that this was an important reason why this place was selected by this company for its settlement. A flourishing colony already established was sufficient evidence of good soil, a good location, a favorable position for trade with the Indians, and for communication with other plantations about the bay; besides, and this was no insignificant matter in those days, the protection thus afforded from the savages. More than this, probably many of the previous settlers were relatives or friends of the later arrivals.

"The similarity of name, and of the localities of some whose former residences are known, give color to this probability; and the name Weymouth, given at this time, 1635, to the plantation, may not be wholly owing to the influx of new people sailing from Weymouth, in Dorset, but to the calling up of old memories in the minds of the previous settlers, who, years before, sailed from the same port and perhaps lived there.

"An examination of the public records will afford evidence, surprising in value and volume, of this early and continued settlement. Although the earliest record in the archives of the town bears date 10th Dec., 1636, and very few entries are prior to 1644-5, yet there are those undated that are probably earlier, and these, with the evidence reflected from the later dates, together with corroboration received from other and contemporaneous sources, give additional and strong proof in support of the same.

"Thus we have the Gorges colony in 1623, the arrival of a new company from Weymouth, England, the following year, the capture of Morton in 1628, the visit of Governor Winthrop in 1632, the tax lists of the Massachusetts Bay Colony for 1630, and onwards, which include Wessaguscus, and the incidental mention from contemporaneous sources covering nearly the intervening time. These afford a firm basis upon which to rest an earlier settlement than that of the Hull company.

“Of the settlers who were here in 1628 and '30, we know very little beyond the fact that they were here at that date, and that Thomas Morton, of Mount Wollaston, of unpleasant memory, was on intimate terms with some of them, and was arrested by the Plymouth authorities, while on a visit here in 1628. Our facts relating to the early settlement are briefly these. A permanent settlement in the fall of 1623, by Col. Robert Gorges, continued additions during the next four years, the arrest of Morton, casual mention for the following three years, the visit of Governor Winthrop, on his way to and from Plymouth, in 1632, record of births in 1633, and the colonial tax lists from 1630 onwards until the erection of the settlement into a plantation, with the right of a deputy to the General Court.

“There are reasons why the early contemporaneous records and writers so seldom mention this town and its affairs, in the fact of its different origin, the marked jealousy, not to say unkind feelings which the Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay Colonies regarded it. It had a more commercial element in its constitution. It was, also, in its incipience, episcopal in its ecclesiastical relations, which, although gradually relaxing, carried enough of the flavor of the ‘establishment’ with it to make it any thing but palatable to the taste of their puritan and independent neighbors. The relation then existing between them and their neighbors about the Bay we cannot determine with certainty now, but we may judge something of what they were by the casual mention, and the incidental exhibitions of feeling, cropping out but too frequently.

“On the 2d of September (1635) the name of the settlement was changed to Weymouth, and it was made a plantation, with a privilege of a deputy to the General Court. Mr. Hull was also made a freeman at the same time. His first grant of land is recorded, as in Weymouth, 12th June, 1636. The same year he also received a grant of land at Hingham. In 1637, he was reported as being still in Weymouth, while the same year, probably later and transiently, he is named among the list of first settlers in Salem. He was also heard from about the same time preaching at Bass River, Beverly. In September, 1638, he was chosen deputy to the General Court from Hingham, and was also appointed a local magistrate for the same town. In 1639, he was again elected its deputy to the General Court. Fifth May of that year, he preached his farewell sermon in Weymouth, and later, in the same month, is heard from at Barnstable, in Plymouth Colony, making a settlement."

"His sojourn at Barnstable was a short and stormy one, for he had hardly become settled there with his little company" (this has not reference to the original company which came with him to Weymouth), "when the territory was entered upon by Rev. Mr. Lothrop and his flock from Scituate. Mr. Hull was made a freeman of Plymouth Colony, in December, 1639. There seems to have been trouble in the Barnstable church, and Mr. Hull preached at Yarmouth so acceptably, that early in 1641 he received a call from the church there, which he promptly accepted, and for which he and his wife were excommunicated by the Barnstable church. On this account perhaps, and possibly from the influence of the Plymouth authorities, who appear to have become hostile to him, his stay at Yarmouth was of short duration, for we find him as a preacher at the Isle of Shoals, in March, 1642. He seems not yet to have wholly abandoned the Plymouth Colony, for, 11th March, 1642, his wife renews her covenant with the Barnstable church, and 7th March, 1643, a warrant for his arrest is issued by the court, 'should he continue his ministrations as minister or magistrate in that colony.' His troubles there appear to have been adjusted, for he was received back into the Barnstable church 10th August, 1643. He now bids farewell to that colony, and we next hear of him as preaching at York, Maine, where, or in that vicinity, he remained for eight or ten years, subject however to the not very friendly attentions of his Massachusetts Bay Colony acquaintances. He afterward returned to England, and was, in 1659, rector of St. Buryan's, Cornwall, where he remained about three years, when his name appears among the ejected ministers under the 'St. Bartholomew Act.' He again took refuge in America, where he was found, 1665, the year of his death, once more at the Isle of Shoals, having been driven from Oyster River by the Quakers.

"Mr. Hull was born in Somersetshire, England, in 1594; was educated at Oxford University, St. Mary's Hall, where he graduated in 1614; became rector at Northleigh, Devon, in 1621, which position he resigned in 1632, when he commenced gathering from his native county and those surrounding it, the company with which he sailed from Weymouth, Dorset, 20th March, 1635.

" 'Mr. Hull,' says Mr. Savage, 'came over in the Episcopal interest' and his sympathies appear to have leaned in that direction, although while in America he was professedly a non-conformist, or Independent; hence, probably, the jealousy and petty persecution which followed him with more or less virulence, during the greater part of his residence on these shores. He was a man of worth and learning by the admission of Hubbard. He must have been a popular man from his success in securing followers to make up his company of emigrants, and his selection by the voice of his constituents at three different elections as deputy to the General Court, twice at Hingham, and once at Barnstable. He must have been an acceptable preacher from the eagerness with which his services were sought. Dr. Mather places him among 'our first good men' and Pike, his successor at Dover, remembers him as 'a reverend minister,' while Governor Winthrop says he was 'a very contentious man.' Possibly the worthy Governor may not have been quite free from prejudice against the free-spoken, independent minister, with Episcopal antecedents and tendencies. Yet the frequent removals, numerous troubles, vexations and lawsuits, certainly give room for the Governor's opinion. No fault seems to have been found with his moral or religious character, but he was certainly unfortunate in this country by having circumstances so often against him, or in having so many bad neighbors. It is somewhat doubtful whether he was ever settled over the church at Weymouth."

This somewhat detailed account of Mr. Hull, and his affairs, is preserved for the reason that it will naturally be of interest to the descendants of the members of the Hull Colony; and it may indicare, to some extent, what was perhaps the general character of his followers, though his relations with them appear to have ceased not very long after reaching at Weymouth.

The following is a complete list of the Hull company, with careful notes of correction by Mr. Rufus King, of Yonkers, N. Y., the name of whose ancestor appears therein. Mr. King has circulated copies of this list among the parishes in England, in which it is probable the company was organized, with a view to the identification of his ancestor. Mr. Robt. B. Hull, of New York, a descendant of the Rev. Joseph Hull, has also endeavored to ascertain as much as possible with reference to the origin of these people. He says: "Several of the emigrants came from Broudway in Somerset," and thinks, "the name of Robert Dabyn should be Robert Davys; Whitemarke, should be Whitmarsh; George Allen was an old man, aged 67 in 1635. He had been preceded by two sons, by a first wife, Henry and Samuel, who came in 1629-30. 'Poole,' says Porter, 'was born in Batcombe, Somerset,' but Baylie derives the family from Taunton; John Upham is mentioned in 'News from New England;' Hoble should be Hubble; Huste should be Harte; Woodcooke should be Woodcock; Porter's age should be 23, or 33. Thoroughgood was probably a brother, or relative, of the courtier Sir John, was appointed clerk for license to persons going abroad, 19th Nov., 1631. These emigrants were joined on this side of the water by Edward Bennett, Mr. Thomas Jenner, sen., Thomas White, William Frye, Thomas Rawling, or Rawlings, Richard Sylvester, William Smith, ——— Wright, Thomas Applegate, Clement Briggs, Arthur Warren, Edmond Harte, Stephen French, and others. I conjecture that most, if not all the first settlers of Wassaguscus were West country people, and came from that point where the counties of Somerset, Dorset, and Devon join."

To Trace your Ancestry: From the index, find your name with the children of your father's family. Take the serial number which you will find at the left of your father's name, and look back into the next earlier generation until the same number appears again, which will be opposite your father's name as one of the children in his father's (your grandfather's) family. Then take the serial number at your grandfather's name and find it in the next earlier generation among the children; the head of this family will be your great-grandfather. Continue this method until you reach the name of John Upham, No. 1, and your line of descent will be developed. You will then be able to trace the line forward, from

THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN UPHAM AND HIS WIFE ELIZABETH WEBB.

1. John Upham was the first to bear his name in America, and so far as known, he was the ancestor of all who have since had the name in this country.* He was born in England, probably in Somersetshire; but of his origin, or ancestry, nothing is known. He came to Weymouth with the Hull Colony, a record of which has already been given, and according to which, the family at that time consisted of the following members:

John Upham, age 35 ; John Upham, jr., age 7 ;
Elizabeth Upham, age 32 ; Nathaniel Upham, age 5 ;
Sarah Upham, age 26 ; Elizabeth Upham, age 3.

As will be observed, his age is given as thirty-five at that time, according to which he would have been born in the year 1600; the record on his gravestone would make his age three years more, but this is probably a mistake, for the age as given by himself,—as this must have been—in his early years, would without doubt be more reliable than one which was recorded after his death, and also the death of most of the members of his family. From other sources, we know that the name of his wife was Elizabeth, and so assume the Elizabeth above mentioned was his wife, her age at that time being thirty-two. Sarah Upham, age 26, was likely his sister; there is no further record of her in connection with the family, that has been discovered. John, Nathaniel, and Elizabeth were unquestionably his children, subsequent mention proves them to have been such. His wife, Elizabeth, was the mother of all his children, unless, which is not probable, and there is nothing to indicate, there was an earlier marriage in England.

With regard to his wife: her name is assumed to have been Webb, for the will of Richard Webb has this: "Also I appoint and design my loving friends, Deacon John Upham, of Malden, Deacon Clapp and Lieut. Clapp, to be my executors," etc. This dated July 21, 1659, while in the same record, and bearing the same date, is the following: "Joseph Webb being before me, the magistrate, declared that he chose his Uncle Upham, Lieut. Clapp, and Deacon Clapp, whom his father appointed executors of his will, to be guardians," etc. John Upham, to have been the uncle of Joseph, the son of Richard Webb, must either have married the sister of the said Richard Webb, or Richard Webb must have married the sister of John Upham. There is no record of the death of John Upham's wife Elizabeth, though as will appear later, he contracted another marriage in his old age, in 1671.

Mr. Wyman says: "Deeds and probate records show that Deacon John Upham was brother-in-law to Joanna, wife of Robert Martin, of Rehoboth, and to Richard Webb, of Weymouth."

On the second day of September, 1635, John Upham was admitted freeman, at Weymouth, at the same time with the Rev. Joseph Hull, and others of the Hull company. This was also the date on which the name of the place was changed from Wessagus to Weymouth, and it was made a plantation at the same time, with the privilege of a deputy to the General Court. From this date the members of this company appear to have been an important element in that community.

Mr. Nash, the Weymouth chronicler, thus indicates the condition of affairs at Weymouth on the arrival of the Hull company: "If it were the usual custom in the settlement of this country to form churches immediately after taking permanent possession, and of this there can be little doubt, then Wessagus should have had a church several years at least before the arrival of the Rev. Joseph Hull.

"With the Gorges company, in the autumn of 1623, came Rev. William Morrell, their minister, a clergyman of the established church. He appears to have been a quiet, scholarly gentleman, of cultivated tastes and refined habits, much better fitted for the duties and enjoyments of an English rectory, than to found and build up a church in the rough settlements of a new country. He could better enjoy the congenial society of his equals, at home, than guide the rude, independent minds of those who constituted his companions in this, to him, wholly unknown enterprise. The whole plan of the undertaking was conceived and started in a spirit particularly unconscious of the real position of affairs where it was to be executed. It was a paper campaign, projected by an unpractical general, and entrusted to incompetent officers. As such the result was inevitable failure. It was started with organization and machinery enough to carry on a colony of the greatest magnitude after years of successful growth; and in order to give it dignity and importance, and to secure the favor of the home government, its ecclesiastical character and position were well cared for in the plan. Mr. Morrell was their minister, sufficient for the needs of its first company. He was the pioneer to whom was entrusted all of the preliminary work that was to speedily result in a flourishing bishopric, and as such he was clothed with ample powers, with full control of all the churches present and in immediate prospect upon these shores. The reality soon satisfied him that the plan was a failure, or that he was not the man to execute it. A rigorous climate, an inhospitable coast, and the companionship of uncongenial spirits were more than he had bargained for and more than he could bear. With the discouragements of many of his associates he sympathized. Thus we find that he remained with his charge about a year and a half and then sailed to England, sailing from Plymouth; having had the rare good sense and discretion to keep his ecclesiastical powers and authority to himself, for he did not in the least degree attempt to exercise these, although they were so large, showing them only when about to leave.

“With this marvellous prospect before him when he undertook the position, and the facilities given him to carry out almost any ideas he may have entertained respecting his ecclesiastical work, however extravagant they may have been, is it presumptuous to suppose that he did not neglect the very first step necessary to carry out the plan of the enterprise, which would be the formation of a local church? We have no positive evidence that he did this, but the probabilities would certainly seem to favor such a proceeding. Without such an organization he could hope to accomplish but little; with it he would have made a beginning and laid the foundations, at least, upon which to erect the imposing structure, that had filled the minds of the original projectors in England."

Mr. Nash then refers to a passage in "Prince's Chronicles," relating to this settlement, which he says, "seems not to be credited by Mr. Adams, yet it is of such a nature that we can hardly pass it by as entirely without foundation." The passage is this: "This year comes some additions to the few inhabitants of Wessaguscus, from Weymouth, England, who were another sort of people than the former." Then in brackets ["and on whose account I conclude the town is since called Weymouth"]. To which is appended the following note: "They have the Rev. Mr. Barnard, their first non-conformist minister, who dies among them. But whether he comes before or after 1630, or when he dies is yet unknown, nor do I anywhere find the least hint of him, but in the manuscript letter taken from some of the oldest people of Weymouth."

Mr. Nash says further: "This statement is a very important one, and would seem to be entitled to more weight than Mr. Adams is inclined to allow it. Rev. Thomas Prince was born 15th May, 1687, and was old enough before their decease, to know many of those who were the children of the very earliest settlers of the town. Mr. Prince himself does not appear to doubt its correctness, but is surprised to find no mention made of the company and the minister, Mr. Barnard, in contemporaneous writers. As before intimated, satisfactory reasons could no doubt be found for such omissions were the relations between the few scattered settlements of this time known to us.

"We have no further record of church or minister until 1635, when permission was given, 8th July, by the General Court, for

Rev. Joseph Hull and twenty-one families to sit down at Wessaguscus.

“Rev. Mr. Morrell, it is admitted, came to this town in the Episcopal interest. He was a clergyman of the established church, clothed with extraordinary powers to form, govern and perpetuate churches of that communion. Whatever influence he exerted was in favor of the extension and strengthening of that organization. His people were in sympathy with him in this matter, and if he founded a church here it was of that denomination; if he did not, he left influences behind him that would naturally work toward the accomplishment of that purpose, and these influences would as naturally continue to operate while these settlers formed an important element in that community; they would of necessity oppose the ecclesiastical systems of the Plymouth and Bay colonies, then or soon after to become their neighbors. While the settlement was one, before the arrival of Gov. Winthrop and the rapid increase of settlements around the Bay, there was nothing to call up this feeling of opposition, for the few emigrants who came from time to time, even if their sympathies were at variance with the previous settlers, had enough to do to look after their own affairs; besides, the colony was not strong enough to quarrel. The arrival of Gov. Winthrop, the establishment of the colonial government, and the large tide of emigration that set in immediately after, had its effect upon the little plantation at Wessaguscus. The favorable situation, and the already established community, drew in many new settlers from other points, and the influence of the government and the religious system it supported, soon made itself felt, and with the little assistance derived from these sources, became at length predominant. Still the old feeling of loyalty to the Church of England and to the Gorges company was powerful enough to form a strong party.

“This was the position of affairs when, in the summer of 1635, the arrival of Mr. Hull and his score of families introduced a new element of discord into the already divided community. The newcomers, not in full sympathy with either faction, deemed themselves strong enough and of sufficient importance to have at least an equal voice in the councils of the town, and as there was no minister at their coming, and as they brought one ready-made at their hands, what better could they do than accept him for all? This at once aroused the opposition of the older settlers, and measures were immediately taken to prevent such a result. The friends of the government seem to have been the strongest and most energetic. They select Mr. Thomas Jenner, a recent emigrant to Dorchester, and invite him to take the field in opposition, which he was very ready to do, for we find him here the year following. Success appears to have followed the movement, for Mr. Hull virtually retires from the contest, as the records show him in 1636 and 1637 as a candidate for the ministerial position in other places, and soon, with a sufficiently permanent location in the neighboring town of Hingham, to become its deputy to the General Court. Still he does not appear to have wholly relinquished his claim to the Weymouth pulpit, for it was not until 1639 that he preached his farewell sermon.

"The jealousy of the original settlers of any authority below the Crown, outside of their own patent, may have prevented as close an intimacy with the neighboring plantations as would otherwise have existed; and this would furnish a reason why it is so seldom mentioned by them in connection with their own affairs. However this may be, the authority of the colonial government was gradually extended over the settlement, and the people submitted with the best grace they could, but not without an occasional exhibition of the old spirit by way of protest. The town was reorganized, its name changed, and the privilege of a deputy to the General Court granted to it in the summer and fall of 1635. At once the three opposing elements show themselves, and the little town chooses three deputies, instead of the one to which it was entitled. Capt. John Bursley represents the original settlers, Mr. Wm. Reade those who favor the colonial government, while Mr. John Upham is the selection of the Hull emigrants, and, as has been the case in some later days, the patronage of the ruling power proves the most powerful, and Mr. Reade retains his seat, while his two competitors quietly retire."

So much of these early troubles at Weymouth as it appears John Upham was identified with, have been shown, but the record of this will not be continued. This at least indicates the condition of affairs with the Hull company, as well as the standing of John Upham among those who must have known him best at that time.

The following is a transcript from the Weymouth records: "1636. At a meeting in the town of Weymouth, holden the 12 of June, Voted, That for the great lotts we should lott unto every compleate person six acres, and to every half passenger under twelve years of age, to have three to a head. By all the freemen here present whose names are under written. And the place to begin is at the lower end of the fresh pond and to run eighty four Rodd eitherwards to the great plantation lotts."

In this list those having the prefix of Mr. to their names were ministers, at least Mr. Hull and Mr. Jenner are known to have been such.

"The Lands of John Upham."

"Fower acres in Kingoak hill first given to himselfe, bounded on the East with Edmond Harts land, on the West with a highwaie. Mr. Webbs land on the North. Thomas Rawlings on the South. Two acres in Harrises Rainge, Thos. Clifton's land on the East, a highwaie on the West, the land of Walter Harris on the North, of John Burge on the South. Two acres of Saltmarsh with a little island adjoining to it called burying Island, Mr. Newmands land on the East, the sea on the West. Enock Hunts on the South. Thirty acres in the greate lotts, the Pond on the East. the commons on the West, Steephen Hunt's on the North."

These records for the years 1635-6.

"King-oak Hill," mentioned above, is a slightly, beautiful hill overlooking Boston Bay. "Berrying Island" has a history; Weymouth was the second settlement in the colony, next after Plymouth. The first settlers have not been held in the highest repute—whether justly so or not, but they came there nevertheless. They landed upon this "burying island," and lived upon it, and near to it, in 1622-3. They had trouble with the Indians, and Miles Standish came from Plymouth to save them; the story of his march is historical. This company no doubt lived very near upon what was afterward the land of John Upham.

It is probable that the differences among the residents at Weymouth were adjusted in some way, for the May after the Hull colony came, in 1636; John Upham was elected representative to the General Court, as appears from the records of the same, vol. I, page 128; this court holden in Boston. He was also elected representative to the second term of the court for the same year; but on petition was allowed to remain at home, as appears on page 133 of the same record.

The same volume shows that for both terms of the General Court for 1637, and for the first term for 1638, held at Newton, he was one of the deputies from Weymouth. He was also deputy for 1639, and on the "5 day of the 9th month" of the same year he "was appointed to be in the place of Mr. Parker, who is gone to England, to order small business in the town of Weymouth."

In 1640 his oldest son died, he who came from England, and is mentioned in the passenger list as aged seven; which fact appears by the following record of births, deaths, etc., in the City Commissioner's office, Boston, Liber I, p. 67, viz.:

"Weymouth."

"John Upham, sonne of John Upham, buried 5d. 4m. 1640."

The following pleading was evidently drawn in November, 1640, and is from a "Note-Book kept by Thomas Lechford, Esq., Lawyer," etc., 1638-1641 (p. 338, MS. p. 187).

“To the right worll the Governor Council & Assists of this Jurisdiccion.

“The Complaint of Richard Lang of Weymouth in NE Clap-Board ryver against John Upham and Willm Smith in behalf of themselves & the rest of the freemen of the said Towne of Weymouth

“Sheweth that this Complt hath bin an Inhabitant in Weymouth aforesaid by the space of six years last past or thereabouts and ought in right to have a share in the necke of land in Weymouth the said John Upham & WS & the rest of the said defendts wthout the generall Consent of the Towne made an agreement that the new planters with Richard Sylvester & Arthur Warren should have the said necke of land allotted among them and unjustly left out this Complts name saying that he was no planter and whereas this Complt should have had three acres of land at the least upon the plaine the Defendts have assigned him but two acres there And whereas the Plt had three acres of land going to the mill the said Defndts have unjustly given the same to Richard Knight And the said Defndts deteyne the Plts share of the medow grounds within the said towne wch should be three acres at the least And the said defendts have assigned and taken great lotts to themselves but have not assigned any lotts to the rest of the planters there. And they have unjustly given away lands out of this Complts and other men their rights And also have overrated this Complt and other inhabits there. Lastly the said defendts keepe the Towne booke disorderly some leaves having bin cutt & some blotts and other defects there are therein The Complt prayeth that the defendts may be enjoined to appeare at the next Court to answer the premises & bring the said Towne booke wth them.”

(NOTE.—“I cannot find that this petition of Richard Lang was ever acted upon. John Upham and William Smith were both commissioners for Weymouth, and also deputies, and Warren and Sylvester were both well-known men; so it is probable that the matter was passed over.)”

In 1642, John Upham was one of the six who treated with the Indians for the lands at Weymouth, and obtained a title from them thereto; concerning which Mr. Nash says :

“ The original settlers at Wessaguscus, or Weymouth, were what would now be termed ‘squatters,’ and their titles simply those of possession, the real owners being the Indians, whose rights were general and not individual. The English titles were vested in governmental grants to the large companies like the Plymouth, the Gorges and the Massachusetts Bay. These early settlers came into the territory of Wessaguscus before it was fairly in the possession of either company, consequently they could only acquire such a title as the native holders could give them, to be confirmed by later authority, whatever that might be. Weymouth extinguished the Indian title to its territory by purchase; the deed bearing date 26th April, 1642, was executed by the resident chiefs, who sign themselves Wampetuc, alias Jonas Webacowett, Nateaunt and Nahawton, and is recorded among the Suffolk Deeds. Nateaunt’s beach and probable camping ground was at the foot of Great Hill, in North Weymouth. The town was therefore now in position to confirm the planters in their possessions, and the existence of the list of possessions made soon after, seems to indicate that this was done.”

In 1643 John Upham is mentioned as one of the selectmen; and in 1644, power was given him by the General Court in connection with two others, to “end small causes at Weymouth.”

His name is subscribed to the doings of the town, as one of the selectmen, for the years 1645, 1646, and 1647. The last entry of this kind to which his name is signed (p. 16, Weymouth Town Records, vol. I), is dated the 21st day of the twelfth month, 1647; and there is no doubt that he remained in Weymouth until the year 1648.

During the next two years there has been no record of him found. But it is certain that at some time between 1648 and 1650, he removed from Weymouth to Malden, having been a resident of Weymouth, and connected with its affairs, for thirteen years or more.

This removal probably took place in 1648; for in that year it appears “the town of Malden was built on the north side of the Mystic river, by several persons from Charlestown, who gathered themselves into a church.” He must have been a resident of Malden as early as 1650, for the reason that a petition was signed by him as a selectman of Malden, dated the 22d day of the first month, 1651; and it may be assumed that as he was a selectman so early in that year, he must have been an inhabitant certainly as early as the year 1650.

The reason why he left Weymouth has never been discovered. The town records of Malden, previous to 1678, have been lost, and we are thus deprived of a great source of information concerning him for the thirty years of his life between 1648 and 1678. Still, something has been learned concerning him during these years from other sources.

Besides his signature as selectman in 1651, as above noted, it is also found where he was a witness to a document, by which the bounds of Charlestown and Malden were established.

In 1652 no mention has been found of him except that a deed was signed in his presence; though he was probably selectman that year, as he signed a petition as such in the year following, 1653. Sometime about 1654, he, with some others at Malden, seems to have incurred the displeasure of the General Court; the offense being the electing of their own minister, without consulting the other churches. The General Court Records, Liber II, p. 273, have this: "In answer to the petition of Joseph Hill, Abraham Hill, John Waite, John Sprague, Ralph Shepherd, John Upham, James Green, Thomas Call, in which they humbly acknowledge the offence they gave to the court and several churches about the ordination of Mr. Matthews, &c. And therein also craving a remittment of £13 6s 8d, part of a fine not yet satisfied, the court doth well approve, and accept of the petitioners' acknowledgment of their irregular actings in those times; but understanding that much, if not most, of the fine being paid for, and the rest is secured, of that should long since have been paid in, they see not cause to grant their request in that."

In the year 1655, sixth month, his signature appears among the selectmen at Malden; and in 1656, his name is mentioned as a witness to a deed only.

In 1657, he, with two other persons, was appointed a commissioner by the Supreme Court, "for ending small cases at Malden for one year ensuing." His name is also appended to an inventory taken by him the eighth month of the year 1657.

In 1658, in September, another inventory has his name appended; and his name is also signed as a witness to a deed drawn up the same year.

April 5, 1659, he was again appointed commissioner for Malden by the Supreme Court; and also executor of the will of Richard Webb, and guardian of his son.

In 1660 another inventory was taken by him.

June 25, 1661, he was again appointed commissioner by the Supreme Court; and in the same year his name is signed to an inventory drawn by him. June 17, 1662, he was reappointed commissioner by the Supreme Court; also chosen as one of the grand jurors that year.

No mention of his name is found in the records for the year 1663; and for several years after, the information which might have been obtained from the Supreme Court Records is lost — Liber 2 having been destroyed by fire.

In 1664, there is a conveyance of land to John Upham, and one from John Upham to his son Phineas. The year following his name appears as a witness to a deed; and in 1666, an inventory was taken by him. But in 1667 there is nothing on record concerning him.

In 1668, an answer was returned to a petition presented to the General Court by John Upham and others, in behalf of the town of Malden; his name also appears appended to an inventory drawn up by himself that year. In the next year there is nothing. In 1670, he conveyed land to his son Phineas.

In 1671, Book 7, p. 224, Suffolk Deeds, has the following record:

"John Upham — know all whom it may concern That whereas there is a consummation of marriage intended between me John Upham, Sen. of Malden in New England and Katherine Hollard widow and Relict of Angell Hollard late deceased I the said John Upham do hereby wholly disclaim and utterly refuse to receive and take any goods Estate or appurtenances any way whatsoever belonging to the said Katherine and especially any money goods Estates or movables whatsoever that have been formerly or now are anyway belonging to the Estate of her former husband Angell Hollard. In witness whereof I set to my hand and seal this 14th day of August 1671

“JOHN UPHAM & a Seal

“Signed and sealed before us Joshua Hubbard The mark Hof Hannah Long John Balantine. This deed of disclaim was acknowledged by John Upham to be his act and deed 23-6-1671

“Recorded & compared 28th, 6m 1671 O. S.

“GRACE RANDALL Clerk”

“Marriages in Malden.”

“John Upham and — Hollie, 6m. '71.” That is August, 1671, the year old style, commencing in March.

Without doubt, this is the “Katheryn,” wife of Angell “Hollard,” who is numbered 84 on the list of passengers from England in the Hull company.

In 1672, there is a record of an inventory drawn up by him, but nothing of John Upham in 1673. In 1674, there is the record of another inventory made by him; but for the next three years — 1675, '76, and '77, there is nothing on record of him. Subsequent to this period, the town records of Malden are extant, from which it is learned that “Deacon John Upham” was moderator of the several town meetings for the years 1678, 1678-9, 1679, 1679-80; the last of which occurred on the 2d. Im. 1679-80, March 2, 1680.

John Upham is mentioned in Lincoln's History of Worcester — p. 29 — as one of those interested in the settlement of Worcester in 1678. His will has not been found, and the foregoing mention embrace all the public notes which have been discovered concerning him.

The only mention of his wife Elizabeth that has been found, consists of incidental references; of which there are three, dated as follows: July 2, 1662; one in 1664; and the last, the 2d of December, 1670. There is no record of her death which has been found; she must have lived to reach the age of 67 at all events, and she must have died at some time between Dec. 2, 1670,—the date of the last notice of her,—and Aug. 14, 1671, the date on which John Upham appears to be about contracting the marriage with Katherine Hollard.

Concerning John Upham's son Nathaniel, who is first mentioned as age 5, in the passenger list from England, there is the following information: He is afterward mentioned on the 4d. 2mo., 1654; and next Dec. 1, 1656; and in both these cases his name is mentioned in connection with that of his father, they as witnesses that certain testators are in sound mind, in fit condition to dispose of property, etc.; then at his marriage, viz.:

He appears to have been a minister. It is recorded in the Roxbury church chronicles, that in “March, 1661, Mr. Upham, who sometimes preached in Malden, died in Cambridge.” That he was a minister, also appears to be evident from the following extract taken from the inventory of his goods and chattels:

“By 13 bands and 10 pair of band strings,
By a parcel of books of Mr. Brooks,
By another parcel of books,
By a parcel of Latin books,
By a cithern and case to it.”

That he was the person who married Elizabeth Steadman, and the son of Deacon John Upham, of Malden, is proven by a deed, soon after executed by John Upham, and of which the following is an extract: “and especially for the dear love and affection I have unto my beloved daughter, Elizabeth Upham, the relict widow of my son, Nathaniel Upham, deceased, have given," etc. Dated July 2, 1662. There was no issue from this marriage; and the widow married Henry Thompson, in 1669. The records of the General Court show that Nathaniel Upham was made freeman on the 23d of May, 1655; which would agree with the age of the Rev. Nathaniel, who would accordingly have been thirty-one years old at the time of his death. It is possible that the 23d of May was his birthday, and that he was born in the year 1629-30, on that date, in England; and if so, the fact may be useful hereafter in trying to trace the origin of the family.

The next one of the children of John Upham was Elizabeth, mentioned in the passenger list as age 3, in 1635. Mr. Wyman records that she was the widow of Thomas Welch, that she had thirteen children and died January 12, 1705-6.

This accounts for all the children mentioned in the passenger list. It may be observed that thirty acres of land were granted to John Upham at Weymouth, on the 12th of June, 1636; and from the number of acres which were allotted to each "passenger," and "half passenger," it would appear that there must at that time have been one more child than is mentioned in the passenger list. The next child in the family is known to have been Phineas, or "Phinehas" and "Phynehas," as the name is found to have been differently spelled. There is evidence which will be noted later, showing that he was probably born in 1635. He may have been born while on the voyage from England, or he may have been born shortly after the arrival of the family in New England; he must have been born between the date on which the passenger list was made out, and the date of the land grant at Weymouth. It has generally been assumed that he was born at Weymouth, and very soon after the arrival there. It has also been suggested that the scriptural significance of the name Phinehas, "the peace of God," may have indicated the feelings of peace and thankfulness, which followed the safe arrival in America, and so have been given to the first born in the New World. An account of this Phineas will be given later.

There were also two daughters, born in this country: Mary and Priscilla; according to the record of Mr. Wyman, Mary was the first wife of John Whittemore, and died June 27, 1677, having six children; Priscilla was the wife of Thomas Crosswell, and died a widow in 1717, having twelve children. Her gravestone records the age of Priscilla Crosswell as 75, and the date of her death as Dec. 8, 1717; this would make her birth in 1642.

It also appears that John Upham had an adopted son, whose name was John, as is shown by the following record, dated June 19, 1660, viz.:

"John Upham, of Malden, presenting to this court his request, referring to a lad 12 years of age, called John Upham, who being about 8 years since brought from the Island of Barbadoes fatherless and friendless, was by the magistrates committed to the said Upham's care and provision, he receiving with him only to the sum of £7, an inventory whereof he sayeth he then exhibited upon the registry at Cambridge. This court considering the premises, with the consent of the said John Upham, Jr., being present in court, do order," etc., etc.

This was probably the John Upham who was admitted freeman in 1688, as at that time he would have been about twenty-one years of age.

The end of this adopted son, as shown by p. 55, Middlesex Wills, Liber 5, was as follows: "John Upham, of Charlestown, being weak in body, but of good understanding, he desired that God would be merciful to his soul. He desired me, John Mousell, to see him decently interred, and to look after his estate for my daughter Elizabeth Mousell, his espoused wife. He deceased the 25th of Nov. 1677. His musket he gave to young Phineas Upham, son of the Lieutenant."

His gravestone, at Charlestown, shows the following record:

"John Upham died Nov. 25, 1677, Æ. 30." In the record of births and deaths, it is stated that he died of small-pox.

John Upham, Senior, died at Malden on the 25th of February, 1681. His gravestone may be still seen in the old burying-ground at Malden. It is very near to Bell Rock Station, on the Saugus branch of the Boston and Maine Railroad, Eastern Division. There are gravestones of several of his descendants, and name, also to be seen there, in a fair state of preservation. A street has been cut through a part of the ground, and it is probable that some of these graves have been obliterated in this way. The stone which marks the grave of John Upham has the following inscription:

“Here Lyes the body of John Upham, Aged 84, died

As already mentioned he was probably 81, rather than 84, at his death.

Dr. Albert G. Upham, in the “Notices of John Upham, and his Descendants,” pays the following tribute to his memory; a literal copy of which is here reproduced. In reading it it may be well to remember that it was written in 1845, and that Dr. Upham wrote without the benefit of the information which has since been obtained with reference to the Hull colony, and which appears in the previous pages of this book. It is possible that this additional knowledge might have made some slight difference—had he possessed it—in his references to the age of John Upham, and perhaps some other matters.

“The character of John Upham appears in a clear light from the facts recorded in the preceding pages. At the age of 38, within fifteen years of the first settlement of Plymouth, he sought an asylum for himself and family in this country. We thus see him in early manhood exhibiting his energy of character, and the clearness and vigor of his intellectual powers, in the act of resigning kindred, friends and country, for God and liberty. In this great act his spirit bears witness of itself. In addition to this, we find him, on his arrival here, approved by his countrymen, as he was the same year chosen a delegate to their highest Assembly, and for six different sessions continued their representative, when fearless piety, integrity and wisdom were regarded as essential to office. On his removal to Malden, thirteen years afterwards, he became at once, and continued through life, a leading citizen of that town, and was repeatedly elected to various offices in their gift. The General Assembly also manifest a corresponding confidence in him, by appointing him six time Commissioner to settle the lesser legal matters of Weymouth and Malden.

“During the short period that the town records are extant, it appears that he was eight years selectman, and three years moderator of the town meetings. He was a commissioner to treat with the Indians, and was a pioneer, not only in the first settlement of Weymouth and Malden, but actively interested in the settlement of Worcester.

“It will likewise be seen, from the frequency with which he was called to settle estates, and to manage the affairs of widows and orphans, that he was esteemed a man of carefulness and kindness in the discharge of those important trusts.

“Finally, the Church, in a highly religious community, setteth its seal the seal of her testimony upon him, by selecting him for the office of Deacon,—which office he held for at least twenty-four years.

“His sons he educated for the service of his country: the one became a minister of the gospel, the other an officer in the army. In all his domestic relations there is reason to believe him a man esteemed and beloved.

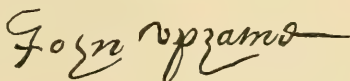

“Nature seems to have endowed him with a vigorous constitution; for, at the age of 83, but a few months before his decease, he discharged the laborious duties of moderator, thus showing that he enjoyed at that time full activity of mind and body.

“We need only add that, through his long life, matured by an experience of thirty-eight years in England, and forty-six in this country, in times which drew largely on the intellect and energy of men, he appears to have sustained himself well, as a strong man and respected citizen, and to have been an efficient co-laborer among those who, in times of peril, laid the foundations of a free State.

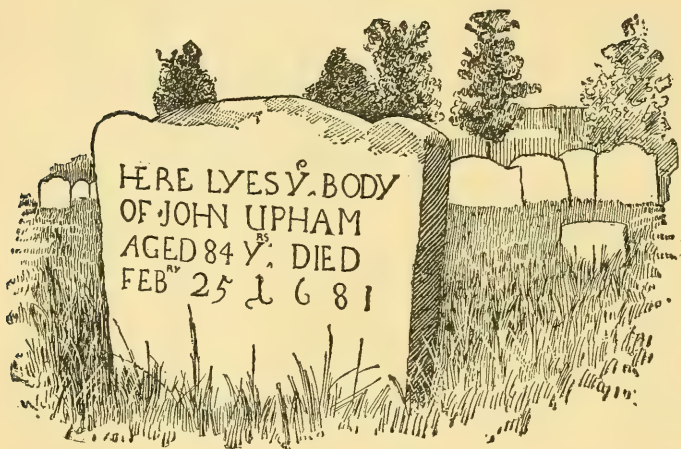

"Actis Ævum Implet.

"His descendants, for eight generations, in peace and honor, have lived protected and blessed by the institutions and principles for which he labored; and the effect of his instructions and example, through successive generations, is doubtless not without its influence on them to the present day. They owe a debt of gratitude to his memory, and should sacredly preserve the evidence that remains of him in the imperfect records of his times, as honorable testimonials of their PIONEER ANCESTOR TO THE NEW WORLD."

AT THE GRAVE OF OUR ANCESTOR.

The following lines are from the pen of the Rev. Dr. James Upham, of Chelsea, Mass. (No. 283, in the series of heads of families) :

We come, O common father,
To lay our tribute here,
A living band of pilgrims,
That hold thy memory dear.

From eastern coast to western
We bear thy honored name,
While countless now in heaven
Bore and revered the same.

The common blood within us
We prize with lofty pride,
Nor envy royal kinship
Or royal wealth beside.

But thy whole noble manhood
At higher price we rate—
Thyself, so pure and honest,
In home and church and State.

We rise and call thee blessed
With grateful, filial love,
And hope thy steps to follow
To the great home above.

Ho, to our coming brothers
As the long ages move!
Ye have a worthy sire,
Let none unworthy prove.

Chelsea, Mass.

JAMES UPHAM.

LIEUTENANT PHINEAS UPHAM.

2. Lieutenant Phineas Upham (John), of Malden, Mass., was the only son of John Upham that left posterity; consequently he, as well as his father, was the ancestor of all the American Uphams. He has always been known as Lieutenant Phineas, for the reason that he held that rank, and rendered important service in the Indian war with King Philip, as will be later shown. It is probably safe to conclude—for reasons already given—that he was born in 1635, and at Weymouth; besides the reasons mentioned, it also appears that on the 21st of December, 1671, while giving his testimony before a civil magistrate, he stated his age as thirty-six; all these facts would establish his birth at some date in the year 1635, though no record of it has been found.

The following is a record of his marriage, which appears to have taken place when he was twenty-three years of age, and on the 14th of April, 1658, as per Middlesex Wills, Liber I, p. 24, viz.:

“Phineas Upham and Ruth Wood, 14 d. 2 m. '58,—by me, Richard Russell.”

In 1663, the records at Malden show that a lot of land was conveyed to him; also that there was another lot of land conveyed to him in 1664. In 1688 he was appointed an appraiser of a certain piece of property. In 1671 a deposition was taken by him, on the 21st of December—already referred to, viz.:

“I Phineas Upham, aged 36, testify and say, that sometime in the 7 month of this year, I being occasionally with our select men, and they having called John Pemberton before them, did reprove him for mis-spending his time, and for other misdemeanors," etc. He was constable for that year. In the next year, 1672, there was another conveyance of land to him.

In 1673 he was appointed with three others to survey a road from Cambridge to Malden. In 1674 his name is signed to two inventories made by him, and to a petition in regard to lands in Worcester; he was also on a committee to alter highways, in April of that year.

As early as 1672, he was interested in the settlement of the town of Worcester, which fact appears from the following extract from Lincoln's History of Worcester :

"A lot granted to Phineas Upham, July 8th, 1673, was now described and located; and although it should contain more than fifty acres, yet the committee have confirmed it to him for a fifty acre lot, more or less; and this they did, upon a rule of equity, in consideration of the labor, travel and activity of the said Upham, from time to time, in furthering, advancing and encouraging the settlement of the plantation.

"In April, 1675, the lot of fifty acres, granted to Phineas Upham, of Malden, was surveyed, confirmed and recorded, and it was described as lying in the west squadron, or division, on the south side of the country road."

The author of the History of Worcester, in speaking of the progress of that settlement, states that "Ephraim Curtis, who had already built; Thomas Hall, Simon Meyling, Phineas Upham," etc., "had arrived in the month of April, 1765." It seems, however, that in June of that year—as per the Supreme Court Records—Phineas Upham was one of the jury for trials in the court held at Charlestown.

About this time he must have received a commission as a lieutenant, though the record of his appointment has not been found. He certainly held that rank as early as September, 1675, which is proven by the following extract from a postscript of a letter to Major John Pynchon, dated Sept. 4, 1675:

“Sir: We have ordered Lieut. Upham to lead up to you thirty men; and do farther order that Lieut. Seill be dismissed home to his family, and his soldiers to make up ye companies as the chief commander shall order, and the above named Lieut. Upham to be under Captain Wayte.” (Military Records, Liber I, p. 280.)

He could not have been for a very long time under the command of Captain Wayte, for twenty days later — on the 24th of September, the same year — he was on his march into the Nipmuck country, in company with Captain Gorham, one of the Plymouth officers. The account of this expedition is contained in a letter from Lieut. Upham, on file in the Military Records, Lib. I, p. 276, viz.:

“From Mendon, ye 1st of Octobr, 1675.

“Honor’d Gouvner and Counsell,

“These are to certify to your worships that Capt. Gorum with myself, and our soldiers of both companies are in good health at prest. through mercy; and to give your honors an account of our severall marches: First, we marched to Mendon on the sixth day of the week at night, being the 24th of Sept.; and, on the 25th day, we marched from Mendon in to Hassanamissit, (now Grafton,) hoping there to have had an Indian for our guide, but the Indians were all gone from thence, and we were thereby disappointed of our expectations; and on the next day we marched unto Pakachoug, (now Worcester,) where we found a field of good corn, and well formed, which we did think convenient not to destroy, concluding that, for aught we knew, some of the nearest found inhabitants would be willing to save it; but we could not find any Indians, neither the sign of any being there of late, and we marched from thence unto Manchang (now Oxford), and Chabanamagum (now Dudley), where we found some cornfields and some wigwams, which corn and wigwams we burnt and destroyed, but could not find our enemies, which was a great discouragement to us, having taken so much pains to find them. Then we returned and marched to an Indian plantation called Shockologaud, where we could not find any Indians, but found a quantity of good corn, which we did not destroy, but reserved it at the request of some of Mendon, who thought to fetch it home for their own use, and from thence we came to Mendon on the 30th of Sept.

“Now, seeing in all our marches we find no Indians, we verily think they are drawn together into great bodies far remote from these parts. If your honors please to send us on any farther service, I hope we shall not be unwilling, but forward to do our uttermost endeavors, withall desiring that you should be pleased to add to our numbers, seeing that besides the garrison men which must be left here in the garrison, we have but thirty men besides myself, — Capt. Gorum being now on his march to Mount Hope, and, if we go farther, we desire we may have a surgeon, and some other that may be acquainted with the woods where you may send us — the want of which has been a discouragement to our men.

“And as for the town of Mendon I am desired to commend the desolate condition of them unto your honors, several of their inhabitants being removed from them, and those in garrison being but poor helps, and in number but twelve men, with their arms very defective. The plantation is very remote, and therefore so much the more stands in need of help. It is likely to be a prosperous place, if it please God to put an issue to this trouble, and therefore it is more the pitty to have it deserted by the people, who think it must be, if they have not some assistance. They hope that twenty men, well fitted with their own resources, might be sufficient, if your honors so cause; and farther, they desire to acquaint your honors that ye Indians of Hassanamissett, which your honors appointed to sit down with them, have deserted their own town, and so came not to Mendon; and so, not having any more to trouble your honors withall, I rest,

“Your humble to command,

“PHINEAS UPHAM, Leftenant.”

From this it is shown that Lieut. Upham was at Mendon on the 1st of October; and about the 9th of the same month he was with Major Appleton who had just succeeded Major Pynchon in the command of the Massachusetts troops, as appears from the following from an extract from a letter written by that officer — the date and place not given — “Yours by Lieut. Upham I received, as also yours of the Oct. 9th," etc. Farther on in the same letter he says, "there be now come in sixty men under Capt. Pool and Lieut. Upham," etc.

He is again mentioned as one of the signers to petition drawn up by the officers of the army, and dated Dec. 4, 1675, but the place is not stated. His name also occurs in a letter dated in November, 1675, written by order of the General Court to Major Appleton, in which the latter is reprimanded for having exceeded his authority by "constituting Mr. Pool to be captain in the company whereof Lieut. Upham is Lieutenant." He was assigned to Captain Johnson's company soon after this, as appears by the following petition: "Captain Johnson humbly desires yt his brother, Humphrey Johnson, (whom he pitched on for his lieutenant, and they, i. e., the Court, choosing whom they pleased, he most readily submitted to the Court's choice of Lieut. Upham), may be dismissed, and not suffer by his (encouragement) that he should be his lieutenant." From this time he served with Captain Johnson's company.

The Rev. George M. Bodge has published an interesting account of the "Soldiers in King Philip's War," in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, beginning in the January, 1883, number of that publication, and extending through a series of many succeeding numbers; and in this there are several incidental references to Lieutenant Upham.

This war began in 1675, and lasted three years; the first troops being levied on June 24, 1675, when the news of the attack of the Indians on Swansey reached Boston. With reference to the preparations and march against the Narragansetts, Mr. Bodge says: "After their somewhat disastrous campaign of the early autumn of 1675 in the western part of the colony of Massachusetts, the United Colonies, upon information that the hostile Indians with Philip were retiring towards the south and to winter quarters among the Narragansetts, determined to carry the war against this powerful tribe, who for some time had shown themselves actively hostile. The veteran troops were recalled and reorganized; small towns in various parts of the colonies were garrisoned, and an army of one thousand men was equipped for a winter campaign. General Josiah Winslow, Governor of Plymouth Colony, was appointed commander-in-chief of the army; Major Samuel Appleton to the command of the Massachusetts regiment, Major William Bradford that of Plymouth, and Major Robert Treat that of Connecticut. War was formally declared against the Narragansetts on the 2d of November, 1675, in a meeting of the Commissioners of the United Colonies held at Boston that day."

General Winslow assumed command of the Massachusetts forces on the 9th of December, 1675; they were drawn up on Dedham Plain, where they were formally delivered to him by Maj.-Gen. Denison. To the soldiers a proclamation was made at the time on the part of the Massachusetts Council, that "if they played the man, took the Fort, and Drove the Enemy out of the Narragansett Country, which was their seat, that they should have a gratuity besides their wages.*" On the afternoon of the same day they marched twenty-seven miles to Woodcock's Garrison — now Attleboro. In the evening of Friday, Dec. 10th, they arrived at Seekonk. From Seekonk a portion of the command proceeded by water; the rest of the troops "ferried over the water at Providence," and probably formed a junction with the main part of the Plymouth regiment at Providence on the 11th. On the 12th, the troops crossed the Pautuxet river, and reached Wickford on the 13th, where those who had gone by water from Seekonk had already arrived; the same day one of the companies captured 36 Indians. At Wickford there was a garrison house, and on the 14th, the whole command, excepting one company which was left behind to keep the garrison, moved through the neighboring country to the westward, where they burned the village of the sachem "Ahmus," destroying 150 wigwams, killing 7, and capturing 9 Indians. Scouting in the vicinity was continued with more or less effect on the day following. The country through which the troops passed seems to have been pretty thoroughly scouted by detachments from the main command as it moved, so that on the 15th, they had captured or killed in all 50 persons, and had at that time 40 prisoners, — two days later 47 captives were disposed of. On the 18th the march was resumed, a small garrison remaining as a guard to the supplies at Wickford, and the troops reached Pettisquamscot in the evening, where they found the Connecticut troops, who had preceded them; these troops consisted of about 300 Englishmen and 150 Mohegan Indians. Here the strong stone garrison-house they had hoped to occupy, was in ruins, having been recently destroyed by the Indians; a fact which had been discovered the day before by Captain Prentice, who had scouted the country in that direction with his cavalry troop. This was a great disappointment, and increased the hardship they had to endure. In a severe snow storm, the whole force of about one thousand men encamped in an open field through an intensely cold night. On Sunday morning, Dec. 19, before day-break, the whole force moved toward the enemy's stronghold, wading through the snow fourteen or fifteen inches deep.

The following shows the organization of the command as it moved out on that Sunday morning. Mr. Bodge — who prepared it — says it was “gleaned from all available sources.” He thinks, however, that there were other officers — principally medical officers — who went on to the field that day; but their names are not attested, as these are, by the accounts of the treasurer.

Of the troops of Massachusetts, the quota was 527; the number actually impressed was 540, including troopers 75. The returns made at Dedham Plain give 465 foot, troopers 73. The Connecticut quota was 315, and there was also a company of Indians, 150. Plymouth's quota was 158.

THE STORMING OF FORT CANONICUS OR THE BATTLE AT THE GREAT SWAMP FORT.

The following is Mr. Bodge's account of this engagement as it appeared in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for January, 1886:

About one o'clock, P. M., the army came upon the enemy at the edge of the swamp, in the midst of which the Indian fortress was built, the Massachusetts regiment leading in the march, Plymouth next, and Connecticut bringing up the rear. Of the Massachusetts troops, Captains Mosely and Davenport led the van and came first upon the Indians, and immediately opened fire on them — thus at the beginning gaining the important advantage of the first fire, which the Indians had almost always gained and made so deadly by deliberate volleys from ambush, as they doubtless purposed now. The Indians returned the fire with an ineffectual volley, and then fled into the swamp closely pursued by the foremost companies, who did not wait for the word of command, or stand upon the "order of their going," until they reached the fortifications within which the Indians hastily betook themselves.

This fort was situated upon an island of some five or six acres in the midst of a cedar swamp, which was impassable except to the Indians by their accustomed paths, and now made passable only by the severe cold of the previous day and night. It is probable that the Indians depended principally on this swamp to protect them, though their defenses are described as having been of considerable strength. A portion of the high ground had been inclosed, and from a careful comparison of the most reliable accounts, it seems that the fortifications were well planned, probably by the Englishman, Joshua Tefte, or Tift, as Mr. Dudley calls him. Mr. Hubbard says: "The Fort was raised upon a Kind of Island of five or six acres of rising Land in the midst of a swamp; the sides of it were made of Palisadoes set upright, the which was compassed about with a Hedg of almost a rod in Thickness." A cotemporary writer (whose account was published in London, and is reprinted in Mr. Drake's publication called the "Old Indian Chronicle") says: "In the midst of the Swamp was a piece of firm Land, of about three or four Acres, whereon the Indians had built a kind of a Fort, being palisadoed round, and within that a clay Wall, as also felled down abundance of trees to lay quite round the said Fort, but they had not quite finished their Work." It is evident from these, the only detailed accounts, and from some casual references, that the works were rude and incomplete, but would have been almost impregnable to our troops had not the swamp been frozen. At the corners and exposed portions, rude block-houses and flankers had been built, from which a raking fire could be poured upon an attacking force. Either by chance, or by the skill of Peter, their Indian guide, the English seem to have come upon a point of the fort where the Indians did not expect them. Mr. Church, in relating the circumstances of Capt. Gardiner's death, says that he was shot from that side "next the upland where the English entered the swamp." The place where he fell was at the "east end of the fort." The tradition that the English approached the swamp by the rising land in front of the "Judge Merchant" house, thus seems confirmed. This "upland" lies about north of the battle-field.

Our van pursued those of the enemy who first met them so closely that they were led straight to the entrance used by the Indians themselves, perhaps by their design then to attract attention from an exposed part of their works a short distance away. The passage left by the Indians for their own use, as before mentioned, was by a long tree over a "place of water," across which but one man might pass at a time, "and which was so waylaid that they would have been cut off had they ventured." Mr. Hubbard counts among the fortunate circumstances of that day that the troops did not attempt to carry this point, and that they discovered the only assailable point a little farther on. This was at a corner of the fort where was a large unfinished gap, where neither palisades nor abattis, or "hedge," had been placed, but only a long tree had been laid across about five feet from the ground, to fill the gap, and might be easily passed; only that the block-house right opposite this gap and the flankers at the sides were finished, from which a galling fire might sweep and enfilade the passage. Mr. Hubbard's account is very clear about this, yet several writers have sadly confused matters, and describe the first as the point of assault.

It seems that the companies of Captains Davenport and Johnson came first to the place, and at once charged through the gap and over the log at the head of their companies, but Johnson fell dead at the log, and Davenport a little within the fort, and their men were met by so fierce a fire that they were forced to retire again and fall upon their faces to avoid the fury of the musketry till it should somewhat abate. (Captain Johnson being thus killed at the very beginning of the attack, and Lieutenant Upham being next in rank in that company, of course the latter commanded his company from that time, or until he was also wounded. — F. K. U.) Mosely and Gardiner, pressing to their assistance, met a similar reception, losing heavily, till they too fell back with the others, until Major Appleton coming up with his own and Captain Oliver's men, massed his entire force as a storming column, and it is said that the shout of one of the commanders that the Indians were running, so inspired the soldiers that they made an impetuous assault, carried the entrance again, beat the enemy from one of his flankers at the left, which afforded them a temporary shelter from the Indians still holding the block-house opposite the entrance. In the meantime, the general, holding the Plymouth forces in reserve, pushed forward the Connecticut troops, who not being aware of the extent of the danger from the block-house, suffered fearfully at their first entrance, but charged forward gallantly, though some of their brave officers and many of their comrades lay dead behind them, and unknown numbers and dangers before. The forces now joining beat the enemy step by step, and with fierce fighting, out of their block-houses and various fortifications. Many of the Indians driven from their works fled outside, some doubtless to the wigwams inside, of which there were said to be upward of five hundred, many of them large and rendered bullet-proof by large quantities of grain in tubs and bags placed along the sides. In these many of their old people and their women and children had gathered for safety, and behind and within these as defenses the Indians still kept up a skulking fight, picking off our men. After three hours' hard fighting, with many of the officers and men wounded or dead, a treacherous enemy of unknown numbers and resources lurking in the surrounding forests, and the night coming on, word came to fire the wigwams, and the battle became a fearful holocaust, great numbers of those who had taken refuge therein being burned.

The fight had now raged for nearly three hours with dreadful carnage in proportion to the numbers engaged. It is not certain at just what point the Plymouth forces were pushed forward, but most likely after the works were carried, and the foremost, exhausted, retired for a time bearing their dead and wounded to the rear; but we are assured that all took part in the engagement, coming on in turn as needed. It is doubtful if the cavalry crossed the swamp, but were rather held in reserve and as scouts to cover the rear and prevent surprise from any outside parties.

When now the fortress and its contents were burning and destruction assured, our soldiers hastily gathered their wounded and as many as possible of their dead, and formed their shattered column for the long and weary march back to Wickford.

Reliable details of this battle are few, and only gleaned from casual references here and there, and thus many who have sought to write upon the matter, have quoted in full the story of Benjamin Church, who relates his own experience, and draws out his personal reminiscences with all an old man's fondness for his deeds of "long ago." The very small part he took in this battle is evident even from his own story, and from the utter silence of other writers, especially Mr. Hubbard, who knew Church, and commends him highly for his exploits in the Mount Hope campaign. No one can doubt the ability or courage of Mr. Church, but his part in this battle was simply that when the fort was carried and the fighting nearly over, he went, with some thirty others, into and through the fort and out into the swamp upon the trail of the retreating foe, discovered, ambushed and scattered a skulking party of them returning to the attack, chased a few of them into the fort among the huts, and was himself severely wounded by them when thus brought to bay.

I wish here to record my protest against the unjust, often weak, and always inconsiderate, criticism bestowed upon our leaders in this campaign, and especially in this battle, for their lack of foresight in abandoning the shelter and provisions of the fort, their sacrifice of the lives of our wounded men through their removal, and the dangers and fatigues of the long march, and their inhumanity in burning the helpless and innocent in their huts and wigwams.

It is well to remember at the start, that many of the wisest, ablest and bravest men of the three colonies were the leaders in this affair. A noble commander, wise and brave, reverend ministers, by no means backward with their opinions; the most prominent and skillful surgeons the country afforded; veteran majors and captains of Massachusetts and Connecticut, with their veteran soldiers fresh from the severe experiences in the western campaign, inured to danger and experienced in Indian wiles and deceptions; against all these we have recorded only the remonstrance of

Mr. Church, who up to that time, at least, had experience in Indian warfare only as a scout, and the record we have of any protest by him was made many years after the affair. And, again, from the standpoint of their conditions as nearly as we can now judge, it seems that their hasty retreat was wise. They were some sixteen miles from their base of supplies at Wickford (it is doubtful if they had noticed the Indian supplies until the burning began). There was no way of reaching their provisions and ammunition at Wickford except by detaching a portion of their force now reduced greatly by death, wounds and exposure. The number of Indians that had escaped, and were still in the woods close at hand, were unknown, but supposed to be several thousand, with report of a thousand in reserve about a mile distant. These were now scattered and demoralized, but in a few hours might rally and fall upon the fort, put our troops, in their weakened condition, upon the defensive, and make their retreat from the swamp extremely difficult if not utterly impossible, incumbered as they would be by the wounded, whose swollen and stiffened wounds in a few hours would render removal doubly painful and dangerous. Added to this was the chance of an attack upon the garrison at Wickford, and the dread of the midnight ambushade, which every hour's delay made more likely and would render more dangerous. Thus it seems to me that from a standpoint of military strategy, the immediate retreat to Wickford was best. As to humanity, we must remember the harsh times in which they were living, the contempt in which the Indians were held — first, as heathen, against whom war was righteous; second, as idle and treacherous vagabonds, with no rights which honest industry was bound to respect; third, as deadly enemies, lying in wait to plunder, burn and destroy. Moreover, the very life of the colonies was threatened by this war; many thriving hamlets were already in ashes; hundreds of families were broken up and scattered up and down, with the loss of all; fathers, husbands and brothers slain or in captivity, farms and homes laid waste, whole communities huddled in wretched block-houses, while the "reign of terror" swept them. Brookfield, "Beer's Plain," and "Bloody-Brook," with their outrage and carnage, were fresh in mind, and a few days before, the destruction and massacre at Pettisquamscot; while even here at their feet were their dead and dying comrades and beloved officers. Is it strange that they were cruel, when now for the first time they came face to face with the authors of all their troubles in a fair fight? By any candid student of history I believe this must be classed as one of the most glorious victories ever achieved in our history, and considering conditions, as displaying heroism, both in stubborn patience and dashing intrepidity, never excelled in American warfare.

Of the details of the march back to Wickford very little is known; through a bitter cold winter's night, in a blinding snow-storm, carrying two hundred and ten of their wounded and dead, these soldiers, who had marched from dawn till high noon, had engaged in a desperate life-and-death struggle from noon to sunset, now plodded sturdily back to their quarters of the day before, through deepening snows and over unbroken roads. The general and staff, with their escort, got separated from the main column, lost their way and wandered about till 7 o'clock next morning, while the main body reached their quarters at 2 o'clock.*

Dead and Wounded.

By Captain Oliver's letter, written a little more than a month afterward from the seat of war, and considered official, we learn that up to that time the dead numbered about sixty-eight, and the wounded one hundred and fifty, in the whole army. Eight of the dead were left in the fort, and twelve more were dead when they started back to Wickford. Twenty-two died on the march, and before the next day, Monday, Dec. 20, when they buried thirty-four in one grave, and six more within two days, eight died at Rhode Island, and three others, making in all fifty-nine, if we reckon the

*It has been estimated that these troops — besides fighting the Indians from noon till sunset — had marched thirty-three or thirty-four miles, through the deep snow, and in a snow-storm; all of which was accomplished within about twenty-one hours. The roundabout route over which they marched from Pettisquamscot to the battle-field is estimated at fifteen or sixteen miles, though it is about seven only in a straight line; and thence to Wickford, after the fight, eighteen miles.

twelve carried from the fort as a part of the thirty-four buried Dec. 20; otherwise, seventy-one. But the first estimate of sixty-eight is satisfied if we add the twenty killed at the fort to those buried at Wickford and Rhode Island, and conclude that the twelve taken from the fort were buried somewhere on the march.

Of the Massachusetts losses we are not left in doubt, since there is still preserved in the archives a full and official return, which Mr. Hubbard gives substantially, adding to the wounded probably those whose wounds were slight and not reported at the time, and with some modifications to the list of the dead, though with the same total.

The official list of the killed and wounded in the battle, including three of Capt. Gardiner's men killed previous to the battle, is dated January 6, 1675, and entitled:

A list of Major Saml Appleton souldjers yt were slayne & wounded the 19th Decemb. '75, at the Indians fort at Narraganset.

(Mass. Archives, Vol. 68, p. 104.)

Of the officers, Capts. Davenport, Johnson and Gardiner were killed, and Lieutenants Upham, Savage, Swain and Ting were wounded.

Of the Connecticut troops, seventy-one were killed and wounded according to Hubbard; and according to the eminent historian of Connecticut, Dr. Benj. Trumbull, seventy.

Major Treat, by tradition, is said to have been the last man to leave the fort, commanding the rear guard of the army; and of his captains, Gallop, Marshall and Seely were killed, and Capt. Mason mortally wounded.

Of the Plymouth forces, Major Bradford, commander, and Benjamin Church of the general's staff were severely wounded, and of the soldiers the killed and wounded in both companies were twenty, by best accounts.

The grave of the forty buried at Wickford was marked by a tree called the "grave appletree" which was blown down in the gale of September, 1815. The wounded were sent to Rhode Island, and well cared for.

Of the losses by the enemy there can be no reliable account. Capt. Oliver says: "By the best intelligence we killed three hundred fighting men, and took say three hundred and fifty and above three hundred women and children." Mr. Dudley, two days after the fight, reckons about two hundred; Capt. Mosely counted sixty-four in one corner of the fort; and Capt. Gorham made an estimate of at least one hundred and fifty. The desperate strait of the Indians is shown by their leaving the dead in their flight. Indian prisoners afterward reported seven hundred killed.*

The conduct of the Mohegan and Pequod allies is represented by Capt. Oliver as false, they firing in the air, but securing much plunder.

This ends Mr. Bodge's account of this famous Indian battle. Of the ground upon which it was fought, he says: "Saving the changes incident upon the clearing and cultivation of the contiguous land, the place could be easily identified as a battle-field, even if its location were not put beyond question by traditions and also relics found from time to time upon the place. It is now, as then, an 'island of four or five acres,' surrounded by swampy land, overflowed except in the driest part of the year. The island was cleared and plowed about 1775, and at that time many bullets

*In the letter written by Mr. Joseph Dudley, two days after the fight — and which also appears in connection with Mr. Bodge's account — he says: "A captive woman, well known to Mr. Smith, informing that there were three thousand five hundred men engaging us and about a mile distant a thousand in reserve, to whom if God had so pleased, we had been but a morsel, after so much disablement: she informeth, that one of their Sagamores was slain and their powder spent, causing their retreat, and that they were in a distressed condition for food and houses, that one Joshua Tift, an Englishman, is their encourager and conductor.

were found deeply bedded in the large trees; quantities of charred corn were plowed up in the different places, and it is said that Dutch spoons, arrow-heads, etc., have been found here at different times. There is no monument to mark this site of one of the most brilliant victories in American warfare. The place is now owned by the Hon. J. G. Clarke, of West Kingston, R. I."

Knowing that Lieutenant Upham was among those who were wounded in this battle, we know also that he must have been one of those who were carried that night from the battle-field to Wickford; he was accordingly at that place on the 20th of December. Of the character, or circumstances attending his wound, nothing is known, and probably never can be now; we only know that he did not recover from its effects.

After the return of the army to "Mr. Smith's Garrison," at Wickford, it is stated that the dead were buried, and the wounded removed to Rhode Island—the island in Narragansett Bay—after which several weeks were spent in "parleying with the enemy, watching and recruiting." The Connecticut troops withdrew, additional troops were sent from Boston, and Massachusetts and Plymouth held the field for a month longer. It is not quite clear from the account, whether all the wounded were sent at once to Rhode Island, as it would appear. Lieutenant Upham probably remained at Wickford for some time at all events, and it is certain he did not go to Rhode Island until the 6th of January, following, which fact is proven by the Massachusetts Archives (Vol. 68, p. 104), in mentioning the killed and wounded in Captain Johnson's company, thus: "Left. Phineas Upham of Malden wounded eight, and were sent to Road Island January 6th 1675-6." (Old style—the year beginning in March.)

How long Lieutenant Upham remained at Rhode Island is not known; it is probable that General Winslow left Wickford with his command, either on or about the 28th of January, and that they reached Boston about the 5th of February. On this march they were reduced to such straits that they killed and ate many of their horses, and the march itself was known as the "Hungry March." But whether they carried their wounded at this time does not appear; neither is there any thing to show how or when Lieutenant Upham returned to Massachusetts.

The next notice that has been found of him is that of his death, in October, 1676, as follows:

"Deaths in Malden."

"Phineas Upham, 8, '76."

This record undoubtedly refers to Lieutenant Phineas, for there was no other Phineas to whom it might refer; though — as Dr. Upham says in the Notices — in his will Lieutenant Phineas Upham is spoken of as being "at that time" (the time of making his will), "sick at Boston, where he deceased," etc. This statement is also confirmed on page 56 of Hubbard's Narrative. The record of his death, as given above, is from the Malden records of births, marriages and deaths — Liber 1, p. 1 — and is probably much more reliable than the references mentioned.

From what has been stated as to the evidences of the date of his birth, he must have been about forty-one years of age at his death. No stone bearing his name has been found among those of the other members of his family in the old cemetery at Malden. Recently, however, Mr. James B. Upham (No. 439), of the Youth's Companion, a resident of Malden, determined, if possible, to solve the question of his ancestor's last resting place. By the side of his wife's grave, he had the ground probed with a long iron rod, and became satisfied that there had once been a grave. By repeated trials its outlines were determined, which showed it to be that of a tall person. A number of articles were found in the layer of organic matter, silent witnesses of the robe in which it was formerly the custom to bury the dead. There plainly had been a body placed at a remote time, and its position, at the side of Mrs. Ruth Upham's grave, pointed it out as that of the grave of her husband, Lieut. Phineas Upham. It is probable that the widow, left with little means and a large family, was wholly unable to find means to pay for a stone, and the grave has until this day remained unmarked.

In the records of the fall term of the General Court for the same year, 1676, is found the following entry:

"In answer to the petition of Ruth Upham, widow and relict of the late Lieut. Phineas Upham, the Court judgeth it meet to order that the bills of charge to chirurgeons, doctors and diet, &c., mentioned in the said petition, be payed by the treasurer of the county; and in consideration of the long and good services her husband did for the country, and the great loss the widow sustains by his death, being left with seven small children, and not able to carry on their affairs, for the support of herself and family, do further order the treasurer of the county to pay unto the said widow ten pounds in, or as money." (Court Records, Liber 4, p. 105.)

With regard to the wife of Phineas Upham, not much has been learned. Her death is recorded on the Malden records, and her gravestone has been identified in the old burying ground already referred to, on which is the following inscription:

"Here lyes the body of Ruth Upham, aged 60 years: Died Jan. 18: 1696-7."

According to this she must have been born in 1636-7, and have been about the same age as her husband. Nothing is known of her ancestry, though as Dr. Upham suggests, from the similarity of names, she may have been the daughter of the persons named in the following: "Ruth Wood, wife of Edward, died at Charlestown, Aug. 20, 1642."

Dr. Upham closes his account of Lieutenant Phineas with the following remarks:

"It would seem that Lieutenant Phineas Upham possessed in a high degree that genius of enterprise so characteristic of his father. Worcester, called in his will 'Consugameg, alias Lydbury,' a fair and beautiful town, owes its foundation in no small degree, as it clearly appears, to his activity and energy.

"In the military service of his country it is manifest that he was esteemed a meritorious and efficient officer, having, in his short career, attracted the favorable notice of the government, and been once associated with an officer of the Plymouth colony in the command of a highly hazardous expedition into the enemy's country.

"In battle Lieutenant Upham exhibited the character of a brave man and patriot, purchasing with mortal wounds the palm of victory; and the government was not unmindful of his great sacrifice, but bore testimony upon the records 'to the long and good services he did to the country, and the great loss sustained by his friends in his death.'"

Lieutenant Phineas, above, and wife Ruth, had children, all born at Malden:

- 3 I Phineas, b. May 22, 1659. ✓
- 4 II Nathaniel, b. 1661. ✓
- III Ruth, b. 1664; d. Dec. 8, 1676.
- 5 IV John, b. Dec. 9, 1666; m. Abigail Hayward (or Howard).
- V Elizabeth, m. Samuel Green, Oct. 28, 1691.
- 6 VI Thomas, b. 1668.
- 7 VII Richard, b. 1675.

PHINEAS SECOND.

3. Phineas³ Upham (Phineas², John¹), of Malden, Mass., b. there May 22, 1659; m. Mary Mellins (prob. Mellen), as early as 1683 and probably in 1682. He has been known as Phineas Second, being the eldest son of Lieutenant Phineas. His father died when he was eighteen years old, leaving him the following property, as described in the will: "To his eldest son Phineas, he did give his new dwelling house, with the land belonging to it, and the meadow, and half the stock, when he should come of the age of one and twenty years." He was one of the selectmen of Malden for the years from 1692 to 1696, inclusive. He was town treasurer for the years from 1697 to 1701, inclusive; and during the same time was employed in the settlement of various estates. There are on record several inventories drawn up by him; one in 1693, one in 1697, one in 1698, one in 1699, two in 1700, etc. In 1697 he was on a committee for the partition of certain lands, and in 1699 was appointed a guardian. All of which items appear on the records at Malden. He was chosen representative to the General Court from Malden in 1701, as appears from the following extract from records of that court:

"May 25th, 1701. His honor, the Lieutenant Governor, being informed that the representatives were come to the chamber, he ordered Col. John Pincheon, and Elisha Cook, Esq., of the Council, and the Secretary, to administer unto them the oath appointed by act of Parliament to be taken, instead of the oath of allegiance and supremacy, and to cause them to repeat and subscribe the declaration in said act, and also to sign the association, that so they might be qualified to proceed to the choice of a speaker," etc.

Among the names of the representatives returned to serve for the several towns is the following:

"For Malden, Mr. Phineas Upham."

He held the same office in 1702, as appears by the record of the session of the court, in May of that year. He was also one of the selectmen at Malden for 1701 and 1702, and for 1703 and 1704.

In 1705, his name was again among the representatives, as the following shows:

"Anno regni Annæ Reginæ Quarto."

"At a Great and General Court holden at Boston, on Wednesday, the 13th day of May, 1705. Names of the Representatives returned. County of Middlesex."

"Malden, Mr. Phineas Upham."

He was again selectman for the years 1709 and 1710, at which time he is called Deacon. For the years 1711, 1714 and 1715, he was moderator of the town meeting. In May, 1716, he was again chosen representative, and in 1717, was moderator and selectman.

He was chosen representative for the fifth time, in May, 1718.

The gravestone of Phineas Upham, Second, is still standing in the old burying-ground at Malden, and has the following inscription:

"HERE LYES YE BODY OF DEACON PHINEAS UPHAM.
DIED OCT. 1720, IN YE 62 Year OF HIS AGE."

His wife survived him, and was living in November, 1720, at which time she appeared before the magistrate, where she declared herself content with her legacy. There is no record of her death.

Phineas, above, and wife Mary, had:

- 8 I Phineas, b. June 10, 1682.
- II Mary, b. 1685; d. Aug. 20, 1687.
- 9 III James, b. 1687.
- IV Mary, b. 1689; m. May 28, 1713, John Griffin, of Charlestown, and moved to Middleton, Conn.
- 10 V Ebenezer, m. Elizabeth Blanchard, Oct. 10, 1717.
- 11 VI Jonathan, b. 1694; of Nantucket.
- 12 VII William, b. Oct. 30, 1697.
- VIII Elizabeth, b. 1699 or 1700; m. Jonathan Dowse, Jr., May 19, 1726, and d. in Charlestown, June 19, 1730.

5. John³ Upham (Phineas², John¹), of Malden, Mass., b. there Dec. 9, 1666; m. Abigail Hayward (in one account it is written Howard), 1688, dau. of Samuel; she d. Aug. 23, 1717, and he m. 2d, Tamzen Ong, 1717-18. He d. at Malden, June 9, 1733. They had:

15 I John, b. 1690.

16 II Samuel, b. 1691.

III Abigail, b. 1698.

17 IV Ezekiel, b. 1700.

18 V David, b. 1702.

VI Jacob, b. 1719; d. in infancy.

6. Thomas³ Upham (Phineas², John¹), of Reading, Mass., b. in Malden, 1668; m. Elizabeth Hovey, of Topsfield, 1693, who d. æ. 32, Feb. 16, 1703-4; m. (2) Mary Brown, of Reading, Oct. 2, 1704, who d. 1707; m. (3) Ruth (widow of John Smith, of Charlestown), b. 1688, dau. of Thomas Cutler, of Reading (a descendant of John of Hingham, 1637). She d. May 17, 1758, in 70th year. Thomas Upham owned land at Reading, and was probably one of the early types of a New England farmer. Though he is mentioned as "of Reading," it is not probable that he moved from the original location of the family at Malden, as the History of Reading says : "The north part of Malden, including ten families, was annexed to Reading in 1727. This annexation included the Green, Upham, and Evans families, with their farms, and was that part which is now Greenwood, that was situated southerly of the old Smith farms." The Reading records also show : "1726. The town voted that upon the petition of our neighbors in the north end of Malden, Richard Upham and William Green representing them," etc. He d. in his 67th year, as appears from his gravestone, which is still standing at Wakefield (formerly Reading) viz.:

Here lyes ye body of
Mr. Thomas Upham, who died
Nov. ye 26, 1735, in ye
67 year of his age.

Thomas Upham and his three wives had:

- 19 I Thomas, b. 1694; baptized at Topsfield, Nov. 18.
- II Elizabeth, b. 1695; m. Joseph Woolson, 1726.
- 20 III Abijah, b. 1698.
- 21 IV Nathan, b. 1701.
- 22 V Josiah, b. 1705; son of 2d wife.
- 23 VI Joseph, b. April 14, 1712, bapt. July 26; son of 3d wife.

7. Richard³ Upham (Phineas², John¹), of Reading, Mass., b. in Malden, 1675; m. Abigail Hovey, of Topsfield, May 19, 1698, who d. in 85th year, Sept. 1, 1764. Like his brother Thomas, and as already explained, he owned land which was originally a part of Malden, but in 1727 became a part of Reading, on the petition of Richard Upham and others—which part afterward was in Greenwood. He purchased land in Thompson, Conn., of Isaac Jewett, in 1726, and conveyed the same, and other subsequent purchases to his son Ivory. He was a farmer. In 1733 he was one of a committee to treat with Mr. Hobbs—the minister. He is mentioned in the History of Reading thus : "1734. Richard Upham whom Parson Hobbs calls a saint indeed, died this year, of strangury." He d. as per church record, "May 18, 1734, in 59 year of stranguary, a saint indeed." Gravestone at South Reading. Richard Upham and wife Abigail had :

- I Richard ; d. 1700.
- 24 II Ivory, b. 1701. ✓
- III Abigail, b. 1703; d. Jan. 7, 1713-4.
- IV Dorcas, b. 1707; d. Jan. 22, 1715-6.
- V Hepzibah, b. 1710-11; m. Nathaniel Longley, of Dorchester, Jan. 29, 1756.
- VI Mary; "spinster," of Malden.
- VII Ruth, b. 1714; bapt. Dec. 6; d. July 7, 1769.
- 25 VIII Richard, b. 1716; bapt. Dec. 9.
- IX Luke, b. 1719; bapt. March 29; prob. d. young.
- X Luke, b. 1721; d. April 23, 1731.
- XI Abigail, b. 1721; d. Nov., 1738.
- XII Susanna; m. Ephraim Weston, Dec. 5, 1748.

PHINEAS THIRD.

8. Phineas⁴ Upham (Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Malden, Mass., b. there June 10, 1682; m. by Mr. Wigglesworth, Nov. 23, 1703, Tamzen (Thomasin) Hill, dau. of Isaac and Sarah (Bicknell) Hill, b. Dec. 10, 1685, who d. Apr. 24, 1768. He is early mentioned as yeoman, and soon after his marriage he moved from what was known as Malden Center to North Malden, of which place he was one of the first inhabitants. In the year 1707-8, he is mentioned as "Ensign Phineas Upham," and was that year chosen a selectman, as he was also the following year, and the year 1709-10. In 1711-12, he was assessor. For the years 1725, 1726, 1728, 1729 and 1730, he was chosen moderator of the town meetings. He was again moderator for the years 1748 and 1752. His name also appears on the records as witness to various legal documents, as the will of Lazarus Grover, in May, 1715; and in 1716, the will of Nathaniel Upham is witnessed by both the second and third Phineas Upham.

His will was made in the year 1751, and as this document was lodged in the probate office the 29th of April, 1766, it is probable that his death occurred that year; in this case he was in his 84th year at the time of his death. His wife died two years later, at the age of 83.

In the Notices, Dr. Upham says: "Mr. John Edmonds, of Malden, an old soldier, now" (1845), "89 years of age, informs me that when a boy he often saw Phineas Upham. He states that he was of medium height; his hair abundant, but of pure white, and his costume that of his times, viz.—breeches, cocked hat, &c. He used to walk about the village with the assistance of an ivory-headed cane, and he had a favorite seat beneath a wide-spreading tree, where he was often seen reposing. He 'valued himself,' says Mr. Edmonds, 'on his French blood.'"

Phineas Upham and his wife, Tamzen, had:

I Tabitha, b. Dec. 11, 1704; m. Daniel Newhall, 1728.

II Mary, b. Mar. 5, 1706; m. Capt. Daniel Goff, of Boston, 1740.

26 III Phineas, b. Jan. 14, 1708.

IV Sarah, b. May 31, 1709; d. Sept. 23, 1709.

27 V Timothy, b. Aug. 29, 1710.

VI Zebediah, b. Mar. 13, 1712; d. Apr. 28, 1712.

VII Tamzen, b. May 5, 1713; d. infant.

28 VIII Isaac, b. July 31, 1714.

29 IX Jabez, b. Jan. 3, 1717.

30 X Amos, b. Sept. 29, 1718.

XI Tamzen, b. May 21, 1720; m. Jonathan Wiley, of Lynn, 1750.

XII Sarah, b. Oct. 21, 1721; m. Benj. Rice, of Brookfield, 1744.

The Old Upham Homestead at Melrose.

The following interesting account of the old house still standing at Melrose, formerly North Malden, Mass., was prepared by Mary Elizabeth, the daughter of Orne Upham (No. 320), who was born in the house, and whose Upham ancestors have continued to live and die there since the days of the third Phineas. It is, therefore, the ancestral home of all who descend from Phineas Upham, Third, and for that reason should be of especial interest to such. This account was written in April, 1890, at which time the homestead was the property of Orne Upham.

Our records say that Phineas Upham, the Third (son of Deacon Phineas, and grandson of Lieut. Phineas), was one of the earliest settlers in North Malden — now Melrose. Accounts differ as to the time of the building of his homestead. The dates 1695, 1698, and 1700 are given by different authorities, as the time when the land was granted to him. The old Malden record says: "Phineas Upham and Tamzen Hill were joined in marriage, ye 23d of November, 1703, by Mr. Wigglesworth;" so we may be sure that soon after the opening of the eighteenth century, young Phineas and his bride "Tamzen," were established in their primitive dwelling on the wooded crest of "Upham Hill."

The original house must have been quite small. A family tradition has taught us that it little more than covered the present cellar, which extends under less than half the building. A huge chimney — with a fireplace ten feet long, and as high as the main room of the dwelling — rivaled the house itself in size.

But it was not long before the family outgrew its narrow quarters. Then was the first building supplemented by such additions, that it came to be a large, substantial dwelling, thirty feet in length, and two stories high toward the south. On the north the roof sloped nearly to the ground.

Later still (and yet so long ago that no one now living remembers it) the sloping roof was raised, so that the house is nearly two stories high on the north, to-day. In the old garret the original sloping rafters may yet be seen.

The front door of the house is away from the street on the south side. Crossing its smooth door-stone we enter a small passageway from which a few stairs, with two square landings, lead to the upper floor. At the right a low door-way admits us to a large room, eighteen feet square, presumably the "best room" of the house. Its low wainscot, and high mantel, the broad beams across the ceiling — but a short distance above our heads — and the long hearth of the primitive fireplace — all point to the age of the structure.

On the left of the front entry is another room, much like the first. The center of the house is occupied by the huge chimney, and on the north are the smaller rooms.

The oak beams are in many cases eighteen inches thick; and the walls are filled in with bricks and clay. The chimney is made of bricks of many different sizes, and clay instead of mortar is used. The fireplaces have been made smaller, within a century, but the original hearths—in some of which square tiles are placed—are still left.

The occupants of this house through the various succeeding generations have all been tillers of the soil, though several have combined with this mechanical trades, as a supplementary occupation. Its present owner and occupant (Orne Upham) still carries on the farm, though but few of the original acres remain.

9. James⁴ Upham (Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Malden, Mass., b. there 1687; m. Dorothy Wigglesworth, 1709. They had:

He is known to have been at Dorchester in 1726, and in the same year he was at Stoughton, where he sold land (the same land had been previously bought by his brother John), on a portion of which the Universalist church was afterward built. He settled at Sturbridge about 1730, and bought a tract of land there, probably remaining there the rest of his life; he was one of the 14 male members who first organized the Congregational church at Sturbridge on the 29th of Sept., 1736; he also appears to have held the rank of captain at Sturbridge, as he is given that title on the town records. They had:

- 44 I Ezekiel, b. Nov. 30, 1727.
 II Hannah, b. Dec. 4, 1729.
 III Abigail, b. Feb. 22, 1732; m. Ephraim White, Dec. 21, 1752; d. Jan. 6, 1759.
 45 IV John, b. April 6, 1734.

VI Isaac, b. Feb. 27, 1745-6; d. Sept. 12, 1754.¹¹

VII Lydia, b. Oct. 19, 1748; d. Sept. 3, 1754.

23. Joseph⁴ Upham (Thomas³, Phineas², John¹), of Dudley, Mass., b. in Reading, Mass., in 1712; m. Nov. 20, 1732, Martha Green, of Malden, b. 1716; d. Sept. 11, 1738; m. (2) Feb. 28, 1739, Elizabeth Richardson, of Woburn, b. Dec. 4, 1715. She was the granddaughter of Samuel Richardson, of Woburn, and died after the birth of all her husband's children. He m. (3) at the age of 64, Abigail Amsden, of Southboro, widow of Jonathan. She d. in 79th year, Dec. 14, 1806. Joseph Upham with his wife, Elizabeth, and five children, moved from Reading to Dudley about the year 1748, where he was one of the early settlers. He purchased a large tract of land at Dudley, and in 1878, four pieces of this land were still in the possession of his descendants, the Uphams, of Dudley, who had the original deed for the same. He gave to each of his sons a farm of about one hundred acres, requiring them to clear it by the time they became of age, at which time it was deeded to them. He d. in his 81st year, Oct. 12, 1792.

He had by wife Martha:

I Martha, b. May 6, 1738; m. Thomas Wilson, of Killingly, Conn., Oct. 18, 1759.

VIII Lois, b. May 18, 1754; m. Philip Brown, Sept. 28, 1775.

57 IX Simeon, b. May 11, 1757; m. Miriam Larned, and lived in Dudley. He was a Revolutionary soldier.

58 X Nathan, b. June 8, 1763; m. Mary Robbins, and lived in Dudley.

24. Ivory⁴ Upham (Richard³, Phineas², John¹), of Killingly, Conn., b. in Malden, Mass., 1701; m. Tabitha ———, who d. March 13, 1744; m. (2) Jane ———, who was admitted to the church, Sept. 28, 1746, from Sutton, Mass., and d. in Killingly, Jan. 23, 1750-1; m. (3) Mary Haskol, of Beverly, Mass., July 2, 1752. He had a tract of land at Killingly, left to him in his father's will, which was probably the cause of his settling at Killingly. He conveyed "a parcle of land" to his son, Ivory, Jr., Feb. 9, 1756, for five pounds—20 acres—as per Killingly records. Miss Learned's Hist. of Windham Co., Conn., says:

"January 28, 1730, a day of fasting and prayer, at which a church was formed, twenty-eight persons 'owned the covenant,' of which number Ivory Upham was one." The same writer says: "H. Green, Jr., and Ivory Upham, were a town committee to cast up accounts of Capt. Howe, which he brought in respecting land tax," etc. Ivory Upham d. about 1756. His will at Pomfret, Conn., Book 1, p. 204,—probated 1756—names sons Ivory, Samuel, and Luke only, indicating that the four younger sons were not then living.

He had by wife Tabitha :

- 59 I Ivory, b. Sept. 27, 1724, in Charlestown, Mass.; bapt in Reading, Oct. 4, 1722; m. Jerusha Stone, and lived in Thompson, Conn.

25. Richard⁴ Upham (Richard³, Phineas², John¹), of Onslow, Nova Scotia, b. in Malden, Mass.; bapt. Dec. 9, 1716; m. Elizabeth Hovey, who d. June 7, 1756, in her 35th year, and who was, accordingly, the mother of all but the two youngest of his children. He m. (2) Elizabeth Putnam, widow, of Conn. (Her first husband was a relative of Gen. Putnam, "76.") She was heir to Putnam estate in 1773, as per Essex Co. deed, with William and Caleb Putnam. Richard Upham was engaged in trading from Salem, along the coasts of Maine, Nova Scotia, and Cape Breton; was at the capture of Louisburg, where he lost his vessels and other property. He built a house at Halifax, N. S., then secured a grant of the township of Onslow, now in the county of Colchester, N. S., on condition of settling it; which was done with families from New England. The grant of the town-

NOTE.—It is said that the sons of Richard, above, were "young men of the province, not very industrious, probably on account of their early associations," but, also, that "the Nova Scotia branch of the Uphams were gentle in their manners, intelligent, and given to the acquisition of knowledge." See further information of this general character in the record of the following generations of the descendants of Richard, of Onslow.

ship of Onslow was made to Richard Upham, and sixteen others, for a certain number of shares, or rights; and to Francis Blair and thirty others, for certain other rights or shares, in all forty-eight persons. This grant was for fifty thousand acres, being the whole of the township of Onslow. It is dated Feb. 21, 1769, and is signed by Lord William Campbell, who was then Governor of Nova Scotia. Richard Upham died at Onslow, about 1780, having deeded his property—said to be then and still, the most valuable in the county—to his stepson, William Putnam, whose descendants have inherited it, as per information from one of Richard Upham's posterity. Richard Upham and his two wives had:

- I Child; d. aged 1 yr., Oct., 1740.
- II Richard, bapt. June 29, 1741; d. Dec., 1743.

IV. Child — posthumous, b. 1738.

27. Timothy Upham⁵ (Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Malden and Saugus, Mass., b. in Malden, Aug. 29, 1710; m. Dec. 24, 1739, by Rev. Edward Cheever, Mary Cheever, of Lynn, who was b. April 10, 1720; she was the dau. of Thomas and Mary Cheever; her father m. Widow Mary Baker, Aug. 6, 1712. Timothy Upham is mentioned by Mr. Wyman as a weaver, but it is probable that this, like some others, may have been owing to the fact that he had a loom in his possession, probably on his farm; he is said by Dr. Upham—in the Notices—to have been “a farmer in easy circumstances.” In 1740 he was chosen with James Green to put into execution a new law for the better preservation of deer in the province. In 1745 he was made surveyor of highways. In 1749–50 he was appointed constable, and in 1751 he was executor of his father’s will. At this time it is probable that he became a member of Mr. Roby’s church, then the third of Lynn, but afterward the first of Saugus. This church was organized and the Rev. Mr. Roby ordained over it in 1753, and its records contain the following entry: “Jan. 22d, 1759, the church consented, at the request of the church at Stoneham, to send two deacons and Mr. Timothy Upham to assist in the instalment of the Rev. John Searle.” He died July 3, 1781, aged nearly seventy-one, and was buried in the old graveyard at Saugus. Dr. Upham says he was “of a character mild and generous, but firm and upright.” His wife survived him many years and died at South Reading—probably at the house of her dau., Mrs. Boardman—on the 22d of April, 1801, of palsy, being at that time in her eightieth year. They had:

- I Lydia, b. Oct. 11, 1740; d. æ. 1 day.
- II Lydia, b. April 23, 1743; m. Benj. Grover, Nov. 11, 1767, and was afterward third wife of Eleazar Richardson.
- 64 III Jesse, b. March 18, 1745.

- V Mary, b. Dec. 14, 1750; d. June 3, 1753.
- VI Mary, b. Sept. 5, 1756; m. Nov. 7, 1780, A. Boardman, Jr.; she d. at Derry, Vt.
- VII Jabez, b. Oct. 26, 1760; m. Sally Hill, dau. of Thos., of Malden, March 10, 1786. He died at Charleston, S. C., and she m. (2) William Oliver, March 10, 1806.
- VIII Rebecca; m. Dr. John Hawks, of Lancaster, and they had Rebecca Hawks, who m. Ezekiel Upham, son of Jesse, of Melrose.

28. Isaac⁵ Upham (Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Brookfield, Mass., b. July 31, 1714; m. Hannah Barnes, Jan. 7, 1742; she was b. Feb. 25, 1721, the dau. of Samuel and Mary, and d. March 23, 1742–3. He m. (2) Anna Gilbert, dau. of Thomas and Judith (Goss) Gilbert, who was b. Sept. 13, 1725. His will proved June 5, 1792. They had :

- I Hannah, b. March 13, 1743, dau. of first wife; m. Daniel Walker, Jr., and d. Aug. 10, 1779, leaving a family of children.
- II Tamzen, b. Dec. 26, 1744, dau. of second wife; m. Dr. Nathan Richardson, Feb. 16, 1764; d. March 2, 1776, leaving children.
- III Ezra, b. April 26, 1747; prob. d. young.
- 66 IV Nathan, b. July 13, 1750; m. Eleanor Gilbert, Feb. 27, 1772.
- V Perie, b. April 18, 1752; prob. d. young.
- VI Mary, b. Sept. 16, 1755.
- VII Anna, b. July 24, 1759; prob. d. young.
- 67 VIII Daniel, b. Jan. 7, 1762; m. Lydia Walker, Sept. 27, 1781; m. (2) Matilda Olds, June 10, 1824.
- IX Joseph, b. April 7, 1764; prob. d. young.

29. Dr. Jabez⁵ Upham (Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Brookfield, Mass., b. Jan. 3, 1717, in Malden, Mass.; m. Katharine Nichols, also of the Upham blood, a great-granddaughter of Lieut. Phineas Upham; she survived the death of her husband. He was a doctor of medicine, as appears from various evidences and from the following extract from his father's will: "And the reason why I give my son Jabez no more in this my last will, is because I have given him to the value of a hundred pounds, in bringing him up to the art of a Doctor or Physician." He settled at Brookfield, and there became distinguished in the practice of his profession. He also built a grist mill on Mason's brook, at Brookfield, in 1748. He was captain of the company from Brookfield which marched for the relief of Fort William Henry during the French and Indian war, as appears from the following extract from the Hist. of North Brookfield: "Aug. 3, 1759, Gen. Montcalm, with an army of 11,000 French and Indians invested Fort William Henry. Col. Munroe defended the Fort for six days with an effective force of only 2,372 men, surrendering August 9. Captain Jabez Upham's company from Brookfield, seventy men, not having intelligence of the surrender, marched from Brookfield for the relief of Col. Munroe, on the 9th of August, 1757 (the date of the surrender), and were out 17 days." He also represented Brookfield in the General Court during the years from 1756 to 1760, inclusive. He died in his forty-fourth year, as appears from the inscription on his gravestone, a horizontal tablet, at Brookfield, viz.:

"Beneath this stone lie deposited the remains of Doctor Jabez Upham the cheerful application of whose distinguished abilities for the good of mankind rendered him a useful member not only of the court of which he was some years but especially in the practice of physick in which his success demonstrated his skill but as no age or condition of life is free from the arrest of death he was called in the midst of his usefulness to leave this world and departed this life November 4th 1760 in the forty fourth year of his age —

Hope humbly then with trembling pinions soar
Wait the great teacher death and God adore."

The gravestone of his wife Katharine is also at Brookfield, and bears the following inscription:

"Here was buried Mistress Katharine Upham, who died March 12, 1774 aged 52, the widow of Dr. Jabez Upham who died Nov. 4, 1760."

Dr. Jabez Upham and wife Katharine had (all born at Brookfield):

68 I Phineas, b. Oct. 4, 1739; m. Susanna Buckminster; lived in Brookfield.

69 II Joshua, b. Nov. 3, 1741; grad. H. C. 1763; m. Elizabeth Murray, and (2) Mary Chandler. He was a loyalist and an officer in the British army during the Revolution; after the war he went to New Brunswick, where he was a Judge of the Supreme Court.

77 VIII Jacob, b. May 16, 1766, at Reading. Settled at Amherst, N. H.

32. Rev. Edward⁵ Upham (James⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of West Springfield, Mass., and of Newport, R. I., b. in Malden, Mass., March 26, 1710; m. March, 1740, Sarah, dau. of Deacon John and Sarah (Dickinson) Leonard, of Springfield, a descendant of Gov. Simon Bradstreet. He was graduated at Harvard, 1734, and ordained pastor of the Baptist Church at West Springfield, 1740, by Rev. John Callender, of Newport, and Rev. Jeremiah Condy, of Boston; he resigned his pastorate at Springfield in 1748 and moved to Newport, R. I., where he became pastor of the First Baptist Church, remaining as such until 1771, when he resigned and returned to West Springfield. After Mr. Upham left Springfield in 1748 the Baptist Church at that place was disbanded, and in 1762 the Congregational Church was composed of a portion of those who had originally been members of the Baptist Church. After his return to Springfield he gathered his scattered flock and began to preach to them in his own house.

He continued to preach until he was eighty years old, and was an open communion Baptist. His home was in Feeding Hills parish, at West Springfield, where he owned a farm, upon which he lived. About five years before his death he was taken with a disorder with which he was confined to his bed for the rest of his life. He died at West Springfield, Oct. 5, 1797. He had the friendship of the Rev. Dr. Lathrop, the Congregational minister at the same place, who preached his funeral sermon from Job XLII, 7:

“So Job died, being full of days.”

By those who knew him he was considered a man of ability and learning. He was one of the board of Fellows of Rhode Island College (now Brown University) from 1764 to 1787. The Rev. Dr. Ezra Stiles, president of Yale College, who lived in Newport in early life, left the following entry in his diary under date of April 19, 1771: “Rev. E. Upham with his wife and family sailed for Connecticut river, removing to Springfield. His congregation and friends accompanied them to the ship with many tears.”

Edward Upham and wife Sarah had:

I Edward, b. Jan. 12, 1741; d. early.

II Sarah, b. July 24, 1742; m. Benedict Bliss, Dec. 24, 1766.

III Edward, b. July 24, 1744; probably d. early.

There is a note that his eldest son was accidentally shot while hunting bears at night; it is likely this was the one.

IV Horace, b. March 16, 1745-6; probably d. early.

78 V Leonard, b. Aug. 7, 1748; m. Elizabeth Cooley; lived in West Springfield.

VII Joseph.

VIII James. (Perhaps this was the James Upham who m. Elizabeth Sargent, May 13, 1781.)

IX George.

X Mary, m. James Wade, her cousin, Jan. 15, 1780. She died in Ohio, April 10, 1826. They had eleven children, among them Hon. B. F. Wade, U. S. Senator from Ohio, and his brother Edward Wade, minister of the House of Representatives. Schuyler Colfax, Speaker of the House of Representatives and Vice-President of the United States, married one of this family, granddaughter of the Rev. Edward Upham, and the Wade posterity has attained unusual distinction in this country. James F. Wade, son of Senator B. F. Wade, b. April 14, 1843, is colonel of the Fifth U. S. Cavalry.

33. Rev. Caleb⁵ Upham (Ebenezer⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Truro, Mass., b. in Malden, 1723; m. Priscilla, the dau. of Rev. Benjamin Allen, of Falmouth (Portland), April 21, 1755; she d. in 58th year, Jan., 1785. He was graduated at Harvard College in 1744, and was a Congregational minister; he was ordained pastor of the church at Truro, on the 29th of October, 1755. Rich's "Truro, Cape Cod, or Land Marks and Seemarks," beginning on p. 242, has the following, with reference to the Rev. Caleb Upham: "His ministry in Truro covered the entire period of the Revolutionary war, which tried the souls of the Cape people, perhaps more than those of any other place in the country. Mr. Upham was a stanch and uncompromising patriot. He entered bravely into the work of sustaining the Colonies, greatly encouraged his people in public and in private, sympathized with them in their great losses, sufferings and struggles, and as we have seen by the records,"—shown on previous pages of the same book—"was associated with the citizens in the most important committees. In 1775, he generously relinquished fifty pounds of his salary for the poor. Dr. Freeman pays the following tribute to his memory:

"Mr. Upham was a good scholar, an animated preacher, a warm friend to his country, and an honest man. He left behind him a poem in manuscript, the subject of which was taken from the book of Job. He was ever attentive to the real good of his people, and exerted himself with zeal and fidelity in their service."

"There were added to the church during his ministry two hundred and eighty-six. I have no account of his family, except his son, Benjamin Allen, born in 1756, at Truro. For many years he was a prominent citizen, selectman, etc. His name has been, and I trust will continue to be, borne by every generation in Truro. Captain Caleb Upham Crozier, a well-known, enterprising shipmaster, of Provincetown, died in Calcutta, where a substantial monument commemorates his name. Caleb Upham Crozier, a retired master mariner, is now living in North Truro. There may be others bearing the name."

Mrs. Priscilla Upham, the amiable and pious consort of the Rev. Caleb Upham of Truro who expired in a fit of apoplexy suddenly Jan'y 6th, 1783,

in the 58 year of her age.
 Be ye also ready.
 This stone is erected by her mourning husband.

Sacred to the memory of the REV'D CALEB UPHAM, of Truro, who expired
 April 9th, 1796, in the 63d year of his age, and 31st of his ministry,
 This stone is erected by his mourning son.

"I have been, and that is all."

* Brimfield and Sturbridge adjoin, and many Uphams have lived close to the lines, perhaps on both sides. Brimfield was incorporated July 14, 1731; Sturbridge, June 24, 1738.—anciently "New Medford." A part of Charlton was annexed to Sturbridge, June 27, 1792; Southbridge was incorporated Feb. 15, 1816, from parts of Sturbridge, Charlton, and Dudley;—so genealogically it is one field, and in it several stocks of Uphams have "mixed." It is well to remember these facts in connection with the posterity of Jonathan Upham, above, as well as with that of the various Uphams originating in the several places mentioned.

VII Mercy, b. Jan. 14, 1765.

VIII Nancy, b. Feb. 25, 1767; m. Jonathan Gould, Nov. 6, 1788.

 XI Thankful, b. June 5, 1783; d. Feb. 9, 1842.
 XII Samuel, b. March 9, 1787; d. April 17, 1850.

47. Captain William⁵ Upham (Ezekiel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Westminster, Vt., b. at Malden (according to information given by his descendants, but as he was born after his father Ezekiel settled at Sturbridge, it would seem natural to conclude that William was born at Sturbridge, in the absence of special information to the contrary), Oct. 29, 1738; m. Elizabeth Wood of Charlestown, N. H., Oct. 25, 1770, at Springfield, Vt.; she died æ. 54, May 8, 1804. The tradition in this family is, that William went to Sturbridge with his father when he settled at that place, but that could hardly be so. He left Sturbridge, and went to Charlestown, N. H., where he met his wife, and where his first child was born, July 19, 1771; when this child (Joshua) was six months old, he left Charlestown and moved to Weathersfield, where he remained the rest of his life. He was the first clerk of the town of Weathersfield—elected at the organization of the town, May 19, 1772—and in 1772, he bought a large tract of land there, on which he lived and died; he was captain of a company from Weathersfield in the Vermont militia, which rendered service in the Revolution, and for which he was afterward paid by the State. He represented Weathersfield in the Vermont legislature, and held various other offices. He was baptized in a mill pond near his place, by Dr. Thomas Baldwin, of Boston, for whom the Baldwin church in Boston was named, some time previous to 1790. He d. Dec. 20, 1812, æ. 74, leaving a good property to each of his sons. William Upham and his wife, Elizabeth, had:

- 99 I Joshua, b. July 19 1771, at Charlestown, N. H.
 100 II Caleb, b. Feb. 8, 1775, at Weathersfield.
 101 III Barak, b. 1782, at Weathersfield.

48. Isaac⁵ Upham (Ezekiel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Sturbridge, Mass., b. there Oct. 3, 1741; m. Hepzibah Shapley, 1769, who d. Jan. 8, 1808, æ. 68. He was in the Revolution, was one of the minute men. In the midst of haying he was warned to march at a minute's notice; he quit his scythe, took his arms and started immediately for the battle-field. His neighbors finished his haying and harvested his grain. He d. at Sturbridge, March 10, 1808, æ. 66. April 2, 1808, his heirs quit claim to his estate, lying partly in Sturbridge, and partly in Charlton. Isaac Upham, and his wife, Hepzibah, had:

I Lucretia, b. Jan. 11, 1770; m. Willard Wood, May 1, 1792.

102 II Isaac, b. March 2, 1772, at Sturbridge.

III Marcena, b. Oct. 7, 1776; m. Robert Stanton, of Monson, Dec. 10, 1810.

IV Matilda, b. Oct. 4, 1778; m. Ephraim Wheelock, Oct. 6, 1796; they had: Fordice F., b. June 18, 1797; Tristram S., b. Feb. 5, 1800; Emeline, b. Oct. 9, 1802; d. 1804; Dwight, b. Sept. 15, 1805; Matilda, b. Oct. 6, 1808.

49. Nathaniel⁵ Upham (Ezekiel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Sturbridge, Mass., b. there, Sept. 27, 1746; m. Sarah Bemis, Jan. 4, 1775. He succeeded to his father's estate at Sturbridge. They had:

I Ruth, b. Dec. 8, 1775; m. Charles Dugar, of Charlton, June 19, 1796.

II Betty, b. Oct. 18, 1778; m. Joel Clemense, of Charlton, Nov. 30, 1803, and they had: Merrick, b. Jan. 18, 1812.

III Sally, b. May 16, 1782; m. William Otis, of Brookfield, June 5, 1806.

IV Nathaniel, b. April 8, 1783; d. June 23, 1794.

103 V Jacob, b. Feb. 7, 1786.

VI Polly, b. April 5, 1788.

VII Clarissa, b. Feb. 24, 1790; m. Jonathan Winslow, of Carlton, Sept. 15, 1810.

VIII Esther, b. March 12, 1792.

IX Hannah, b. June 18, 1794.

50. Thomas⁵ Upham (Thomas⁴, Thomas³, Phineas², John¹), of Weston, Mass., b. in Charlestown, June 30, 1718; m. Ruth Hammond, of Waltham, 1740-1, who d. June 2, 1749; m. (2) Susanna Myrick, March 18, 1749-50, who d. Jan. 22, 1772, æ. 45; m. (3) Martha Williams, of Newton, Sept. 17, 1772, who d. at Pembroke, N. H., with her dau. Patty, at the age of 92. A grand-dau. of the third wife—Martha—(Mrs. Sarah M. Upham-Smith), has given the following items of information as to the family history, which she received from her grandmother during the lifetime of the latter. (Mrs. Smith's information was given in 1880), viz.:

"My grandmother told me, when I was very young, that grandfather was a man who had a large share of self-respect, and she never liked to question him; he was twenty years older than herself, and she felt honored by the alliance. One or two incidents, illustrating his character, were indelibly impressed on my memory; she told me that we knew little of thunder-storms in my day, for as the century advanced they became lighter. One summer afternoon a terrific storm spread over the heavens; the workmen in the hay field followed my grandfather to the house for shelter, for all seemed to feel safe who followed his lead. They gathered in the large kitchen—ten or twelve of them—while the house shook to its foundation; the children whimpered; the dog howled; all but the master were shaken with fear. He was calm; seeing the condition of affairs, he took his Bible—read a portion—and offered a prayer for protection; at once there was a hush; the children were quiet, the dog crouched at the feet of his master, and an awe crept over all.

"Occasionally, when storms were protracted, and work was suspended, he would improve the time in this manner. Truly 'the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord.'

"My grandmother told me that a common petition of her husband in prayer was: 'That there might never be a family by the name of Upham, where there might not be, at least one, who would be a Standard Bearer for Christ.'

"Dr. Ebenezer Starr, the family physician, was accustomed in his social visits, to sit for hours and talk of the eternal future. On one occasion the general resurrection was the subject, when the doctor said: 'Deacon Upham, I wish to be buried by your side, that we may rise together.' A few years since I visited my grandfather's plot, where side by side were the stones bearing their names.

"On a communion Sabbath, he was stricken with apoplexy, and lived speechless but two or three days. He died at the age of 62."

Deacon Thomas Upham died Oct. 17, 1780. His gravestone is in the cemetery at Weston, and beside the record of his death, has the following epitaph:

Here the clay form in hope to rise,
Of Dea. Thomas Upham lies;
Sixty-two years measured his race,
Thirteen of which in deacons place,

With other trusts he did sustain;
 But God ordains the wise and just,
 Like other men must mix with dust.

Composed by his Pastor,
 Parson Kendall.

The stone of his wife Susanna is also in the graveyard at Weston, near to her husband; but the graves of the two other wives are not there. His wife Martha was probably buried at Pembroke, N. H., where she died. Thomas Upham and his three wives had:

- I Ruth, b. Sept. 3, 1742, dau. of first wife; m. Noah Norcross, April 1, 1762, and afterward in 1780, she was the wife of Josiah Myrick, of Princeton.
- II Susanna, b. Sept. 21, 1751, dau. of second wife; m. Joseph Russell, of Weston, May 20, 1773, an inn holder of Lincoln.
- III Thomas, b. July 21, 1762; d. Jan. 10, 1776.
- IV Lydia, b. Feb. 7, 1765; m. Micah Fisk, of Framingham, Feb. 5, 1789.

- VIII Thomas, b. March 1, 1777; m. Sarah Fanning, Oct. 7, 1800, who d. Aug. 12, 1812, leaving no children. He lived at West Newton, and d. Feb. 2, 1803, of consumption, æ. 26.
- 106 IX Ephraim, b. Nov. 3, 1778; m. Hannah Cashman, and first settled in Montague, then in Bow, N. H., finally moved to Concord, N. H.
- X Patty (Martha), b. Dec. 9, 1780 — posthumous; m. Ezra Fuller, and went to Pembroke, N. H. They had Thomas, Ezra, and Martha Fuller.

51. Abijah⁵ Upham (Abijah⁴, Thomas³, Phineas², John¹), of Stoughton and Canton, Mass., b. in Weston, May 1, 1726; m. Jemima Bailey, of Stoughton. He first went to Stoughton — now Canton — in search of ship timber, found what he was in search of, and also a wife; with his wife he afterward obtained "many acres of good oak land, on which some of his descendants still live;" his father (Abijah, of Weston), bought a farm at Stoughton, and gave it to his son. The Uphams, of Stoughton and Canton, are all the descendants of these two. They had:

107 I Abijah, b. May 17, 1752; m. Rebecca Gill.

108 II Amos, b. about 1753; m. Lucy Hewitt, and, finally, settled in Ohio.

III Jemima; m. Seth Trowbridge, and had William and Seth.

IV Elizabeth; m. Dudley Bailey, and had Rebecca and Dudley. Dudley Bailey, Jr., m. Elizabeth Upham, and had Dudley Bailey, 3d, who m. Nancy Smith; and Rebecca Bailey, who m. Abijah Pitcher.

109 V Jonathan, b. Oct. 5, 1767; m. Hannah Snell.

110 VI Nathan; who m. Susan Tilden, and went to Pennsylvania.

52. Phineas⁵ Upham (Abijah⁴, Thomas³, Phineas², John¹), of Weston, Mass., b. there April 26, 1747; m. Lydia Myrick, 1769, who d. Nov. 28, 1828, æ. 80 years; her gravestone at Weston. He was a lieutenant, and died at the age of 42. His gravestone at Weston has: "Lieut. Phineas Upham died Feb. 1, 1789, age 42 years." They had:

I Joel, b. March 20, 1771; d. æ. 19, June 8, 1789; grave-stone at Weston.

111 II Phineas, b. March 8, 1773; d. July 25, 1805.

III Lydia, b. May 17, 1775; d. unm., Jan. 22, 1867. Her gravestone at Weston.

112 IV Abijah, b. Dec. 26, 1777; d. June, 1872.

V Betsey, b. Feb. 15, 1781; d. æ. 88 years and 6 months.

VI Silas, b. Oct. 10, 1783; d. Dec. 29, 1871, unm. His gravestone at Weston.

113 VII John Myrick, b. Aug. 25, 1786; d. about 1845.

114 VIII Amos, b. March 11, 1789; d. Jan. 25, 1872, at Dorchester, Mass.

53. Jabez⁵ Upham (Josiah⁴, Thomas³, Phineas², John¹), of Bristol, Me., b. either at Weston or Athol, Mass., May 6, 1735; m. Hannah Burgess, who was said to be "a very amiable and highly bred young lady of Athol." He was in the Revolution, and fought at Bunker's Hill. Some of his mother's people, the Trains, had moved to Bristol, Me., to which place he also moved, after the Revolution; it is probable that others from Athol moved to Bristol about this time. He lived at Bristol for many years, then moved to Waldoboro, in the same state. They had:

I Ephraim; m. Betsey Greenlow.

II Josiah; m. Rebecca Catherine Advance, of Cape Town, South Africa — said to be German; he was a sea captain, but left the sea, and settled at Cape Town. Some time about 1830, an officer of a ship which had returned from Africa, reported that there were at that time, a father and son by the name of Upham, who were in the mercantile business at Cape Town; this was probably this Josiah, and it is likely his descendants may be found in that place, or region.

- 115 III Isaac, b. June 3, 1779, at Athol.
IV Jabez; d. at sea, unm.
- 116 V John; b. 1781, at Bristol; sea captain.
VI Simeon; drowned at sea; unm.
VII Lydia; m. Capt. Robert McFarland, of Bristol.
VIII Judith; m. William Lermond.
IX Deborah; m. James Daggett, of Union, Me.
X Abigail; m. Joseph W. Bruce.
XI Hannah; d. æ. 18.

54. Joseph⁵ Upham (Joseph⁴, Thomas³, Phineas², John¹), of Dudley, Mass., b. in Reading, Mass., Dec. 10, 1740; m. Eunice Kidder, at Dudley, April 16, 1765. She was b. Dec. 7, 1735, and was the dau. of Richard Kidder, of Dudley, who was a descendant of James Kidder, b. in East Grinstead, Sussex, England, 1626, and who was at Cambridge, Mass., in 1650, where he m. Anna, dau. of Elder Francis Moore. (See Kidder Genealogy for complete record of this family to a very early period.) The dates of the deaths of Joseph Upham and his wife, Eunice, have not been found.

Joseph Upham went to Dudley, with his father, from Reading, when about eight years of age, and continued to live there during the remainder of his life. His father gave each of his sons a farm of about one hundred acres, when they reached twenty-one years of age, and he received one of those pieces of land—a portion of the estate originally purchased at Dudley when Joseph Upham, Sr., first went there from Reading. He was eight years one of the selectmen at Dudley, and perhaps during a longer period. He was chairman of the selectmen five years. The following is an extract from Ammidown's Historical Collections, article "Dudley":

"At a Town meeting in Dudley, 17th Dec., 1774, the town voted to appropriate the Province money in the hands of the collector, to buy a half chest of guns and bayonets; to adhere to the doings of the Grand Congress in all matters whatsoever; and to conform to the non-importation agreement. They then chose a committee of nine to see that the resolves of the Grand Congress were carried into effect." Joseph Upham was one of these. "August 17th, 1779, Joseph Upham was elected delegate to the Convention to meet at Cambridge, Sept. 5th, following, to assist in framing a constitution, and a committee was appointed to prepare suitable instructions for his guidance."

Joseph Upham and wife, Eunice, had:

(She was the dau. of Lieut. Daniel Knowlton of the Conn. militia, who had seen much service on the frontier, and was at the siege of Louisburg, and at Havanna; he was a near relative of Col. Knowlton; another one of his daughters was the grandmother of Sir Charles Tupper.) One of the great grandchildren of Nathan Upham says of him and his wife, as follows: "He was a great deal in the habit of hunting and roaming with congenial spirits, who enjoyed themselves over a bottle of choice wine, when it could be had. At home he spent his time in reading a collection of books, large for that day, while his wife and sons ran the farm—a large and valuable one; and they lived well. His wife was a remarkable woman, of great administrative ability, and an excellent manager; she was called 'Aunt Nellie,' and was at the head of the household until two years before her death, which occurred at the age of 94. I have a good recollection of her for about fifteen years; it was a pleasant home to visit: herself, her son Stephen, his wife and four children, the daughters Sarah, Zeviah, and Abby, lived a harmonious and happy family. They were kind and cheerful, never rude or boisterous, and it was a home for all the connections—all were welcome; while in intelligence they were superior to their surroundings."

Timothy Upham was a graduate of Harvard College, at the age of 20, in the class of 1768; he completed the study of theology with the Rev. Mr. Trask of Brentwood, N. H. In 1722, he was ordained minister of the First Congregational Church at Deerfield, being then 24 years of age, and was the first minister settled at that place. He remained at Deerfield during the remainder of his life, and died Feb. 21, 1811, of pneumonia. He was buried in the old graveyard at Deerfield, where his stone bears the following inscription:

SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF THE REV. TIMOTHY
UPHAM,

First pastor of the Congregational Church in this town, over which he was ordained in Nov., 1772, and was continued to them, to mutual satisfaction, for 39 years; then this mortal put on immortality. In the joyful hope of a glorious resurrection, he departed this life Feb. 21, 1811, aged 63. As a testimony of their grateful remembrance of his long and affectionate services, the Congregational Society to whom he ministered, have erected this monument.

The following is the inscription on the stone which marks the grave of his wife, Hannah, also at Deerfield:

HANNAH CONSORT OF THE REV. TIMOTHY UP-HAM,

Who departed this life Aug. 4, 1797, in the 44, year of her age.

If truth, love, virtue, each attractive grace,
That warms the heart, or animates the face;
If tears, or sighs, or ardent prayers could save
The kind, the generous, from the silent grave;
Then death, relentless, must have lost his prey,
And with it lost his cruel power to slay
One who shall rise and shine in realms above,
Forever happy in her Savior's love.

(Written by Elizabeth Champney Williams.)

Dr. Upham, in the Notices, thus refers to the Rev. Timothy, his grandfather :

"Rev. Timothy Upham was six feet tall, rather spare, but perfectly erect. His hair was black, eyes hazel, nose straight and rather prominent, and his teeth perfect till the day of his death. His voice was remarkably melodious and powerful; his enunciation was clear and distinct. His mind was perfectly balanced, his judgment excellent, and his temper, though naturally quick, was under perfect control. Distinguished for the rectitude of his character, for quiet dignity, and constant self-possession, he won the admiration of his people, while his hospitality and benevolence, extending to the very verge of his means, awakened their love and esteem. His professional duties were to him a source of constant pleasure, and were performed with constant assiduity. His teachings from the pulpit were chiefly marked by the exceeding care and anxiety which was manifested lest he should vary from the revealed doctrines and precepts of our holy religion, and be guilty of preaching anything but the eternal truth of God. To this feeling was joined another, equally prominent—love for the welfare of the immortal spirit."

69. Colonel Joshua⁶ Upham (Jabez⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Brookfield, Mass., and later of New Brunswick, b. Nov. 3, 1741, in Brookfield; m. Elizabeth, dau. of Col. John Murray, of Rutland, Mass., Oct. 27, 1768, who d. in 1782. (Her father was a mandamus councillor of the province before the Revolution, a prominent Tory of great wealth; at the Revolution twenty-nine of his farms were confiscated, and he went to New Brunswick). He m. (2) Mary, the dau. of Hon. Joshua Chandler, of New Haven, Conn., who survived him and d. at Annapolis, N. S., in 1826. Joshua Upham was a graduate of Harvard College, class of 1763, a lawyer by profession; he represented Brookfield in the General Court of Mass., at the outbreak of the Revolution, upon which he became a Loyalist and entered the British army; he was commissioned a lieut.-col., and appointed as an aid to Sir Guy Carleton, was present at the attack on New London, leading a regiment of American Loyalists on that occasion. After the Revolution he went to New Brunswick, where he was judge of the Supreme Court of the province; his property in Mass. was confiscated, probably on account of which he was placed by the British government upon the half pay-roll of a "Provincial Corps called the 'King's American Dragoons.' " In 1807 he was sent to England on a mission to the home government, which was successful, but he did not live to return; he d. in London, Nov. 1, 1808. There is a notice of Judge Upham in Curwen's Letters and Journal; also, see Joseph Willard's address before the members of the bar of Worcester Co., Mass., 1829; also the May number of the American Quarterly Register, 1841, p. 413. The following is an extract from the memoir of his son (Charles W. Upham), published in the Proceedings of the Mass. Hist. Soc., Dec., 1876, by Dr. George E. Ellis.

"Joshua Upham was born in Brookfield, Mass., in 1741. He graduated at Harvard College in 1763. In view of the agitations and alienations which were so painfully active among the members of that class when, after their pleasant fellowship in the College, they in a few years should find themselves at variance in the entrance of their manly careers, it is interesting to note the many names on the list which are associated with a remarkable personal history on both sides in the Revolutionary strife. There stand the names of the honored patriot, Josiah Quincy, Jr., prematurely called from the good service which he was so nobly rendering; of Nathan Cushing, Judge of the Supreme Court of Mass.; and of Timothy Pickering. These are conspicuous names on the winning side. There, too, is the name of a neutral or a mediator,—that of John Jeffries, who returned from his medical studies in Aberdeen, just as our strife was opening, in the British naval service; went off with Gen. Howe, as surgeon to the forces in Nova Scotia, and also in Charleston, S. C.; returned to England, crossed the British Channel to France, in a balloon; and came back, in 1789, to practise his profession in Boston. The names of the college catalogue then arranged in the order of social rank. After the name of Upham came those of Jonathan Bliss—afterwards Upham's brother-in-law—and of Sampson Salter Blowers, these three being all refugees in the war. Upham and Bliss became judges of the Supreme Court of the Province of New Brunswick, Bliss being the Chief Justice; and Blowers, Chief Justice of that of Nova Scotia. The last named lived beyond one hundred years before he was starred in the catalogue. Similar divergencies may be traced in the fortunes of the classes preceding and following that of 1763. They contained many prominent men, whose careers on either side were fond subjects of interest and study to the subject of this memoir, as they illustrated history and character.

"Joshua Upham began the study of law in Brookfield, and had won much distinction at the Worcester bar; being greatly honored in his profession, and respected for public spirit as a citizen up to the painful crisis in his lot. It is remarkable that, while those who were driven to the royal side, as he was, generally accorded with the British policy in the suppression of manufacturing enterprises in the Colonies, he was very active in promoting such provincial industries. In March, 1768, a meeting was held in Worcester of those who, indignant with the prohibitory measures of England, were in favor of advancing manufactures. The famous Ruggles opposed the disloyal movement; but Upham approved it. He, with his two brothers and other gentlemen, had built a woolen manufactory in Brookfield, and he had made efforts to introduce the manufacture of salt at stations on the sea-coast. But he fell upon distracted times; and there can be no harm in saying that, like many others in the country of a class of so-called Loyalists, who were at worst only timid, halting, or cautious, while sincerely upright, conscientious, and patriotic, he received unmerited harsh treatment. Committees of correspondence, of espionage and inquisition, became very active, sometimes overbearing and impertinent, in every town. The business which they assigned to themselves was to put the question of King or People to every citizen, especially the more prominent ones in place or influence. Hurry and dictation were offensive to some, who needed only time and freedom of action to bring them into accord with the popular movements. On receiving a somewhat imperious call from the committee of his town, for a statement of his opinions and purpose in the critical state of affairs, he replied by a letter, which is printed in Force's 'American Archives,' fourth series, vol. ii, page 852, dated May 20, 1775. In this letter, he says he is pausing to decide on the position which he shall himself take, until, after free debate and a proper deliberation, the majority of the people have committed themselves to the one or the other alternative. He will not set up his private judgment against that of the people, but claims a right to express his own views and apprehensions to help in the decision of the question. Then he will acquiesce in the popular resolve, and take a common part and lot in measures designed to save the country in resisting the royal government, though he may think such measures improper, and not likely to be successful. In the mean while, he demanded freedom of opinion, and security for person and property. But the intense feelings of the hour, and the humor of his fellow-citizens, would not admit of what seemed weak and cautious temporizing, and a timid mistrust of a hopeful cause. The coolness of treatment which he received, with threats or apprehensions of what might follow, drove him, as they did many others under like circumstances, to the protection of the royal sympathizers in Boston. This act decided his future for him. Without means of support for himself and family in a besieged town, he accepted from the British commander the office of supervision of the refugees from the country, and, soon after, an appointment as an aide on the staff of Sir Guy Carleton, subsequently Lord Dorchester, between whom and himself there continued a warm friendship. The close of the war found him at New York in the British service as a colonel of dragoons. He was among the proscribed whose estates were confiscated by the State of Mass. in 1778; and nothing but exile was before him.* Mr. Upham had married, first, a daughter of Col. John Murray, of Rutland, Mass.; and, on her decease, a daughter of Hon. Joshua Chandler, of New Haven, Conn. The latter was the mother of the subject of this memoir (Hon. Chas. W. Upham) and of several other children. The stately mansion of her father was afterwards long known as the 'Tontine Hotel,' in New Haven. A building of the same name succeeds it on the same site. Mr. Upham's fine homestead in Brookfield long served a similar use.

"Col. Pickering who as above stated, was one of those who disapproved the summary measures pursued towards the so-called Loyalists, felt a sincere sympathy for his old college chum, Upham. In a letter he wrote to a friend in March, 1783, he says that Upham had expressed to a correspondent in Boston, where he had left a daughter, an intention of returning there; and he adds, 'Upham is a good hearted fellow, and probably would not have joined the enemy but for his marriage connections.' After the close of hostilities, and during the long delay in the evacuation of New York, Pickering, who had hoped to have a friendly interview with Upham, which the hurried departure of the latter prevented, wrote to him from West Point, Nov. 14, 1783, a most cordial letter of unbroken regard and sympathy. To this Upham, on the 18th, replied in the same spirit of kindness and esteem, saying, 'I leave the country for the winter from pecuniary considerations, not from resentment.'

"New Brunswick, which had been a county of Nova Scotia, called Sunbury, was separated and made a distinct government and province in 1784. At the first organization of the Supreme Court of the Province, Joshua Upham was made an assistant justice, Nov. 25, 1784. He was also, with other refugees, on the council of Thomas Carleton, Esq., who was commissioned as first governor of the Province. The Judge faithfully and ably discharged the arduous duties attendant upon the tasks assigned to him, under the conditions of a rough country and a settlement among a raw and heterogeneous population. His brethren on the bench sent him to England in 1807, on a mission to the government, for securing a more complete organization of the judiciary of the Province. He met with perfect success in the purpose of his errand. He also made many strongly attached personal friends, among whom were Mr. Palmer, who bequeathed his valuable library to Harvard College, Sir John Wentworth, Sir William Pepperrell, and Mr. Spencer Perceval. The last-named gentleman, chancellor of the Exchequer, formed so strong a regard for Mr. Upham—who died in London in 1808, and was buried in the Church of Marylebone—as to continue acts of substantial kindness to the widow and children, whom the Judge had left with very slender means. The chancellor, a few days before his assassination, sent a considerable sum of money,—four hundred silver dollars,—with books and other valuable gifts, for the education of his youngest son Charles W.

* The State of Massachusetts, in Sept., 1778, passed "An Act to prevent the return to this State of certain persons therein named, and others who have left this State or either of the United States, and joined the Enemies thereof." The persons named, one of whom was "Joshua Upham, Esq.," were, under this act, if they returned, to "Suffer the pains of death without benefit of clergy."

“Judge Upham’s house was on the banks of the Kenebekasis. The scenes around it, and the conditions of domestic and social life which it involved, were for several years rough and severe. Still, they had their compensations in the occasions for activity, enterprise, and sterling virtues which they presented, and were especially favorable to the development of good qualities in the children born and trained there by worthy parents.”

Joshua Upham had, by first wife, Elizabeth Murray :

- I Isabella, b. Sept. 30, 1769; d. early.
- II Elizabeth Murray, b. May 19, 1771; d. in Frederickton, N. B. 1844.
- 155 III John Murray, b. July 21, 1773, in Brookfield, Mass.; m. Mary Dickson in 1803, and was a physician, at one time practising in Truro, N. S., later in county Lennox, Ontario, Canada.
- IV Joshua Nichols, b. May 6, 1775, in Brookfield, counselor at law; m. Mary Field, of Enfield, dau. of Robert, and they had Edith Murray, who m. Alonzo Cutler, of St. Louis, 1828. Joshua Nichols d. in Greenwich, June 11, 1805.

V Robert M.; d. early.

VI Sarah Green, b. Feb. 19, 1777; m. Aug. 7, 1797, John Murray Bliss, b. Feb. 22, 1771, judge of the Supreme Court of N. B., and for a time acting gov. of New Brunswick. She d. April 19, 1835.

VI Mary; m. William Ruffee, of Greenville, N. S.

By second wife, Mary Chandler:

VII Martha Sophia, m. Alexander Winniett of Annapolis, son of High Sheriff, and bro. of Sir William Winniett. She died in 1889, when the following obituary notice was published:

“MRS. SOPHIA (UPHAM) WINNIETT.

“When Sir Francis Nicholson made the final capture of Port Royal in October, 1710, a young volunteer, a Frenchman by birth and a Huguenot by religious education, who had accompanied him from London, was the officer called upon to set the first guard in the captured town. This young man's name was William Winniett, the great-grandfather of the husband of Mrs. Sophia Winniett. Joseph Winniett, his son, married Mary Dyson, by whom he had William Winniett, who was the father of Susan Winniett, who married the Rev. J. T. Twining, of Halifax, Nova Scotia, Chaplain of the British forces in Canada, and the grandmother of E. H. Twining of Chicago; and of Alexander, husband of the deceased, and of Sir William Wolsley Winniett, R. N., who died while Governor of the Cape Coast Colonies in Africa a few years ago. This is the oldest English speaking family in the Dominion of Canada, and the daughter and surviving child of the deceased is the only person now in Nova Scotia who bears the name. Paternally the late Mrs. Winniett is of American Loyalist descent, her father having himself been a Loyalist. In 1783 he migrated from his old colonial home over the border, at the close of the Revolutionary war, in which he served against the revolutionists, to New Brunswick, in which province he afterwards lived and died, leaving a family of whom Sophia, the deceased lady, was one of the youngest. The Parish of Upham derives its name from him on account of grants of land made to him as a reward for services in the war.”

VIII Kathron Elizabeth Putnam, m. Judge George Pagan, of New Brunswick. They had a son, and a daughter, Agnes, who m. Chas. R. Ray, mayor of St. John, N. B. Kathron Elizabeth Putnam d. Nov. 28, 1878.

156 IX Charles Wentworth, b. May 4, 1802, in St. John; m. Ann S. Holmes. He was a grad. of Harvard, and Unitarian minister at Salem, Mass., afterward M. C. from Mass.

X Frances Chandler, b. in Norton, Kings Co., N. B., Feb. 3, 1806; m. John Wesley Welden, judge of the Supreme Court of N. B., and for many years speaker of the House of Assembly. They had: (1) Charles W. Welden, b. Feb. 27, 1830, m. Anne Tucker, was made queen's counsel, 1873, and a member of the House of Commons for the city and county of St. John, 1878.* (2) J. D. Upham Welden, of Natal, South Africa. (3) Mary Elizabeth Welden, m. James O'Dell of the 63d Regiment. They have a son, J. T. O'Dell, who was an officer of the 65th Regiment, in 1878. Frances Chandler (Upham) Welden d. May 19, 1844, and he m. (2) Susan, eldest dau. of Judge Thomas Chandler Halburton, author of "Sam Slick."

The following is the fac simile of an autograph letter from Judge Joshua Upham to Col. Abraham De Peyster, of St. John, N. B., also an American Loyalist.

* The Hon. Charles W. Welden, D. C. L., Q. C., is one of the most prominent public men in New Brunswick. He was graduated at King's College, Windsor, in 1847, and is a member of the law firm of Welden & McLean, of St. John. His legal attainments are recognized as of a very high order, and there have been few important cases in New Brunswick of late years in which he has not been retained. As an authority on maritime law, it is said he has no peer in Canada. In politics he has always been a pronounced liberal. In religion he is a member of the Church of England.—A special number of the Dominion Illustrated, of Feb. 14, 1891, contains a portrait, and biographical sketch of Mr. Welden.

Dear Sir,

Josh is going soon ~~for the winter~~ to Westmoreland with Mr. Proctor to spend the winter ^{with him} to pay his passage & please to let him have 40/ — he says he is indebted about five dollars to a Taylor & Shoemaker — they will call on you about one month hence, if possible to pay them, the above amount, being what is due to both — your friend &c.

Joshua Upham

Dec^r 10. 1797. —

C. A. Depewster —

The following extract from the Diary of Benjamin Marston shows some of the service which Major Upham rendered the Crown in 1781. Benjamin Marston was a relative of the Winslows, and at one time was sheriff of Northumberland county, New Brunswick. His diary has only lately been discovered, and contains much historical information concerning the times of which he wrote :

“New York, Thursday, July 12, 1781.

“Saturday, July 14.

“The party who attacked were about 400. They were defeated by Major Upham who commands the Post at the Neck with some loss. On our side no one person was hurt. This Post is of importance to the Garrison supplying it with quantities of fuel—notwithstanding it was ordered a few days ago to be evacuated by ye troops who kept post there and but for the entreaties of the aforementioned Major Upham would have been left with some thousand cords of wood a prey to the enemy.

“He was permitted to take post there with about 100 or 150 Refugees. With this handful aided by the crews of some vessels who were there a wooding he defeated the enemy who came to take possession of it. But notwithstanding the importance of the post, the people who have offered their services to keep it, cannot obtain even an allowance of rations—at the same time a very elegant musick house is built at Fort George and subscriptions are taken at Rivington’s office at a guinea a piece to lay out a walk at ye upper fort for the use of the military gentlemen.”

In addition to the foregoing extracts it may be of interest to say that old Mr. Burnett, of Norton, N. B., who was at Lloyd’s Neck, stated:

“The Fort on Lloyd’s Neck was defended by the Loyalists themselves. They used to go up the hill above the fort to cut the wood which was then shipped to New York, for the use of the Royal Army. To facilitate their work they constructed a slide, or spout, down which the wood was thrown as it was cut. When the alarm was given that the fort was about to be attacked, they hurried with all speed to their posts. The wood cutters, partly from the nature of their work, and partly from the exigencies of the times, wore sheep skin breeches. On the occasion of the alarm just referred to, a number of the men in their haste to defend the post slid down the spout, ‘and I tell you,’ said a participant in the affair, ‘the leather breeches were pretty hot.’”

70. Jabez^s Upham (Jabez^s, Phineas^t, Phineas^s, Phineas^s, John¹), of Woodstock, and later of Upham, Kings county, New Brunswick, b. in Brookfield, Dec. 28, 1747; m. Bethia Cutler, dau. of Thomas, of Weston, Nov. 28, 1771, who was b. 1753, and d. in 81st year, Aug. 26, 1834. He was in the Revolutionary war, enlisted for three years in the Continental army, in 1781; after the war he probably lived in Vt., for a time, but finally went to Woodstock, N. B., where he was one of the early settlers. It has been a matter of current belief among some of his posterity in N. B., that he was a Loyalist during the Revolution, but this is an evident mistake — the year of his enlistment, and his age are on the company roll; this impression was probably owing to the fact that his brother, Judge, and Col. Joshua, was a prominent Loyalist, and also settled in the provinces after the Revolution. Jabez Upham was first engaged in lumbering at Woodstock; was at one time high sheriff, and also had the title of lieut. He was not successful in business at Woodstock, and finally settled in Kings county, where he obtained land, at a place which was given the name of Upham, which it still retains. He died at Upham, Aug. 3, 1822, in his 73d year. His posterity are still living at Upham, and vicinity, in considerable numbers. Jabez Upham and wife Bethia had:

- I Charlotte, b. Sept. 7, 1772, at Brookfield; m. Col. Richard Ketchum, of Woodstock, and had 9 children.
- 157 II James, b. Sept. 9, 1774; m. Martha Smith, and was for many years a magistrate, and collector of customs at Woodstock.
- III William, b. March 16, 1777; m. Betsey Smith, of W.
- IV Sarah, b. March 17, 1779; d. Nov. 22, 1852.
- V Abigail, b. Dec. 11, 1781; d. April 9, 1782.
- 158 VI Joshua, b. July 28, 1784; lived at Upham, and d. Feb. 1, 1862.

A note in the register of this family says: "The first six born in Brookfield, the others at Cavendish, New State."

- VII Jabez, b. April 17, 1787; he was colonel in the militia, and d. unm., Aug. 1, 1866. (One of this family, in a later generation, writes: "We cannot say when they came to New Brunswick, but find in an old book, that Jabez was born in Vermont, April 17, 1787.")
- VIII Isabella, b. Dec. 27, 1790; d. Feb. 2, 1857.
- IX Thomas C., b. Oct. 16, 1793; d. Dec. 6, 1796.

X Mary, b. July 22, 1797; m. James Titus, of Upham, and had 8 children — among whom, Jabez, Jonathan, and James; she d. Aug. 9, 1872.

71. James⁶ Upham (Jabez⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Montgomery, Vt., b. July 13, 1755, in Brookfield, Mass.; m. Elizabeth Barnard, b. at Deerfield, Nov. 26, 1767; d. at Montgomery, June 6, 1851. He d. at Montgomery, Oct., 1827. They had:

159 I Selah Barnard, b. Nov. 2, 1786, at Deerfield; d. at M., April 15, 1835.

II Isabella Bliss, b. Sept. 26, 1789, at Mayville, N. B.

III George Ryerson, b. Aug. 1, 1790, at Mayville, N. B.

IV Louisa Buckminster, b. March 9, 1793, at Brookfield, Mass.

V Sarah Eliza, b. March 24, 1795, at Brookfield.

VI Joshua Chamberlain, b. April 2, 1797, at Brookfield.

VII James Francis, b. March 19, 1799, at Brookfield; lived in Wisconsin.

VIII Henry Haskins, b. May 3, 1801, at Montgomery.

IX Samuel B. S., b. April 7, 1803, at Montgomery; had a son, Selah Barnard, who was at one time located at 841 8th avenue, New York.

X Frances Catherine, b. June 21, 1805, at Montgomery.

160 XI Edward Erastus, b. Sept. 27, 1808, at Montgomery; in mercantile business at Portland, Me.

XII Mary Chamberlain, b. Aug. 15, 1810, at Montgomery.

The descendants of this family are scattered through the West, and many of them have not been traced.

72. Edward⁶ Upham (Jabez⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Northampton, Mass., b. 1759-60 (he released his guardian March 2, 1781), in Brookfield; m. Mary Catlin, of Deerfield, Mass., who d. Dec. 7, 1833, æ. 69. He was a lawyer of much promise, and practised his profession first at New Salem; was local leader of the Jeffersonian party in politics, and presidential elector in 1804; subsequently he removed to Northampton, and in 1807, was candidate for Congress, but died suddenly, before the election, at the age of about 48. His wife survived his death, and at her death, the following obituary notice was published in the Northampton Courier:

"Died. In this town, Dec. 7, 1833, widow Mary C. Upham, aged 69. Mrs. Upham's life was characterized by Christian humility and uprightness; great fortitude in the discharge of responsible duties under adverse circumstances; and the constant exercise of the spirit of benevolence and kindness. She was excellent in precept, and impressive in example; and until the day her death was announced, in exercise of those high parental duties which ever devolve upon a mother. Her sickness was protracted and severe, but she endured her sufferings with exemplary fortitude, and died with much calmness and resignation."

Edward Upham and his wife Mary had :

I Seth Bliss ; returned to New Salem, where he died.

161 II Charles Jarvis, m. Eliza Clary in 1833, dau. of Ethan Allen Clary, of Springfield, Mass.

III Abby, d. unm. in Northampton, March 4, 1830, æ. 37. The following obituary notice was published in the Northampton Courier: "Died: March 4, 1830, Miss Abby Upham, eldest daughter of the late Edward Upham, Esq., of this place. Miss Upham possessed beyond most of her sex, strength and understanding united to pure and elevated impulses of heart; endowed by nature with a mind of a superior order, and cultivated as such a mind will become, in spite of adverse circumstances, she exhibited in society attractions refined with a just taste, and discriminating, though unobtrusive knowledge. By an early bereavement she was left without a natural protector or guard, to meet and repel the frowns of fortune, and the cold regards of the world. With a clear perception of the obligations which her situation imposed, and a persevering resolution to perform whatever duty required, she sustained herself when most would have faltered, and many might have fallen. She lived to meet the reward of her honorable exertions, in comparative prosperity, respect and attachment, and numerous friends. Her example is full of instruction and encouragement to those who entering on life with fair prospects, and high expectations, find them all, by a sudden reverse levelled in the dust. Her last illness was protracted and painful, but borne with that fortitude, which an unwavering trust in the Being who gave her life, and from whom she had received so many liberal endowments, alone could inspire. To Him she cheerfully resigned her spirit, in the humble hope and trust that He would guide it through the valley of death to eternal life."

IV Mary; lived in Cambridge; she and her sister Kate purchased the Foxcroft house at Cambridge, near Harvard University, where they, for many years, successfully conducted a boarding place for professors and students at Harvard. She d. at Cambridge, March 9, 1859, æ. 63.

- V Julia, m. David Gorham Wood, who d. in Cambridge, March 8, 1878; they had a dau. who m. Dr. William Johnson, of Beacon st., Boston, and she, in 1888, conducted the Foxcroft house, at Cambridge, as had her aunts, Mary and Kate.

- VI Katherine; lived many years at Cambridge and with her sister Mary conducted the Foxcroft house, as appears above; she d. unm.

- VII Henry; settled first in Sullivan county, New York, and had a farm in Rockland; was constable, collector, assessor, and deputy sheriff. About 1815, he m. Sally —, and lived in Ellenville, Ulster co., N. Y. He was drowned, Oct. 6, 1830, at Eddyville, 20 miles down the river, while stepping from a raft which he was taking down. They had six children, aged respectively at the date of their father's death, in 1830, as follows: Mary, 15; Katherine, 10; Sarah, 13; Edward, 8; Elizabeth, 4; George Washington, 2.

73. Amos⁶ Upham (Amos⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Malden, Mass., b. there, 1741; m. Mary Green, b. June 27, 1746, d. Feb. 27, 1775; m. (2) Anna Knight, of Stoneham, Jan. 9, 1777. They had:

ence to the family: "My grandfather, Luke, was a good deal like his father in his earlier years, though different afterward; he was known in his youth as 'Wild Luke,' to distinguish him from his uncle Luke. My grandmother was a little older than her husband, religious, and remarkably well read, with a very retentive memory — poetical, somewhat eccentric, and yet with much foresight; but she was a business manager, like her mother-in-law. Owing to my grandfather's recklessness, they had at times pecuniary troubles, though always comfortable. Their home was always attractive by its quiet neatness, grandmother's fine conversational powers and great-grandfather's humor; comparatively poor, they helped others who were poorer, and later they reaped their reward." 141. Joshua⁷ Upham (Jesse⁶, Timothy⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Salem, Mass., b. in Saugus, Mass. (the place where he was born was at that time a part of Chelsea, and lies near the line between Melrose and Saugus), Dec. 15, 1784; m. Jan. 27, 1807, Mary Nichols, who was b. in Salem, 1787, and d. Jan. 13, 1845. (She was dau. of James and Mary (Learock) Nichols of Salem, and a descendant of William Nichols, b. in England, 1594, and lived to be over 102 years old.) He m. (2) Ann (Marshall) Rugg (widow of Daniel of Salem), Sept. 10, 1845, who d. July 26, 1872, æ. 87. He was for many years superintendent of the Chemical Works in Salem, and d. in Salem, July 20, 1858, in his 74th year. He was buried with his wife, Mary Nichols, in the old Broad St. Cemetery, in the family tomb. In 1885, his son (Rev. James Upham, D. D., of Chelsea) published an interesting little book, entitled "A Sketch of the Life and Character of Dea. Joshua Upham, of Salem," which contains a very full, complete, and excellent history of this family, including all the descendants of Dea. Joshua Upham. The same author also furnished the following shorter sketch of the life and character of Joshua Upham for these pages:

"Deacon Joshua Upham combined in his character many of the best qualities of our common ancestor,—independence, self-reliance, energy, enterprise, practical sense, and an all-controlling religiousness. He left the farm upon which he had been born, and where he had up to that time lived, at the age of fifteen, and went to Boston with the purpose of learning the trade of a mason. He was influenced in this decision by the knowledge that a relative in Boston who had attained to wealth and social position, had begun life in the same way. But before finishing his apprenticeship, the displeasure of his master's wife, at a thoughtless act of his, stung his proud heart to the quick, and, yielding to the foolish impulse, he quit his master, and left Boston at the age of nineteen.

"He says: 'I found myself in Salem, not knowing a single person, with only twenty cents in my pocket, not a second shirt to put on, no trowel to work with, and half my money spent for lodging and board at the Sun Tavern,'—afterward known as the Essex House, and the Lafayette House.

"In a few years he became the leading master mason in town. In his thirty-third year he was chosen deacon of the First Baptist Church of Salem, retaining his office and discharging its duties with rare fidelity until his death—a period of forty-one years. The same year he was appointed superintendent of the Chemical Works of the Salem Laboratory Company. The latter position, too, he filled with great success, until, in his sixty-seventh year, he voluntarily resigned it.

"Although a decidedly benevolent man, and never given to mere money getting—and at the same time bringing up a large family, on whose education he expended much—he left a competency at his death. His dominant qualities were integrity and godliness; and his greatest wish in his children's behalf was for their spiritual prosperity, and their service in the cause of Christ. Three of his children became ministers of the gospel, one a deacon, one the wife of a minister, and another the wife of a layman in Boston, who by his wealth, example, counsel and large ideas of Christian stewardship, has done perhaps as much as any one in that city to stir the churches to active enterprise in their work."

In the family history already mentioned, the Rev. James Upham says: "Grandfather" (Nichols) "house, in which I and probably all the children older than myself were born, is No. 16 Cambridge St. The house in which all the younger children than myself were born is No. 148 Federal St. Here, on the garden, which reached to the river, father built three houses. The one into which he removed, and in which he died, is No. 17 Dean St., the one with the cupola third from Federal St. The old homestead was on the north-west corner of Dean and Federal Sts. The tomb in which father was buried was built by him and grandfather Nichols. It also contains the bodies of mother and her parents, besides many other members of the two families." The following obituary notice appeared in the Watchman, at Boston, April 11, 1889:

"MRS. SOPHRONIA (WRIGHT) NORTON.

"Died in Boston, April 5th, aged sixty-four, Mrs. Sophronia (Wright) Norton, daughter of the late Dea. Joshua Upham, of Salem. She became a Christian in her youth, and was ever true to her early vows. She was twice married — first to Mr. George W. Wright, of Millbury, Mass., who died in 1849, after about two and a half years of wedded life, during which time her chief relationship to him was that of a loving, faithful nurse. In 1867 she married Mr. Henry H. Norton, of Boston. Five years later he was seized with small-pox, then so prevalent in Boston and vicinity. During his sickness he was violently insane, but she watched over him with the most assiduous care. He was not at that time a Christian, and her importunate prayer was that God would spare his life, restore his health and bring him to a saving knowledge of Christ, promising cheerfully to resign him whenever God should again call for him by death. God fully heard her prayer. Her husband recovered, became a Christian, witnessed a good confession, and died three years later. She fully kept her promise, not even asking God again to spare his life, though very tenderly attached to him.

"For many years Mrs. Norton was a most successful teacher in the grammar schools of Boston and Brookline, and during her later years presided with great satisfaction over the household of Mr. D. S. Ford, her brother-in-law. Her character was ever marked by individuality, independency, decision and signal generosity.

"Her sickness was protracted and painful, and affected her mind as well as her body. But her faith and hope shone through the rifts in the cloud. In the early part of her sickness she said to her sister-in-law, 'I have never once asked God for my recovery.' In all her lucid moments her one desire was to 'depart.' Her last, faint words were 'Home—home.'

"Rev. Dr. Chase, of the Ruggles Street Church, officiated at the funeral. Although he had never been able to see her in life, he rendered the service exceedingly acceptable and comfortable to the friends. Her remains were deposited in the family tomb at Salem. "JAMES UPHAM."

XI Ellen Maria, b. March 9, 1827; m. Aug. 29, 1852, Rev. William Lamb Picknell, of Fairfax, Vt., Sept. 28, 1867. He was graduated at New Hampton Literary and Theological Institution 1851; was settled as pastor of the Baptist churches in Hinesburg, Windham, and North Springfield, Vt., at which last place he died Sept. 28, 1867. They had: (1) William Picknell, b. in Hinesburg, Oct. 23, 1853. (2) Lucius Bolles Picknell, b. in Hinesburg, March 13, 1855; d. in North Springfield, July 18, 1864. 142. Hon. Nathaniel⁷ Upham (Timothy⁶, Timothy⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Rochester, N. H., b. in Deerfield, N. H., June 9, 1774; m. March 22, 1798, Judith Cogswell, of Gilmanton, N. H., who was b. in Haverhill, Mass., March 9, 1776 (she was the dau. of Hon. Thos. Cogswell, lieut.-col. in the Revolutionary army, and subsequently, for many years, judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and Ruth, his cousin and wife, the dau. of Hon. Joseph Badger, of Gilmanton); she survived his death, and d. April 30, 1837, at the age of 61.

Hon. Nathaniel Upham was a member of the 15th, 16th, and 17th Congresses (1817 to 1823), from New Hampshire. His education was mainly obtained in his native town, though in 1793, he entered the academy at Exeter, N. H., where he remained six months. In 1794, being then in his twentieth year, he began a mercantile life at Gilmanton, with his uncle, the Hon. Nathaniel Gookin; but left Gilmanton in 1796, and commenced business for himself in Deerfield, remaining there about seven years. In the spring of 1801 he closed his business at Deerfield, and recommenced at Portsmouth, N. H. In March, 1802, he removed to Rochester, in Stratford Co., where he permanently established himself in mercantile business, and of which place he remained a citizen during the remainder of his life. In his business he was at all times eminently successful, but his natural abilities and tendencies eventually brought him into prominent public life.

He represented Rochester in the State Legislature, during the years 1807, 1808, and 1809; and in 1811, was elected counselor to Gov. Langdon, of New Hampshire; in 1812, he was again elected to the same office, with Gov. William Plummer. During the political excitement attending the approach of the war of 1812-14, and the days of the Embargo, he was an active member of the opposition, or Republican party, which strongly advocated a second war with Great Britain, such a war being thought unnecessary, and opposed by the party which bore the distinctive name of Federal. In 1813, on the passage of the act of Congress for direct taxation, he was appointed collector for his district, by President Madison, but he declined the appointment. In 1814 he was nominated for Congress, the ticket being headed:—

“Free American Ticket!

Union of the State — Union of the People.

No Submission to British Re-Colonization!! United we Stand,— Divided we Fall.”

The opposing ticket contained the name of Daniel Webster, and that ticket was elected to the 14th Congress; but it was the last triumph of that party in the State.

With the return of the New Hampshire soldiers, after the close of the war with England, the Republican party readily regained its ascendancy in the political contest of 1816. Their Congressional ticket, bearing the name of Nathaniel Upham and five others, was elected to the 15th Congress by a large majority, James Monroe having been chosen President of the United States. Mr. Upham took his seat in the House of Representatives, at the opening of Congress, Dec. 1, 1817. The following account of the services of Mr. Upham in Congress is almost a verbatim extract from pages of his son, Dr. Albert Gookin Upham's book, on the family history of this branch, already frequently referred to.

In his annual message, which was transmitted to both Houses of Congress on the day after the assembling of the 15th Congress, the subject of Amelia Island was laid before them by the President.

Amelia Island, at the mouth of St. Mary's river, near the boundary of the State of Georgia, was taken possession by an expedition of persons claiming to act under the authority of some of the Spanish colonies, which, at that time, were striving to establish their independence. The expedition seems to have been a mere private, unauthorized adventure. The island was made a channel for the illicit introduction of slaves from Africa into the United States; an asylum for fugitive slaves from the neighboring States; and for banditti, privateersmen, and smugglers of various nations. A committee was appointed in reference to this subject, of which Mr. Upham was a member.

The committee reported on the 9th of January, in favor of efficient measures for suppressing the establishment; and said in their report: "The course pursued on this occasion will strongly mark the feelings and intentions of our government on the great question of the slave trade, which is so justly considered by most civilized nations a practice repugnant to justice and humanity, and which, in our particular case, is not less so to all the dictates of a sound policy."

On the 13th of the same month, the President, by a special message, informed Congress that the establishment at Amelia Island had been suppressed, "and the consummation of a project, fraught with much injury to the United States, prevented." The committee on Amelia Island also reported a bill, in addition to the former acts, prohibiting the introduction of slaves into the United States.

On the 30th of January, Mr. Upham voted against the bill making more ample provision for the recovery of fugitive slaves, which passed by a majority of 14 votes.

Among the most important of the votes which he gave during the session were, his vote Dec. 10, for the repeal of internal duties; on January 5, against reducing the pay of members from nine dollars per day to six, and in favor of reducing it from nine to eight; on January 25, for the rejection of a bill establishing a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States, which was lost by a majority of 12. On March 14 he voted for the following resolution : " That Congress has power under the Constitution to appropriate money for the construction of post roads, military and other roads, and for the improvement of water-courses ; " which resolution was passed by a vote of 90 against 75.

President Monroe, on the 17th of Nov., 1817, transmitted his annual message to both Houses of Congress. Mr. Upham was appointed a member of the committee on the illicit introduction of slaves into the United States ; which committee, on the 13th of January, reported an act in addition to its former acts, for the prohibition of the slave trade ; and Congress passed a bill authorizing the employment of the armed vessels of the United States to cruise on the coast of Africa, to enforce the acts of Congress prohibiting the slave trade.

The question of the admission of Missouri into the Union being before the House of Representatives, on Feb. 16, Mr. Upham voted for the following amendment to the bill: " That the further introduction of slavery or involuntary servitude be prohibited, except for the punishment of crimes whereof the party shall have been convicted," which passed by a vote of 87 to 76.

On the 18th of February, the House proceeded to consider a bill for the establishment of a separate territorial government in the southern part of the Missouri Territory — a territory which now constitutes the State of Arkansas. Mr. Taylor, of New York, moved to amend the same by inserting the following proviso : " All children born of slaves within the said territory shall be free, but may be held to service until the age of twenty-five years," which amendment was carried by a vote of 75 to 73. A motion was afterward made to recommit the bill, with instructions to the committee to amend by striking out that clause. The vote stood 88 to 88, and was decided in the affirmative by the Speaker. Mr. Upham voted against the bill as thus amended. It passed by a majority of 2 votes.

During this second session of the 15th Congress the State of Illinois was declared admitted to the Union, and the President was authorized to take possession of Florida, agreeably to the treaty of the 22d of Feb., 1819. The 15th Congress ended on the 3d of March, 1819.

The 16th Congress commenced on Monday, the 16th day of December, 1819. During the second session of the 15th Congress, a bill providing for the admission of Missouri, which contained a clause prohibiting slavery in the proposed State, was passed by a vote of 87 to 76. On the 1st of March, 1820, the House of Representatives again passed a similar bill by a vote of 91 to 82 ; for both of which bills Mr. Upham voted. The restriction as to slavery was stricken out, however, by the Senate, and the House, at a late hour on the following night, agreed to the amendment, by a vote of 90 to 87. Mr. Upham voted against the amended bill, which was passed by a majority of 3 only; and had every member of the House been present and voted, it is believed the vote would have stood 92 to 92. This bill, as usual, provided for the admission of Missouri whenever she should frame a constitution acceptable to Congress.

The second session of the 16th Congress opened on the 13th day of Dec., 1820. Mr. Clay having resigned the office of Speaker of the House, it was not till the third day of an animated contest, and at the twenty-second balloting, that his place was filled. William Lowndes, a distinguished statesman of South Carolina, received 42 votes, and John W. Taylor 76, one vote more than was necessary for a choice over all the other candidates, and was accordingly elected. During this contest Mr. Upham's influence was exerted with effect in favor of Mr. Taylor.

The next day Mr. Lowndes, of the select committee to whom was referred the constitution formed for their government by the people of Missouri, reported a resolve setting forth that Missouri had complied with the act of the 6th of March, 1820, and formed a republican government, and declaring her admission into the Union. Then ensued a strife equally stormy with that which had prevailed during the previous session, on the same subject. On Wednesday, Dec. 14, the resolve for the admission of Missouri into the Union was rejected, by a vote of 93 to 79. Finally, at the close of the session, Mr. Clay, from the joint committee, reported a resolve for the admission of Missouri, which passed by a vote of 87 to 81.

During the whole of this long and exciting discussion, through three terms of Congress, and in which the public mind was interested to a degree without precedent or example since, Mr. Upham's vote was throughout recorded against the extension of slavery.

He also voted, during this session, for a resolve, introduced by Mr. Clay, that the House of Representatives would give its constitutional support to the President, whenever he should deem it expedient to recognize the independence of the Spanish provinces of South America, which passed by a vote of 87 to 68. While a member of this Congress, he also voted for the admission of Alabama and Maine into the Union.

In 1821 Mr. Upham was elected representative for the third time, and thereby became a member of the 17th Congress ; that is, a member of the House for the sessions of 1821-22, and 1822-23. There were but few subjects of importance or interest on which the 17th Congress was called to legislate. Nevertheless, on the 23d of February, 1823, on motion of Hon. Charles Fenton Mercer, then of Virginia, the following resolve was adopted by the House of Representatives:

Resolved, That the President of the United States be requested to enter upon and prosecute, from time to time, such negotiations with the several maritime powers of Europe and America, as he may deem expedient for the effectual abolition of the African slave trade, and its ultimate denunciation as piracy, under the laws of nations, by the consent of the civilized world.

This act was the fruit of much counsel and long deliberation, and was postponed from previous Congresses, to secure more unanimity, in order to give more solemn and imposing dignity to this national condemnation of the slave trade, and the appeals in consequence to be addressed to the civilized world. Many of the legislators who voted for this act regarded it as one of the most memorable transactions in their political lives.

This measure, supported by Mr. Upham and by many others of the most patriotic and distinguished statesmen of that day, was passed, 131 members voting for the resolve, and only 3 against it. The Congress of the United States having thus, of all the legislative bodies, assumed the initiative in this matter, exerted its influence with other countries so efficiently, that the slave trade was speedily declared piracy by the law of nations.

The 17th Congress closed its session on the 3d of March, 1823. Previous to this, Mr. Upham had declined to become again a candidate for the office which he had so honorably filled for the last six years; and, bidding adieu to Congress and public life, he returned to the quiet of his village and the bosom of his family.

There were many reasons why Mr. Upham wished to withdraw from public life. His health had been seriously injured by the climate at Washington, and by an attack of inflammation of the lungs there in the spring of 1820. He had, moreover, observed, that causes were in operation which must produce great and fundamental changes in the political aspect of the country; that events, to which the then existing parties owed their origin, were beginning to lose their power, and the progress of time was developing new interests, which would again convulse the State, and become the source of new political organizations. Mr. Upham had acted an important part during these transition states of the Republic, and knew well the violence of the struggles which accompany the change. Therefore, enfeebled in health, and needing repose, he determined to retire completely from public life, at a period when the political storm was yet distant.

The storm came, but Mr. Upham, personally acquainted with the candidates for the presidency, and clearly appreciating the principles which they represented, chose rather by precept and example to calm the fury of political strife and soften the bitterness of party feeling, than to become personally engaged in the combat. He steadily pursued this course during the violent contest between Mr. Adams and Gen. Jackson. In every position in which he was placed he maintained, with dignity and skill, the ground which he had taken.

In 1828, the year preceding his death, his son-in-law, Hon. David Barker, representative in Congress from the district previously represented by Mr. Upham, addressed the Whigs assembled at Rochester, on the anniversary of our national independence. His address was an eloquent exposition of the position of the parties at that time, and was followed by a public dinner, at which Mr. Upham presided. At this period political feeling was running high, and it was hoped that Mr. Upham would take the occasion to designate his views in relation to the opposing parties. But this he avoided, and on rising contented himself with offering the following sentiment: "Our next President,"—and pausing a moment till the attention of all was excited, he continued: "May he be a man who shall reverence the Constitution and the laws." A sentiment which instantly commended itself to all present, and was received with great applause.

Early in the summer of 1829 Mr. Upham was attacked with a bilious fever, followed by an organic disease of the liver, which terminated his life on the morning of the 10th of July, 1829, being 55 years and 1 month old. He was buried at Rochester.

Having reference to his relations with his fellow townsmen, and his general and personal characteristics, his son says:

"In his local duties as a citizen, he was especially active in devising good, and in his efforts for the prospective improvement of society. Throughout his residence in Rochester he had taken a deep interest in the promotion of education, and especially in the prosperity of the village schools. He procured for them the best teachers, and induced many to educate their sons, who otherwise would not have done so; and in accordance with his views on this subject, five of his own children received a collegiate education.

"He was a firm and liberal supporter of religious institutions, and ministers of religion ever found a cordial welcome at his home. He never united with the church; truly consoling, however, were the hopes of his friends in his death. Some time previous to his decease, having received a visit from a clergyman, he requested that he would pray for him. 'How shall I pray for you?' replied the minister. 'Pray for me as a penitent sinner,' was his answer — an answer laden with hopes of heaven.

"He was six feet and four inches high, well formed and perfectly erect; in middle life his hair was black, his forehead was high, his eyes blue, his nose Roman, and complexion clear. Morse's celebrated picture of the House of Representatives, which was painted while he was in Congress, contains an accurate likeness of him.

"His character was such that, in whatever sphere he was called to act, he won the esteem of all who knew him. He was endowed with strong reasoning powers, together with a remarkable quickness of perception. He was also distinguished for his strength of memory; and would repeat numerous texts, with prominent portions of discourses, which he had heard in his early youth. He was fond of theological investigations, a taste for which he had imbibed while listening at the fireside of his father to discussions on doctrinal theology, so prevalent at that period. On all subjects he was a formidable adversary to encounter in an argument — an exercise to which he was naturally inclined, and which was peculiarly calculated to call out the powers of his intellect. It was a common remark that no one ever worsted him in debate; for, if he failed to convince the judgment, he was sure, by his wit and skill at repartee, to win the applause of the audience. He possessed great foresight and sound judgment, and was distinguished for an untiring perseverance in whatever he undertook. He not only won the esteem, and was relied upon in a trying crisis in the country's history, as a leader among his own particular friends, and their favorite candidate for four successive Congresses, but he commanded equally the respect and regard of his political opponents. In all the relations of life his integrity was unimpeachable, and his death has left a void in the community which has been most deeply lamented."

The following is a brief extract from the remarks of Dr. Upham with reference to his mother:

"Mrs. Judith (Cogswell) Upham, who survived her husband several years, was admitted to communion with the Congregational Church in Rochester, May 8, 1831; she died on Sunday morning, April 30, 1837, aged 61 years, 1 month and 4 days. She was an only daughter, and received her education almost entirely in her father's house; this home had been for her a school of benevolence, in which she had freely and readily learned the great lesson of love for all mankind; and it was the deep and natural impulse of her heart to pity and relieve the poor and unfortunate. In the control of her household and in the parental education of her children, she was calm, dignified and beneficent. In stature she was five feet and eleven inches high, her hair was dark brown, forehead high, nose Grecian, mouth small, eyes blue, complexion fair. Her form was full and well proportioned, and her voice peculiarly melodious."

- X Francis William, b. Sept. 10, 1817; m. Elizabeth Brewer; m. (2) Elizabeth R. Kendall. He was a graduate of Bowdoin College, 1838, LL. D., and a lawyer of New York City.
- XI Albert Gookin, b. July 10, 1819; graduated from Bowdoin College in 1840, studied medicine with his brother, Dr. Timothy, of Waterford, N. Y., attended medical lectures in Albany and Castleton, and received in the latter institution, in 1842, the appointment of Prof. of Pathological Anatomy. He sailed for Europe in the autumn of 1842, to prosecute his studies in Paris, where he remained until the spring of 1844; then making a tour of the Continent, he returned and settled, in 1844, as a physician in Boston, Mass., where he died after a brief illness, June 16, 1847. His death was a great sorrow to his family and friends, and a great loss to the medical profession. (The foregoing from the Cogswell Genealogy.) In Oct., 1845, Dr. Upham published the first that had ever been published on the genealogy of the Uphams in the United States, a small volume containing 102 pages, entitled "Notices of the Life of John Upham, the First Inhabitant of New England who bore that Name; together with An Account of such of his Descendants as were the Ancestors of Hon. Nathaniel Upham of Rochester, N. H.; with a short sketch of the Life of the Latter." The material which was gathered by Dr. Upham at that time has been the basis of all that has since been written upon the origin of the Uphams in this country, or any branch of them. But for the pages of this little book, it is quite positive this genealogy would not have been compiled; and those of the Upham posterity who are interested in this subject may feel that they owe a debt of gratitude to his memory. It is said that with his death went out a fund of valuable information concerning the Uphams which may never have been recovered. The N. E. Gen. and Hist. Register, Vol. 1, pages 365-8, contains a biographical sketch of Dr. Albert Gookin Upham.

The Rochester Courier, of December 14, 1888, contained the following with reference to this family:

EARLY ROCHESTER SKETCHES.

Twenty years ago there was a stately old mansion on Main street in our village, that was the pride of the older residents of Norway Plains, and the admiration of all lovers of the antique in house architecture. It occupied a lot nearly opposite the Congregational church, and for a quarter of a century had each morning smiled recognition to the old meeting-house over the way, or ever since the latter had taken its march from the common to its present location. The "goodly dwelling" stood back a proper distance from the street, and was two stories in height, painted white, with green blinds. A fine old porch, built after that quaint fashion that house builders style "closed in," graced the front, and elegant workmanship was displayed about it, from the wide paneled door with its big brass handle and great knocker, also of brass, and fan-light with gilded blind, to the delicate railing on top. Over the porch woodbine wandered, creeping through the railing, while below on the old terrace, in front of the house, myrtle, the old-fashioned ivy-leaved, blue flowered, grew in profusion, covering the banks completely, the starry blossoms in early spring expressing their language of love. A paved walk of brick led in through the grassy yard up to the entrance door, where were stone steps, hammered in ancient fashion and as solid as the foundation of the old mansion itself.

This, reader, was the "Old Upham mansion," as it was designated by the villagers, and was to Rochester what the Governor Langdon mansion is to-day to Portsmouth — the finest of its early residences, and which I did not fail to pass by on the occasion of my visit to the old town last summer, that I have never before spoken of in my sketches.

Nathaniel Upham, who erected the Upham house, came to Rochester about the year 1802, and was an early merchant here, after people had begun to choose Norway Plains as a place for business instead of old Haven Hill, the early settlement. That old place had begun to decline; there was no water-power there, and here could be found the finest needed for grist-mills, saw-mills or for any manufacturing purposes. Yet what year Mr. Upham built his residence I am unable to tell, but it was about the time the Woodman mansion was erected, or a little later. Indeed, there is an old tradition that a man, name unknown to me, commenced to build the last named and failed up. Lawyer Woodman and Upham both fancied it, but the lawyer "won the day," as lawyers usually do, when Mr. Upham declared he would build one that should eclipse it. His domicile was not so showy in the exterior, but the interior was made finer and the house was in reality the nicest one, the materials and the workmanship being of the best, the latter exquisite in the spacious front parlors.

Mr. Upham was one of the old-time merchants, they used to be called traders then, and he kept in his store every thing called for by the public, from a gentleman's silk pocket handkerchief to a hogshead of rum. He was courteous and affable, and in this way drew much custom and trade to his store, which was some little ways above his house on the opposite side of the street. He probably entered the store previous to the dwelling, but he came, I think, as I said before, in 1802. He was a native of Deerfield, and had been with his brother Timothy Upham in his store at Portsmouth, where he learned the trade, for trade it is.

In those times Rochester had a large trade with the up-country people, those who lived above the lake, and even to the Connecticut river. Portsmouth was usually their destination, though many went to Dover with their butter, cheese, etc., while others stopped at Rochester, particularly if it happened to be late in the season when they arrived, or the sleighing poor. I fancy there are many persons living in the village to-day who can recollect the long file of teams. It was like a procession, the strong horses attached to great pungs driven by thrifty farmers traveling together on their way to market. Alas! they will be seen no more!

Mr. Upham's mercantile life occasioned frequent visits to Portsmouth and also journeys to Boston, yet to the last-named city I think he went not oftener than twice a year. The journey was a long one then. It took much more time than it does now, but when the old-time merchant returned from the above-named business centers he had much interesting news to communicate to his customers, for he was a keen observer and ready talker, and one thing that I always admired in the man, he was not a jealous person and enjoyed a jest and a laugh. He also did not mind repeating a joke at his own expense.

In person he was tall and his limbs very long, yet he carried himself well and was a real gentleman of the old school. It used to be remarked that he was a "gentleman trader," while he always wore ruffled bosomed shirts like the aristocratic Portsmouth merchants, and enjoyed smoking his cigar every morning before his place of business. He was one of the first men of his adopted town, and was well and favorably known in the State. I think old Norway Plains never had a more public-spirited citizen or successful business man than "Squire Upham," as he grew to be known. He became interested in political affairs, and in 1811-12 was a member of the governor's council. In 1817 he was chosen a representative to Congress from our first district. It was an honor fitly bestowed and he represented for three consecutive terms, from 1817 to 1823, the old first district ably, faithfully and honorably. Of course he was known at Washington as Hon. Nathaniel Upham, M. C., from New Hampshire, and passed his winters at the capital along with other prominent men of the country.

The store was kept running all the same at Norway Plains during his absence from Rochester, his clerk being a young man polite and obliging, named John Chapman, good looking and intelligent also, who, I believe, came from Northwood, a town near Congressman Upham's early home. Young Chapman afterward married Miss Louisa Barker, the daughter of David Barker, an early and influential resident of Rochester, while Mr. Upham's daughter, Mary, had married David Barker, Jr., who several years later was the congressman from the same district as his father-in-law, representing it from 1827 to 1829, and being one of Rochester's ablest young lawyers.

Nathaniel Upham married Judith Cogswell of Gilmanton. She was the daughter of Hon. Thomas Cogswell, and the family is one of honorable mention in our State like the Wentworth family. Mrs. Upham was a true woman, and a lady beloved by all who knew her. She is said to have been above the medium height and quite portly in person, with a kind, motherly face and pleasing manner. As mistress of the beautiful Upham mansion her social success was great. I am not certain that she accompanied her husband to Washington during his congressional career, but she was fitted to adorn any position in life.

The Upham children were 11 in number, 7 sons and 4 daughters. "They were handsome because they looked intelligent," says an old resident, and I think there is much in that remark to think about. Yet they were a family of great ability. One little daughter, Hannah Elizabeth, died in infancy; the rest lived to grow up. Alfred Upham was the oldest of the boys, and he became a physician known as Dr. Upham, and located in New York. I think he married a Miss Henderson, sister of the late Charles Henderson. Thomas Cogswell Upham, the second boy, was born in Deerfield in 1799, so Rochester cannot claim him among her famous sons. Yet he was only three years old when the family made our good old town their future home. He was the most distinguished of the Upham children, and was sent to college by his father, who thoroughly educated every child, and graduated at Dartmouth in 1818. He became a Congregational minister, and for 2 years, from 1823 to 1825, was colleague pastor of our old Congregational church, the oldest in town, and the beloved assistant of good Parson Haven, who having out-preached his voice, eyesight and congregation, was glad to have his valuable aid in dispensing his ministerial duties. Years afterward, when he was a professor in Bowdoin College, Mr. Upham wrote out his "Pastoral Experiences and Reminiscences in Rochester," which were not published till after his death, and I think there has never been any thing more interesting of Rochester written than those papers contain. He tells us how and why he went to board at John Smith's, the village blacksmith, who kept the village library at his house, and of Arabella, the beautiful daughter, who brought him the books he desired to read. We also learn of his visits to the farmers living in the suburbs of the village, old Farmer Hussey in particular, and of the meetings he held at the dingy school-houses in several districts; of his call on old Mrs. Welch, who resided in the vicinity of Meaderboro, I think, and was a reputed witch. Those papers gave one an insight into the manners of 60 years ago, and a deal of good religious suggestion and instruction.

Thomas C. Upham was made Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy in Bowdoin College in 1825, and left Rochester. Many years after he traveled in Europe, Egypt and Palestine, and he was the author of numerous books, having a world-wide reputation as a theological writer. His "Mental Philosophy" has been used as a text-book in our educational schools. In 1859

"The Life of Faith," by Prof. Upham, was republished in England, and the British Standard said of it:

"The book is the man developed; the book is the man embodied. Every page bespeaks the high intellect of Dr. Upham. The book is a great treasure and we welcome the English edition as a most important accession to our experimental theology.

Was not that high enough praise?

Prof. Upham was the author of some beautiful poems, and his "Song of the Pilgrims" will never be forgotten by one who has read it. I like best now that little poem entitled:

THE LIVING-FOUNTAIN.

I hear the tinkling camel's bell
Beneath the shade of Ebal's mount
And men and beast at Jacob's well
Bow down to taste the living fount.

Samaria's daughter, too, doth share
The draught that earthly thirst can quell?
But who is this that meets her there?
What voice is this at Jacob's well?

"Ho! ask of me, and I will give.
From my own life thy lips supply;
I am the fount; drink, drink and live;
No more to thirst, no more to die!"

Strange mystic words, but words of heaven,
And they who drink to-day, as then,
To them shall inward life be given,
Their souls shall never thirst again.

Prof. Upham died at Brunswick, Me., in 1872, aged 73 years.

Another son of Nathaniel Upham was Nathaniel G. Upham, who was born in Rochester. He also graduated at Dartmouth College like his brother Thomas, but unlike him he was distinguished for his legal knowledge, since he was a lawyer and a very smart one. He opened an office first at Bristol and afterward settled in Concord. From 1833 to 1843 he was one of the judges of the Superior Court. In 1853 he was commissioner to London "for adjustment of claims between citizens of the United States and Great Britain against the government of either country." After this he was general agent of the Concord railroad, remaining in that position nearly to the close of his life. He died in 1869. He had considerable poetic talent and wrote beautiful verse.

The fourth son of the old time Rochester merchant was Timothy Upham, who was also a doctor, and a young man of great promise. He died soon after commencing practice, at Saratoga, N. Y.

Joseph B. Upham, the fifth son, followed a mercantile life and was collector of customs at Portsmouth.

Francis W. Upham, the sixth, is a resident of New York, and is known as an able theological writer.

Albert G. Upham, the youngest boy, born in 1819, graduated at Bowdoin College and completed his medical studies in Europe, while this makes the third doctor in the Upham family. He died in Boston of ship fever, and was buried at Rochester in the old cemetery below the village.

Squire Upham was very proud of his boys and much pleased with their success in the world, and well he might have been. It is related that one day a customer, or villager, was at his store, when the old merchant, as if to enlighten him a little, with an air of satisfaction, said: "I have brought up my boys to look after my several interests. I have educated Tim to look after my health, I have educated Nat to look after my worldly affairs, and Tom I have educated to look after my spiritual affairs."

"Well, I pity poor Tom," rejoined the customer.

Squire Upham's daughters were Mary, Judith C., and Ruth. As I have already mentioned, Mary married David Barker, while it has been ably said, "She was a very able woman and full of good works." Judith C., her mother's namesake, married James Bell, of Exeter, once United States senator from New Hampshire. Ruth became the wife of Dr. John M. Berry, of Rochester, and lived after the decease of her parents for a long time in the elegant old mansion on Main street.

Four members of the Upham family are interred in our old cemetery in a plot of ground inclosed by a light iron fence. The headstones erected to their memory are handsome white marble, and the inscriptions or epitaphs interesting to read. I have copied them for the readers of this sketch of the notable family:

Erected

 aged three months.
 Tho' in dust the lovely infant lies,
 Her soul enlarged resumes her native skies.

143. General Timothy⁷ Upham (Timothy⁶, Timothy⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Portsmouth, N. H., b. in Deerfield, N. H., in 1782; m. Eliza Adams, daughter of William and Hannah Adams, of Middleton, Conn., who d. March 18, 1854, in her 69th year. The following military — and otherwise — record of Gen. Timothy Upham is from Dr. Upham's "Notices":
 "Gen. Timothy Upham received his first appointment in the army as major, in March, 1812, and in July following received his commission in the 11th U. S. Infantry. In June he was placed in command of the forts and harbor of Portsmouth, with the superintendent of the recruiting service, in a district composing the southern part of New Hampshire and the county of York, in the State of Maine.

"In September he joined his regiment at Plattsburgh, N. Y.; in November, advanced with the army to Champlain, on the Canada line; from whence, after some severe skirmishing, and much suffering of the troops for want of suitable supplies of winter clothing, the army returned to Plattsburgh. The 11th and some other regiments passed over to Burlington, and went into winter quarters.

"Major Upham was soon after ordered to Portland to superintend the recruiting service of the State of Maine and in part of New Hampshire. In April, 1813, having, with the officers under his command, enlisted upwards of two thousand men, and sent them forward to join their respective regiments, he repaired to Burlington with the winter clothing of his regiment, the first they had received. There he received an order to select a battalion of five hundred men from his regiment and proceed with all possible despatch to Sackett's Harbor. This march was accomplished in fourteen days, with a heavy train of baggage for the army, via Johnstown and the Northern State road. He arrived there in May and remained there and in the vicinity with his battalion until October, when the army, then under the command of Gen. Wilkinson, was embarked in boats, with orders to descend the St. Lawrence and form a junction with the troops then under the command of Gen. Hampton, at some point on the St. Lawrence, above Montreal, with a view to a joint attack on that place.

"Maj. Upham had, in October, 1813, previous to leaving Sackett's Harbor, been promoted to lieut.-col. of the 21st Infantry, Col. Miller's famous regiment, but remained with his battalion of the 11th to the close of the campaign. In descending the St. Lawrence he had the command of one division of the boats, and passed the enemy's batteries at Fort Prescott under a heavy cannonade with very trifling loss, and proceeded immediately down the river to the head of the Longue Saut, a rapid in the St. Lawrence of several miles in extent. At this point the troops, with the exception of those required to manage the boats, proceeded by land, leaving Col. Upham in his division of boats with about 300 men, selected from the several regiments which composed the division.

"On arriving at Cornwall, below the rapids, it was ascertained that the enemy were following with considerable force, and a flotilla of gunboats. In consequence of this information, Col. Upham now received orders to place his boats in safety, land his men and hold them in readiness for such service as might be required. The main body of the army, under Gen. Brown, having proceeded down the river, the enemy commenced an attack on its rear guard, under Gen. Covington, who, being pressed hard, Col. Upham was ordered to reinforce him. While advancing to execute this order, he met the general mortally wounded, who directed him to press forward and report to Gen. Boyd.

"On his arrival near the field of battle, known as Chrystler's Field he met the troops retreating for want of ammunition through the woods which skirted the field. Col. Upham was directed by Gen. Boyd to push forward and hold the enemy in check until ammunition could be procured from the boats. His division immediately engaged the enemy and held them in check for nearly an hour, when he received an order to retreat and embark his men on board the boats, which he succeeded in doing, having effectually checked the enemy.

"His loss in this action, in killed and wounded, was large in proportion to the number engaged, being nearly one-fifth of the whole. The boats then passed down the river to take in a large detachment which had proceeded by land and which had not been engaged.

"On arriving at the mouth of French Creek, information was received from Gen. Hampton that he was on his return to Plattsburgh, having been somewhat severely handled by the enemy in the neighborhood of Chateaugay and fallen short of provisions. The object of the expedition was therefore defeated, and the army retired up French Creek to a convenient place and commenced building huts for winter quarters.

"Col. Upham was now ordered to repair to the seaboard on recruiting service, on which duty he was employed till the July following, when he was ordered to join the 21st Infantry at Buffalo. On his arrival there, he found his regiment at Fort Erie, and he immediately crossed over and assumed command of it. Fort Erie was at this time closely invested by a force double in number to the garrison. After suffering a severe loss by the cannonade and bombardment, which continued without interruption for nearly forty days, our troops having been reinforced by a brigade of New York militia, it was determined to try the strength of the enemy by a sudden attack on their works. Accordingly about the middle of September a sortie was made at noon, the enemy's works all carried, and his guns spiked before his reserve, which was encamped at some distance, could be brought up. Our troops then retired to the fort. In this action the loss of the enemy in killed, wounded and prisoners was over six hundred men; and our own was not much less, and included a large number of the higher grade of officers — being the most bloody action which was fought during the war, in proportion to the numbers engaged. The next day the enemy abandoned his works and retreated toward Kingston. The regiment was much reduced, and Lieut.-Col. Upham's health having become greatly impaired, he was again ordered to the seaboard, and instructed to report to Gen. Dearborn, at Boston.

"The command of the station at Portsmouth was assigned to him, but his health was so severely affected he was unable, during the winter and for several months after, to leave his quarters. On the cessation of hostilities he resigned his commission in the army, and in the spring of 1816 was appointed by President Madison collector of customs at Portsmouth, which office he continued to hold, under the appointment of Presidents Monroe and Adams, until 1829. In 1819 he was appointed brigadier-general of the First Brigade New Hampshire Militia, and, in 1820, major-general of the First Division. In 1841 he was appointed navy agent at Portsmouth by President Harrison, which office he resigned in the spring of 1845. He then removed to Charlestown, Mass., where he died November 2, 1855."

150. Hon. Jabez⁷ Upham (Phineas⁶, Jabez⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Brookfield, Mass., b. there, Aug. 23, 1764; m. June 2, 1796, Lucy Faulkner, of Acton, Mass. (sister of William Emerson Faulkner, who m. Elizabeth Upham, sister of Jabez), b. May 16, 1770; d. Jan. 28, 1828. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1785. The following sketch of his life is from Davis' History of Sturbridge, and Southboro, Mass.

"Jabez Upham was the first lawyer who practiced in Sturbridge; soon removed to Claremont, N. H., where he remained only a short time, thence went to Brookfield, Mass., where he engaged in his profession until the close of his life. Industry and perseverance enabled him to rise in his profession. Fraud and deception received from him such a rebuke as would not soon be forgotten. His office was a great place for law students. He came to the bar when such men as Gov. Lincoln, the elder, Gov. Strong and Gov. Sullivan were constant attendants of the Supreme Court in Worcester Co., and who stood in the front rank of the profession. The brilliant and elegant Francis Blake came to the bar about the same time, or soon after. Mr. Upham sustained, if not an equal, a very respectable standing among such men as a lawyer and advocate. He frequently represented his town and county in the Legislature; also his district during four or six years in Congress.

"As a member of Congress Mr. Upham exerted a salutary influence and was highly respected. He possessed a great share of that kind of useful sense known as 'common sense.' Not favored with extraordinary endowments, unremitting application made him in a measure what he was. In person he was tall; he was dignified and gentlemanly in appearance and manners. Strict integrity and a right sense of honorable dealing characterized his life. He had, many years previous to his death, made a public profession of religion, and it was uniformly exemplified in his daily deportment. He died in the midst of his usefulness at the age of forty-seven."

His epitaph at West Brookfield reads:

"Erected in memory of the Hon. Jabez Upham who died Nov. 8, 1811, aged 47 years. While this tomb admonishes us that we must also die, let the example of its possessor teach us how to live. Inheriting a sound and discriminating mind and early acquiring a habit of patient and indefatigable industry, what to most men would have been obstacles, were to him but incentives to execution. By perseverance he rose to eminence in his profession as an advocate, and in character as a Legislator. In this last office his talents and his patriotism were conspicuous, not only in the councils of his native State, but in the discharge of his higher duties of a Representative in Congress. But the qualities which most endeared him to the public were not the most estimable of his character. In his domestic relations he was amiable and endearing, as a friend constant and affectionate, as a citizen independent and faithful. As a man he discharged his relative duties as accountable to Heaven. As a Christian he died as he had lived, firm in his faith and relying, through the merits of his Redeemer upon the mercy of his God for a glorious resurrection."

Jabez Upham and wife, Lucy, had:

153. Phineas' Upham (Phineas⁶, Jabez⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Boston, Mass., b. in Brookfield, Mass., Feb. 3, 1776; m. Mary Avery Baldwin in 1810; d. Sept. 20, 1860, æ. 84.

He was a Boston merchant of the old school. His principal business career was in the firm of Gussitt & Upham, which gained the reputation of being highly honorable and successful merchants. He retired from this business connection while still in the prime of life, and became president of the old Boston Bank; by his energy, integrity and sound business knowledge, the bank was brought from a rather doubtful position to the high financial standing which it has since maintained. Of his character, his son said of him: "He had no aspirations for official position, but had many responsibilities placed upon him, owing to a well-deserved reputation for honesty of purpose coupled with sound judgment, foresight, and absolute impartiality. His life was his home, and the affection, and respect of his family and friends."

(Mr. Upham, as well as his father, spelled his name Phinehas.)

They had:

ary war, and was educated as a physician; immediately after leaving the medical college he received an appointment of an assistant surgeon in a British regiment which was at that time stationed in St. John, N. B., but did not remain in the service; after leaving the army he went to a foreign part, probably to India, and did not return until after his father's death in 1808; for a time he practised medicine in Truro, and during this time was married, but afterward went to Canada. During the war of 1812 he was in the British regiment known as the "Fencibles," and was probably in the battle of Lundy's Lane, as there was a John Upham in that engagement, as the records show; he was wounded in some engagement during this war, and left the service in 1815. He settled near Kingston, Canada, where he practised medicine until his death, in county Lennox, Ontario, date unknown. He had, by first wife:

I A son.

II A daughter.

III Charlotte; m. Dec. 26, 1824, George Scott Flemming, who was b. April 13, 1798, and was drowned in 1846; she died August, 1844. They had one son and four daughters.

156. Hon. Charles Wentworth⁷ Upham (Joshua⁶, Jabez⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Salem, Mass., b. May 4, 1802, in St. John, New Brunswick; grad. Harvard College, 1821; m. March 29, 1826, Ann S. Holmes, who was b. May 15, 1804, the daughter of Rev. Dr. Abiel Holmes, of Cambridge, Mass., and the sister of Oliver Wendell Holmes; she d. April 5, 1877. He was minister of the First (Unitarian) Church at Salem, from 1824 to 1844; member of Congress from the Sixth Massachusetts District, 1853 to 1855, the 33d Congress; also a member of the Massachusetts Senate. Author of "Letters on the Logos," 1828; "Principles of Congregationalism," 1829; "Lectures on Witchcraft," 1831; "Salem Witchcraft," with an account of Salem Village, and a "History of Opinions on Witchcraft," and kindred subjects (his most extensive work), 1867; "Life of John C. Fremont," 1856; "Life of Sir Henry Vane," etc., etc. He d. June 15, 1875. The following is an extract from his Memoir, by Dr. George E. Ellis, which was published in the Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society, December, 1876, and afterward reprinted.

"Charles Wentworth Upham, though he was not born within the limits of the United States, had other claim to its full and honored citizenship. Here he passed all but the early boyhood of his life; and here, in several forms of high service, he discharged a larger variety of trusts than is usually often assigned to the most favored of those born on our soil. He came of a family of the original English Colonists of Massachusetts Bay. A line of five generations between his first ancestor here and himself gives the names of those who were trusted and serviceable in all the ordinary and emergent offices, calling for able and faithful men, in the development of communities and States.

"He was born in St. John, New Brunswick, May 4, 1802. This was at that time a wild, unsettled region of forest, on the edge of the farthest boundary of the Province, — a region now partly the parish of Upham and partly Sussex Vale, bordering on the St. John's river, on the Bay of Fundy. After the death of his father, and when he was but eight years old, he was sent to a school then recently established in St. John, where instruction in Latin was offered. Later he was placed in an apothecary's shop, the proprietor of which was a physician and surgeon of large practice in St. John. But the death of his employer arrested the current of his life in the direction of a professional education, after he had read through the whole Edinburgh Materia Medica. He was sent to a farm fifteen miles above Annapolis, in the valley of the river of the same name, where he performed such rough and useful service as his years allowed. In 1813, just after the close of the war, Mr. Phineas Upham, a merchant of Boston, happening, on a visit to St. John, to see his young kinsman, proposed to befriend him by training him for business in his store. From the inducements offered by this opportunity, the subsequent career of the youth was decided, and in 1816, he returned to the home of his ancestry, arriving in Boston in June of that year. His kinsman received him into his family and counting-house, intending to train him for business. But his evident talents and tastes for a higher mental culture were indulged; and, with a view to his preparation for college, he was sent to a school in Boston. He entered Harvard College in 1817, and, pursuing the usual course, graduated in 1821. His class contained many members who, like himself, attained distinction in mature life, and filled many places of trust and influence; among whom were Josiah Quincy, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

"The most attractive course which the college at Cambridge offered at that time, for young men zealous for high culture, true scholarship and for effective work in elevating the community, was that of the study of theology with a view to entering the ministry; and this he chose. As soon as he had completed his course of preparatory study and had made a trial of his gifts as a candidate, he was invited to the associate pastorate of the First Church in Salem. There, on the 8th of December, 1824, he was ordained as the colleague of the widely-known and eminent Dr. John Prince. This venerated and distinguished man, who would have been regarded as among the most honored of his time as a divine, had not his fame as a philosopher and a lover of pure science made him more generally known, can be named as next to Franklin in the list of our early lovers and servants of natural science. Only his rare modesty and unselfish regards have left him comparatively forgotten by the present generation, as he himself failed to assert among his contemporaries any public recognition of his claims.

"Mr. Upham always regarded it as one of his richest privileges that he had been brought into such confidential relations with so wise and good a man. Dr. Prince lived twelve years after Mr. Upham was ordained as his colleague; and died in 1836, after a pastorate of nearly fifty-eight years.

"Mr. Upham was married on the 29th of March, 1826, to Ann Susan Holmes, the sister of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes. Salem, from this period to the close of his life, continued to be the residence of Mr. Upham, even under a great variety of professional and official labors which called him away from it. Among all the honored and eminent citizens who have been born and have lived in it, there has not been one who was so thoroughly informed in its history, who had made a closer study of its interesting sites and localities or who more fondly loved and more justly appreciated the memories and services of the men and women of former generations who were identified with it. He had a taste and genius for the lore and the investigations for which Salem offered such rich material. The simple truth, the uncolored facts of history were good enough for him in their burdens of romance, heroism, earnestness and weight of importance. The place itself was to him invested with the lessons and the charms associated with the lives of seven generations of a peculiar class of men and women who had subdued a wilderness, met all the rough and hazardous conditions of an exposed position, founded a State, secured through home discipline, school and church, all the safeguards of the law, virtue and piety, and then made it a centre for the world's commerce, and a nursery for producing soldiers, patriots, divines, scholars, philosophers, merchant princes, jurists and statesmen.

"So much and even more must be said in the record of Mr. Upham's life, of the place where he lived for more than half a century, because by far the larger part of his labors and studies, as well as his professional services, had the most intimate connection with the history and welfare of Salem. The meeting-house in which he first ministered, and which during his pastorate was replaced by another, occupied the same site on which had stood four previous structures reared successively for the increasing flock of worshippers, beginning with the first exiled band.

"In the list of Mr. Upham's published writings — not to mention those left in manuscript — it will be observed how largely the subjects of them are concerned with the annals of Salem and the biographies of those who lived in it. He could reproduce, in their order and situations, the old homesteads and bounds of farms of successive owners, and trace the steps by which the rocky headlands, with their borderings of forest, stream and hill-tops, had been tamed into garden homes and scenes of busy thrift. The extensive, world-wide commercial enterprise of Salem in its most prosperous days, by its ship-owners and opulent merchants, put many of the citizens into correspondence with foreigners, gave them opportunities for travel, and brought to the town fresh supplies for valuable libraries and all the appliances of luxury. The East India Marine Museum, with its rich and curious gatherings of wonders of all kinds from the other hemisphere, and from all the islands and oceans, is a most significant illustration of the wide roving of those who presented their trophies to form this collection. To investigate, verify, and present in an instructive form, the local history and the personal characters and achievements of the town and its inhabitants, was for the remainder of Mr. Upham's life his most loved work. There is a remarkable exercise of discrimination, of a sound judgment, and of a catholic spirit, in Mr. Upham's method and tone of writing about the original exiles in Salem and their immediate descendants. He had a rare skill in interpreting their characters by the circumstances which had formed them, by the times in which they had lived, and the exigencies of their enterprise. What there was to be regretted or blamed in their rigid ways and severe courses he fairly recognized; but claimed for it palliation, and even respect, when truly dealt with.

"While he was eminently faithful, during the score of years through which his professional relations extended, to all his duties in the pulpit, as a pastor, according to the exacting standard of the period, he was a most diligent student in his library. The ministers of the old New England churches, till within a recent period, have generally been the best educated and best informed persons resident in the respective towns. With very rare exceptions, all the local and general histories of the original settlements, and the biographies of the men and women of distinction or of great worth, have come from their pens. Salem, at one period, was more rich in its collections of books and means of culture than was Boston. Drs. Prince and Bentley put all their sea-faring parishioners into service to bring them literary pabulum from all the continents and islands. Mr. Upham continued to pursue the line of professional studies on which he had entered at Cambridge, especially in the department of Scriptural exegesis and interpretation. He published, in 1828, a small volume entitled 'Letters on the Logos;' in which he aimed to show that the real significance of the term translated 'The Word' in the opening of the gospel of St. John, and in other places in the New Testament, was not to be found, as some of his own school of theologians had maintained, in the Platonizing writings of the Alexandrians of a later period, but in the conceptions, the literature, and the forms of speech of the Jews in the time of the evangelist. In 1835, he published, as the fruit of much study and learning, an extended treatise as 'A Discourse on Prophecy as an Evidence of Christianity.' The argument of this treatise does not rest so much on the fulfilment of specific predictions of local events, as on the provisions within the Jewish religion and system for expansion and extension.

"He was a frequent contributor during his ministry, and through the remainder of his life, to the various periodical works in literature, history, and theology; and also to the newspapers, on matters of local or public interest. His discourses at the dedication of the new house of worship of the First Church, in 1826, reprinted the next year, and on the 'Principles of Congregationalism,' on the completion of its second century, in 1829, engaged alike his spirit of thorough research and his love for the characters and services of his revered predecessors and their associates. In a postscript to the latter publication, he makes a study and estimate of the character of Hugh Peters. In the same year, he published a discourse, which he delivered on the Sunday after the decease of the Hon. Thomas Pickering, with a notice of his life. A Memoir of his colleague, Dr. Prince, had already been published by him at the death of the latter. Discourses preached by him before the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in Boston, in 1832; on the anniversary of the First Parish in Hingham, in 1832; a sermon on 'The Glory of God,' and a 'Discussion of the Scripture Doctrine of Regeneration' — also appeared in print. His 'Lectures on Witchcraft, comprising a History of the Delusion in Salem,' appeared in two editions in 1831 and 1832. In 1835, he wrote for Mr. Sparks' American Biography a 'Life of Sir Henry Vane,' once Governor of Massachusetts. The State Board of Education authorized the republication of this Life in its school library. It was also so highly estimated in England as to lead to its being substantially reproduced in an English family cyclopedia, without a recognition of its real authorship, the name of an Englishman being substituted. Mr. Upham delivered the municipal oration at Salem, on the 4th of July, 1842, and the oration before the New England Pilgrim Society in New York, Dec. 22, 1846; both of which were published, the latter in two editions. He published brief biographies of Col. Thomas Pickering, of Edward Everett, and of John Quincy Adams in the 'National Portrait Gallery,' Vols. I and IV, 1834 and 1839; an article on the British Navigation Act, in 'Hunt's Merchants' Magazine,' in 1841; a discourse on the National Fast, on the death of President Harrison, in 1841; and an article on the 'English Reformation,' in the 'Christian Examiner' for 1844. At the earnest solicitation of gentlemen acting in the behalf of the Massachusetts Board of Education, he prepared a 'Life of Washington' for school libraries. The plan and method of the work were to make Washington substantially his own biographer, in extracts from his own writings, in conformity with an intimation by himself that his biography might be so constructed. But the publishers of the copyrighted edition of 'The Writings of Washington,' by Jared Sparks, from which the materials would have been largely taken, obtained an injunction from the court against the issue of Mr. Upham's two volumes. These were accordingly suppressed, and as Mr. Upham for a period of more than ten years fully believed, the suppression was effectual. He had seen the work which he prepared only fragmentarily in print, as the proof sheets had been sent to him for revision. But in all probability the stereotype plates for it, prepared here, were surreptitiously carried over to England; for the work, without a single alteration, omission, or addition, appeared in

"Mr. Upham enjoyed his professional position and duties, combined as they were with a range of studies, and of local and social relations, helpful to his special vocations. He formed the closest friendships with his fellow-citizens, and was fondly faithful to their claims on him as a pastor. But he was afflicted with a severe and obstinate bronchial affection, against which he struggled, hoping that he might recover his power of speaking in public. Being disappointed in his hopes, he resigned his office, Dec. 8, 1844, thus completing a ministry of a score of years. He then became an occupant, for the remainder of his life, of a pew in the church whose pulpit he had served with eminent ability. It was not till after an interval of two or three years that he could venture again, to use his voice in public. But the tedium of partial invalidism was relieved by occupations and a diligent use of his books in his library. From March, 1845, to March, 1846, he was the editor of the Christian Register, a weekly paper published in Boston. Though this paper was established and supported in the interest of Unitarianism, a cursory review of the leading editorials from his pen, as well as of his general management of it, shows that his aim in conducting it was by no means limited by any sectarian views or objects. The respect entertained for him in Salem, and his own varied capacities for some forms of public service in behalf of the common interests of the community, engaged him again in such service as soon as he had but partially recovered his vocal power. From August, 1851, to August, 1852, he was in the employ of the Board of Education in Massachusetts; his duty being to visit the schools of the State, and to address the people in public assemblies in their behalf, in furtherance of the interests of education. This he did in more than a hundred towns. Being elected mayor of the city of Salem in 1852, he reorganized its police system, introducing that which has ever since been in effective operation there. He also secured from the Legislature the appropriations and provisions for the establishment of a State Normal School in that city, which continues to accomplish its high purpose.

"Mr. Upham represented Salem in the Massachusetts Legislature in the years 1849, 1859, and 1860. He was a member of the State Senate in 1850, 1857, and 1858, being in each of the last two years chosen the presiding officer, by a unanimous vote. He was a member of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention in 1853. In each and all of these places, Mr. Upham was chiefly engaged in efforts to advance the interests of education in the district and high schools, and in the endowment of the colleges. He also advised measures for the amendment and simplification of the terms of language in the statute law of the Commonwealth.

"His principal publications during this period were the following: Speech in the Massachusetts House of Representatives on the Compromises of the Constitution, with the Ordinance of 1787, Feb. 20, 1849; Report of Committee on Reprinting the Tenth Report of the late Secretary of the Board of Education, 1849; Report of Committee of Education on the Custody and Preservation of Public Documents, 1849; Report of Committee on the Reimbursement of the Secretary, Horace Mann, 1849; Report of Committee on the Age of Children to be admitted to the Common Schools, 1849; Essex County Whig address, 1849; Report in the Massachusetts Senate of a Committee on the National Monument at Washington, 1850; Remarks in the Senate on the Plurality Bill, 1850; Report of Committee on Education on aid to New Salem Academy, Senate, 1850; Eulogy of Zachary Taylor, delivered in Salem, July 18, 1850, at the request of the city authorities; Report in the Senate of Committee on Education on the Visitation of Normal Schools, 1851; Address, as Mayor of Salem, on Organization of the City Government, 1852.

"The qualities and abilities which Mr. Upham had exhibited in his city magistracy, and in both branches of the State Legislature, naturally prompted a desire on the part of his fellow-citizens and neighbors to avail themselves of his services in the National Congress. He was chosen to represent the Sixth District of the State in the Thirty-third Congress of the United States, 1853-1855. His term was at an anxious and stormy interval in our public affairs, perhaps, however, not peculiarly so, as our whole national development has repeated such exciting periods with but rare intermissions. He had not been one of the original Abolition party, but was a steadfast Whig, and both led and followed the main constituency of that party in its transition into the Free Soil and Republican organizations. His first effort in Congress was in the interest of securing a permanent and dignified administration and form of high service for the Smithsonian Institution, for the formation, security, and wise direction of which the nation is indebted chiefly to the persistent fidelity of John Quincy Adams. Mr. Upham was chairman of a select committee on the condition and management of the institution, and to suggest the direction and improvement of its means of public utility.

"In his report he laid chief stress upon the feasibility and advantages of making it the basis of a national library, on a scale so extended, and with such selected materials as would make it worthy of a nation of foremost rank and growing to a nobler development, and adapted as a means for the diffusion through this nation of comprehensive knowledge as one of the conditions of its strength and glory.

"The special struggle in Congress during his term was that connected with the Kansas and Nebraska Bill. He made a vigorous speech on this exciting theme in the House of Representatives, on the 10th of May, 1854. He directed a portion of it in debate to a reply to a member from South Carolina, who had said that the only practicable or desirable way for bringing to an issue the question which was distracting the nation was an armed conflict. To this heated utterance Mr. Upham responded: 'The honorable member has intimated that perhaps it will be well to abandon the policy of compromises, and for the two great conflicting interests to meet face to face, and end the matter at once. I have suggested the reasons why, heretofore, I have contemplated such an issue with reluctance. But if the South say so, so let it be.' The challenge and its acceptance were sad forebodings of the issue. In the same speech Mr. Upham predicted as a sure consequence of abrogating the Missouri Compromise, the firm combination of the Free States in resistance to the further extension of Slavery, if not to its continued existence. 'Heretofore,' said he, 'the South has profited by our divisions. Those divisions have arisen to a great degree from the restraining and embarrassing influence of a sense of obligation, on our part, to adhere to the engagements and stand up to the bargains made by the fathers, and renewed, as I have shown, by each succeeding generation. But let those engagements be violated, let those bargains be broken by the South, on the ground of unconstitutionality, or any other pretense — from that hour the North becomes a unit and indivisible. From that hour 'Northern men with Southern principles' will disappear from the scene, and the race of Dough Faces be extinct forever.'

"In another speech delivered in the House, Feb. 27, 1855, the topics discussed were 'Mediation in the Eastern War,' 'The Institutions of Massachusetts,' 'The Ordinance of 1787.' In vindicating Massachusetts from some attacks which had been made on her in debate, he said:

"On the map of the American Union, the State occupies scarcely a discernible space. In territory it is one of the smallest of our States. There are but three smaller — Connecticut, Delaware, and Rhode Island. But sir, there are only three States that exceed it in free population, and but five that exceed it in their aggregate population, counting the whole number of slaves; and each of these five States is from five to nine times as large, and incomparably more fertile. The soil of Massachusetts is hard and cold, and yields only to patient and incessant labor. Her surface is, for the most part, rough, barren and sandy. Her only natural exports, and they have but recently been converted into sources of wealth, are granite from her hills and promontories; marble from the Berkshire mountains, rising before our eyes in polished forms of architectural beauty in the wings of this Capitol; and the ice of her lakes, transported as a luxury to tropical regions all around the globe. But intelligent industry and agricultural science, taste, and enterprise are gradually spreading a garden over her surface. The traveler is amazed at the wealth, beauty, and animation of more than three hundred cities and towns included within her narrow boundaries. The stir of busy life pervades the scene like the sunshine; nature catches the spirit of her happy industry, and the brooks that leap and sparkle down the hills and through the valleys, at every step turn the wheels of factories, around which thriving villages gather. Scarcely a spot so secluded as not to be adorned with church spires and vocal with the merry voices of children wending their way to district schools. I look upon Massachusetts, Mr. Speaker, as one of the most remarkable instances of social and political development exhibited in the whole range of history; and, as such, well worthy of being held up to the contemplation of legislators and statesmen here and elsewhere.'

"On an incidental matter relating to his personal position as a son of a proscribed Loyalist, Mr. Upham gave an earnest expression of his feelings in the same speech; exhibiting a generous magnanimity, of which it would have been grateful if our country had offered more occasions for sincere utterance. He was to be succeeded in his place of representative by one who belonged to the 'Know Nothing,' or Native American party, at the time when that organization was in notoriety. He, of course, belonged to the proscribed class. In the speech just quoted, he makes the following reference to the accident of his foreign birth:

"Let not gentlemen say it ill becomes me to stand up for Massachusetts, inasmuch as she has included me in a proscription that embraces several millions of our countrymen. No temporary phase of public sentiment, no popular excitement of the hour, no political prejudice, even if it express itself in a blow aimed at me personally, can estrange my heart from the State where I have found a happy home during a life not now short, and in whose soil rest the ashes of my ancestors and of my children. I have ever found an enthusiastic satisfaction in illustrating her local annals. Her schools shed upon my grateful opening mind the lights of education, and my mature life has been devoted to her service to the extent of my ability. I have received at the hands of her people all the honors I ever dreamed of; and more, I most deeply feel, than I have deserved. The profoundest convictions of my soul require me to condemn, and, when the issue shall be distinctly made, in a proper spirit to resist, the policy that attempts to reduce one-sixth of her population to political subordination and inferiority. But no man has a claim to office, and no one, with the spirit of a freeman, can complain of the results of elections, so far as they affect him individually. I do not complain. On the contrary, I feel particularly prompted to pay homage to Massachusetts at this time. It is more agreeable to my self-respect to vindicate her name now than it would have been when within the reach of her favors.'

"The interest which Mr. Upham took in the subjects so warmly agitated when he was in Congress, and his mastery of the bearings and momentous character of the issues at stake, are shown in two articles which he contributed to the North American Review, in October, 1854, on 'The Reciprocity Treaty,' and in January, 1855, on 'Kansas and Nebraska.'

"In an address at the opening of the Republican reading-room, in Salem, in April, 1856, he made a very lucid and intelligent exposition of 'The Present State of Parties.' Sharing in the enthusiasm felt at the time for the prowess and enterprise of Mr. Fremont, the so-called 'Pathfinder,' and believing that his intrepid and vigorous zeal as an explorer was evidence of his capacity to serve his country in other departments requiring manliness and public spirit, he produced, in 1856, a substantial work of lively interest, entitled the 'Life, Explorations, and Public Services of John Charles Fremont.'

"Resuming his place in the Massachusetts Senate in 1857, we find in print, during his term, a 'Speech on the Bill for the Extension of the Eastern Railroad Corporation,' April 11, 1857, and 'Speech on the Kansas resolves,' May 7, 1857. With that wonderful variety of office holding which resulted from the desire of those who loved and respected him to make sure of his services in one or another place of public service, he is found again, as before mentioned, a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1859 and 1860. And again he manifests his interest in what he regarded as a paramount concern of the State. In a report of the Committee on Education, March 29, he deals with the school district system; and in another report of a joint standing committee, on the day following, he discusses the subject of academies endowed by the State.

"In his several terms of service, in both branches of the State Legislature, Mr. Upham retained that esteem and confidence of his constituents which had moved them to give him his offices; and he secured the warm respect of his associates. As the presiding officer of the Senate, he was well informed as to the order of business and the rules of debate, dignified and urbane in his bearing and address, and considerate of all that concerned the rights, privileges, and high functions of that select legislative body. And, in alternating as a member of the Senate and the House of Representatives, he seemed to feel that a place in either was of equal honor and opportunity to do good service to the State. His chief efforts, as has been seen, were given to the interests of public education in the various grades of schools; in providing for them competent teachers, improved books, methods and apparatus, and in extending and strengthening their influence to the ends conformed to the noble aims of the founders of the State, with the help of all the increased prosperity and intelligence of the later generations. Being indebted for the first frugal earnings of his laborious life to a slender compensation for teaching country schools in the winter vacations at college, he loved to renew and strengthen his zeal in their behalf by some continuous relation to them through his whole career. His unstudied extemporaneous remarks when visiting the schools, as well as his carefully-prepared addresses all over the State, gave evidence alike of his desire for, and his rich abilities in, helping toward their elevation and improvement.

"As a speaker in the chair of the Senate, on the floor of the House, though Mr. Upham may not have exhibited the rarest gifts of oratorical grace or of genius, he always held the attention and engaged the respect and full consideration of his colleagues. As a preacher for a score of years, he had acquired no pulpit mannerisms, either of dulness or of heat and exaggeration of utterance. He had a finely-modulated voice, he used precision of method in his plan and arguments, and fortified the position which he assumed by a fullness of knowledge, a spirit of candor, and an intent to insure conviction or persuasion by fair means for noble ends. In the frequent cases that have occurred in this especially, as in the other New England States, of an exchange of the pulpit for the legislative hall, the experiment has not always proved a success in the speech or the influence of the men who have tried it. But in Mr. Upham's case there never was any professional incongruity or infelicity apparent in the exchange of positions. The main assurance and condition of his being listened to with confidence in either place were fully enjoyed by him in having the sincere respect and affectionate regard of all who knew him as a religious teacher or a legislator. Purity of character, elevation of aim, high courtesy in intercourse, and a well-furnished, well-trained mind were his sufficient claims to consideration.

"Fifteen years of life remained to him after his retirement from his last public service in the Legislature, in 1860. Though enough of vigor of mind and body remained for valuable literary work, and for pleasant social intercourse, he began to feel the need of caution in maintaining all his energies. He welcomed, therefore, the comparative retirement of his home. His books, the accumulation of his years of study, and the gatherings from the distribution of public documents, and the stores of the various libraries within his reach — yielded the materials for his enjoyment and solace, as well as for the severer search for truth.

"He prepared among other manuscripts, for delivery before the lyceums, a life of Roger Williams, a life of Hugh Peters, and a Life of George Downing, — all three of whom were personally associated with Salem. Another of his lectures was upon History and Biography. The Essex Institute, of which he was one of the founders, was an object of his love and labor. Its meetings owed much to him for their interest, while they imparted to him through his associates great pleasure. His voice and pen were always devoted to fond tributes to such of those associates as preceded him in the way for all. The publications of this Institute are enriched by many of his contributions.

"Mr. Upham was not so engrossed by the congenial occupations of the scholar as to prevent the continuance of the friendly social and domestic intercourse incident to his former professional duties. Old friends and new ones found him at their firesides with his genial presence, kindly and judicious in speech and judgment, mature in wisdom, with an overflow of knowledge and stores of personal experience, a memory that never loosed its hold, and a radiant religious trust which heightened the sunlight of life.

"Mention has been made of the publication by Mr. Upham of a series of 'Lectures on Witchcraft,' published in a small volume, in 1831-2. There were reasons why his interest should have been intently centered upon this melancholy subject. He was a distinguished citizen of a town whose name and fame were unfortunately shadowed by one of those popular misrepresentations, natural, perhaps, but unjust, which originate wrongs that hardly admit of redress. 'Salem Witchcraft,' 'The Witch Town,' are epithets and phrases as misleading as they are familiar.

"The lectures which he had prepared and published so early in his ministry at Salem, on this subject, were highly appreciated by the public, and for more than thirty years after they were out of print he was earnestly solicited to allow more editions of them to be issued. But he had become well satisfied that the treatment which he had given in them of his sombre theme was wholly inadequate. Very much of his leisure was devoted, not merely to the investigation of the local details and incidents connected with the outburst of this frenzy in Salem, but in a most thorough and well-nigh exhaustive examination of the subject of witchcraft in the annals of the world. He collected all possible sources of information for the study of this subject, — theologically, philosophically, and in its historical development, — as it had been treated by divines, pontiffs, monarchs, legislators, civilians, physicians, and jurists, and while it cast its shadow at one time over all Christendom, had numbered its victims by hundreds of thousands, the saddest incident in the tragic rehearsal was that the wisest and best men of their ages and countries, who might have been looked to as lights and guides for the bewildered people had given their testimony to the reality and enormity of the crime of witchcraft.

"After he had thoroughly informed himself on his subject in its broadest relations, following it into all its dark and mysterious intricacies, he justly felt that it was in his power, and was consequently a matter of obligation to him to write upon it in a way to meet the highest demands of truth—in fidelity to history and in the treatment of a profoundly serious theme in its psychological and religious relations. The result of his researches and reflections appeared in a work in two substantial volumes, published in 1867, entitled 'Salem Witchcraft; with an Account of Salem Village, and a History of Opinions on Witchcraft and Kindred Subjects.' How, in such a community of people, and under such conditions, a spark of mischief generated by the uncanny tricks of a group of children, and at once blown into a flame by the advice of minister, doctor, and magistrate — who of course shared in the universal delusion — blazed out into consequences grouped under the phrase 'Salem Witchcraft,' may be learned from these volumes. The pages, though often harrowing, have an absorbing spell, which even enthral and fascinates.

"In an article which appeared in the North American Review, in April, 1869, Mr. Upham was sharply challenged and criticised for the alleged injustice of his severe treatment of the Rev. Cotton Mather for his agency in the witchcraft delusion, as a ready, restless and zealous abettor of the superstitions from which it started, and of the distressing horrors in which it culminated. Mr. Upham replied to this criticism, reinforcing all his original statements and arguments in an extended and elaborate communication which he made to the New York Historical Magazine for September, 1869.

"The same year in which the volumes just referred to were published, he wrote and delivered his elaborate historical discourse at the re-dedication — after reconstruction — of the place of worship of the First Church in Salem, Dec. 8, 1867. On the 18th of July, 1868, he delivered before the Essex Institute a memoir of his friend Francis Peabody, which was published. He took part in the course of lectures delivered before the Lowell Institute, in 1868-9, by members of the Historical Society, relating to the early history of Massachusetts. His lecture delivered Jan. 26, 1869, was on 'The Records of Massachusetts, under its First Charter.' It has its place in the published volume. In April, 1869, he read at a meeting of the Essex Institute, a memoir of Hon. Daniel P. King, representative in Congress, which was published by the Institute Press. To the January, 1873, number of the Universalist Quarterly, he contributed an article on 'The Rise of the Republic of the United States.'

"During Mr. Upham's first five years in Salem, he numbered among the members of his society and church, the Hon. Timothy Pickering. This distinguished patriot died in Salem, in his 84th year, in 1829. The last surviving son of Col. Pickering had undertaken — after the death of his brother, who had commenced the work — to continue the biography of his father, a single volume of which had been published in 1867. Just before his death, the next year, he requested that the completion of the biography should be committed to Mr. Upham. Though the latter had about that time felt the first symptoms of a local malady which kept him much at home, impaired his bodily vigor, and finally caused his death, he accepted it. After spending more than three years of labor over the colonel's manuscripts, and consulting other sources of illustrative information over a wide field, he had the satisfaction of giving to the press the matter of three additional volumes, which were published in 1873, thus securing in continuation of the single volume already in print, an adequate 'Life of Thomas Pickering.' Probably no more congenial work could have occupied the interval of retired leisure just preceding the disabling physical infirmities of the last three years of Mr. Upham's life than the re-reading the struggling and critical incidents attending the birth and early pupilage of our nation as illustrated in the career of one of its ablest, most conspicuous and faithful patriots.

"Mr. Upham maintained through his whole mature life a diligent and extensive correspondence with private friends and with men in office. He was genial, hearty, free and confidential in his communications with those whom he esteemed and loved. He commented on the development of opinions and ideas, and kept fully abreast of the most advanced thought—at least in acquainting himself with it—though by no means always with the result of accepting its theories or conclusions. Within the range and department of critical investigation and Biblical study which had so interested him in his original profession, the progress of speculation opened some bold questions which he was contented to leave where he found them. He had no weak timidity which would lead to discourage or repress any natural restlessness as to the security of accepted foundations and sanctions of religious faith, or the confidence with which some avowed that they had discredited and repudiated these, having found better, or were waiting patiently for a substitute. He had so certified to himself and assimilated the essential verities for consecrating the responsibilities and duties of human life, for perfect reconciliation to the Divine will, as it leads our way through mysteries and buffetings, and for a calm reliance upon the lessons and hopes of Christ's gospel, that he 'kept the faith.' It was his reliance and solace when seclusion and pain, by day and night, cast him upon his own resources of patience and trust.

"Among the friends and correspondents with whom for long years Mr. Upham maintained the most hearty and confidential intercourse was Edward Everett, who turned to him freely for sympathy, advice, and sometimes for helpful guidance on the exigencies of his brilliant career.

"By a letter not received by Mr. Upham's family till after his decease—indeed, it was not written till nearly a fortnight after that event had occurred, as it was dated June 27, 1875—it appeared that he had been elected a fellow of the 'Royal Historical Society of London.'

"It was on June 15, 1875 — two days preceding the general and enthusiastic Centennial celebration in Boston and over a wide neighborhood — that Mr. Upham's life came to a peaceful close. The event was duly recognized by the city authorities and among the friends of the departed, who had been so faithfully served in the varied career, and who so honored and respected the character of the divine, the statesman, the man of letters, and the citizen.

"His funeral took place from the First Church on Friday, June 18, and was attended by a large company of his friends. The Rev. E. S. Atwood, minister of the South Church in Salem, offered prayer. The Rev. J. T. Hewes, Mr. Upham's successor in the First Church, read selections from Scripture, and an address was delivered by the writer of this Memoir."

Mr. Upham's remains were deposited at the Harmony Grove Cemetery.

Dr. Ellis, as the printed sheets containing the publication of his address at the funeral service of Mr. Upham, were passing through his hands, added the following brief note chronicling the death of Mrs. Upham:

"Mrs. Ann Susan Upham, after suffering from long protracted illness, died in Salem on the 5th of April, 1877, at the age of nearly 73. This excellent lady shared largely in the talents and brilliant powers of her family. A life-long friend of her own sex briefly expresses her appreciation of Mrs. Upham in these words: 'She was a truly feminine soul, a clear mind, a witty spirit.'"

The following allusion to the decease of Mrs. Upham was made by the pastor of the First Church at Salem, at the conclusion of his sermon on the Sunday morning following her death:

"A gifted woman, the wife of him who for many years served at these altar-places, we laid away yesterday beneath the fresh spring grass and the first flowers, with the tenderest love, and in triumphant hope.

"She inherited genius, but harmonized all the faculties and functions of her nature with truth and beauty, by education and culture, by the study of nature and of art, by the creation and composition of poems for the home circle full of cheerful wit and charming quaintness, embalming in the memories of her children the pleasant associations and scenes of domestic life and love. A woman of a deeply religious nature and life, rational, reverent and devout; sometimes mistrustful of self, sometimes despondent, but with a cheerful, gladsome, genial faith in God and humanity, fulfilling all the duties of daughter, sister, wife, mother, friend, with obedience and care, with fidelity and the sweetest love."

192. Hon. William⁷ Upham (Samuel⁶, Samuel⁵, Samuel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Montpelier, Vt., b. in Leicester, Mass., Aug.

5, 1792; m. Sarah Keyes, of Ashford, Conn., in 1814, who d. May 8, 1856; he was a lawyer, and U. S. Senator from Vermont from 1841 until his death, Jan. 14, 1853, at Washington, from small-pox; his remains were buried in the Congressional Cemetery, at Washington. Washburn's History of Leicester, Mass., has the following notice of Senator William Upham:

"His father moved to Montpelier, Vt., in 1802. William studied law with Judge Prentiss, and was admitted to the bar about 1811. He was a prominent lawyer, and was elected to the U. S. Senate in 1841, re-elected in 1847, and died at Washington, Jan. 14, 1853. When a boy, William crushed his hand in a cider mill. It was trimmed with a hatchet. Being unfitted for manual labor, it was determined to educate him. He studied at the academy in 1799 and 1800. He studied law with Judge Prentiss, and was admitted to the bar about 1811, and became his partner. He attained a high rank in his profession. He was very successful as a jury advocate. He possessed a great share of wit and humor, and occasionally indulged in sarcasm with telling effect. He was a social, pleasant, and agreeable companion, and had acquired such a degree of popular favor and confidence, that when his former partner was appointed District Judge of the U. S. Court, Mr. Upham became his successor in the U. S. Senate in 1841, and was re-elected in 1847. He died at Washington, while still Senator, in 1853.

"He did not speak often in the Senate, but whenever he did, it was with much force, directness, and effect. He was stanch in his political opinions, and commanded attention as an independent thinker, and an outspoken representative of New England sentiment."

The following sketch of the life of Senator Upham is from the History of Montpelier, Vt., published in 1860, by the Hon. D. P. Thompson:

"The Hon. William Upham, son of Captain Samuel Upham, was born in Leicester, Mass., Aug. 5, 1792, where, while a resident there, he received only the first rudiments of an education, being too young to attend the academy in that town. In 1802, his father and family removed to Vermont, and settled on a farm near the center of Montpelier. Here from the age of ten to about fifteen, he worked on his father's farm, only attending the district school in the winter. At this time he met with an accident, which, at the time, apparently gave a new turn to his destinies for life: While engaged about a cider mill, his hand was caught in the machinery, and all the fingers of the right hand were so badly crushed that they had to be amputated even with the palm. This accident unfitted him for manual labor, led his father to consent to what had before been his wish, the commencement of a course of education, preparatory to the study of law. Accordingly he attended the old academy at Montpelier, a few terms, and then, with the late Rev. William Perrin, of Berlin, for a fellow student, pursued the study of Greek and Latin, about one year, with the Rev. James Hobart of the last-mentioned town. In the year 1808 he entered the office of the Hon. Samuel Prentiss, in Montpelier, as a law student, and after pursuing his legal studies there for about three years, he was admitted to the bar, and soon went into partnership with Mr. Bayliss a few years; he then opened an office alone in Montpelier, and from that time, until his election to the U. S. Senate, he, either alone or with his temporary partners, continued in the constant and successful practice of his profession, the business of which was always more than ample enough to require his whole time and attention. For the first thirty years of his professional career, Mr. Upham, with the exception of only one instance, steadily declined the many proffers of his friends for his promotion to civil office, though his opportunities for holding such offices included the chance for a seat on the bench of the Supreme Court. The excepted instance was involved in his consent to run as a candidate for the town representative in 1827; when, though the majority of his party was a matter of much doubt, he was triumphantly elected. In 1828, he was re-elected, and in 1830 received a third election, serving through all three terms to the entire satisfaction of his constituents, and therein exhibiting talents as a public debater which gave him a high position in the Legislature. In the presidential campaign of 1840, he, for the first time, took an active part in politics, and to use a modern phrase, stumped nearly the whole state, making himself everywhere known to the people by the peculiar traits of his popular eloquence, and by doing efficient political service in favor of the election of General Harrison. In 1841 he was elected to a seat in the United States Senate; and in 1847 he was re-elected to the same distinguished office, and died of malignant small-pox, at Washington, before the completion of his last term, on January 14, 1853, aged 61 years. His remains repose in the Congressional burial ground in that city.

"In his professional career, to which the main energies of his life were devoted, he became widely known as one of the best advocates in the state. He was, indeed, what might be called a natural-born lawyer, and the practice of his profession seemed to amount to almost a passion with him; and, even in his youth, before he commenced his legal studies, he would often, it is said, leap from his dreams in his bed, and commence pleading some imaginary law case. And, what he determined to be, that he became, one of the most successful jury lawyers to be found in any country. Never hesitating for a word, and fluent almost beyond example, the style of his speaking was rapid, thoroughly earnest, and often highly impassioned, and so magnetic was that earnestness and seeming confidence in his case, and so skillfully wrought up were his arguments, that had indeed must have been his side of the question, if he did not command the sympathies and convictions of a good part, if not all of the jury."

At the time the customary resolutions, on the occasion of his death, were introduced in Congress, Senator Foot, of Vermont, in his obituary address, said of him:

"His impaired health, for some years past, has restrained him from participating so generally and so actively in the discussions of this body, as his inclinations might otherwise have induced him to do, or his ability as a public debater might perhaps have demanded of him. Nevertheless his speeches on several important and existing public questions have the peculiar impress of his earnestness, his research, his ability and his patriotic devotion to the best interests of his country. A striking example is furnished of his fidelity to the trust committed to him, and his constant and patient attention to his public duties here, in the fact, which I had from his own mouth, that during the ten years of his services in this body, he never absented himself from the city of Washington on a single day, while Congress was in session, and never failed, while the condition of his health would permit, of daily occupying his seat in the Senate."

Senator Seward said: "William Upham was of Vermont; a consistent exponent of her institutions. He was a man of strong and vigorous judgment, which acted always by a process of sound, inductive reasoning, and his compeers here will bear witness that he was equal to the varied and vast responsibilities of the senatorial trust. He was a plain, unassuming, unostentatious man. He never spoke for display, but always for conviction. He was an honest and just man. He had gotten nothing by fraud or guile; and so he lived without any fear of losing whatever of fortune or position he had attained. No gate was so strong, no lock so fast and firm as the watch he kept against the approach of corruption, or even undue influence or persuasion. His natural policy was the increase of industry, the cultivation of peace, and the patronage of improvement. He adopted his opinions without regard to their popularity, and never stifled his convictions of the truth, nor suppressed their utterance, through any fear or favor, or of faction; but he was, on the contrary, consistent and constant

‘ As pilot well expert in perilous wave,
That to a steadfast starre his course hath bent.’ ”

Mr. Upham's best known speeches in the Senate were: His speech on the Three Million Bill, delivered March 1, 1847; on the Ten Regiment Bill, and the Mexican War, delivered Feb. 15, 1848; on the Bill to Establish Territorial Governments of Oregon, New Mexico and California, delivered July 28, 1848; on the Compromise Bill, delivered July 1 and 2, 1850. These were all published in pamphlet form, as well as in all the leading political papers of the day, and at once received the stamp of public approbation as elaborate and able efforts. But besides these, and besides also the numerous written and published reports he made during his Congressional career, as chairman of the Committee on Revolutionary Claims, on the Post-office and Post-Roads, and of other committees, Mr. Upham made many other speeches on various subjects, which, though less extensively circulated perhaps, than those above mentioned, yet received almost equal praise from high quarters. Of the latter may be cited, as an instance, his speech in opposition to the Tariff Bill of 1846; and to show the approbation with which it was received at the time among distinguished men, the following characteristic note from Daniel Webster is given, which was sent to Mr. Upham, the evening after the speech was delivered, and which, after his death, was found among his private papers :

“THURSDAY EVE., July 26, 1846.

MY DEAR SIR:

If you could conveniently call at my house, at eight or nine o'clock in the morning, I should be glad to see you for five minutes. I wish to take down some of the statements made by you respecting the market abroad for our wool. Following in your track, my work is to compare the value of the foreign and home markets.

Yours truly,

DANIEL WEBSTER.

“If I had the honor of being a correspondent of Mrs. Upham. I should write to her to say, that you made an excellent speech. The point of the duty of our government to fulfill its pledges, so frequently and solemnly made, was exhibited in a very strong light.
D. W.”

In his domestic relations, Mr. Upham was also fortunate and happy. Near the close of 1814, he married Miss Sarah Keys of Ashford, Conn., and to them five children were born. After her husband's death, Mrs. Upham, though of a buoyant disposition, and striving hard to bear her loss with Christian resignation, soon began visibly to droop, and on the 8th of May, 1856, followed him to the grave. Hon. William Upham and his wife, Sarah Keys, had:

361 I William Keys, b. April 3, 1817, at Montpelier, Vt.; m. Maria Elizabeth Weeks, of Hardwick, Vt.; was a lawyer; lived in Salem and Canfield, O.

II Charles Carrol, b. 1818; he was a purser in the Navy, and d. 1867; left a wife, but no children.

III Sarah Sumner, b. 1821; m. 1840, Hon. William George Langdon, of Montpelier, who d. 1870; no children; she d. in Boston, May 27, 1888. The Boston Post of May 29, 1888, contained the following: "Mrs. Sarah S. Langdon, whose sudden death occurred in this city Sunday, was a daughter of the late Senator Upham, of Montpelier, Vt. She had come to this city to consult an oculist, and had been under treatment some months. A few days since she was stricken with apoplexy, from which she never rallied. Mrs. Langdon was widely known in the social circles of New York and Washington, and was everywhere most highly esteemed and beloved. She was noted for her deeds of unostentatious charity, and at her home in Montpelier, her kindly face was familiar among the deserving poor. Personally she was a lady of high accomplishments, who made friends wherever she went, and her sudden demise will cause sorrow to many. The funeral will take place to-day from her late home in Montpelier."

IV Mary Annette, b. 1825; never married; previous to the death of Mrs. Langdon she usually made it her home with her, the two sisters spending their winters in Florida or California, and the summers at Nahant, Newport, Saratoga, or other watering places in the North.

There was another son born in this family who died in infancy, and of whom there is no record.

- he was an officer during the war of the Rebellion, and afterward a prominent citizen of Duluth, Minn.
- 365 VI Erastus Seymour, b. Feb. 12, 1850, at Fayetteville; m. Harriet N. Preston; lived in Duluth, Minn.

196. Alvin^r Upham (Jonathan⁶, Jonathan⁵, Samuel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Westminster, Mass., b. in Holland, Mass., Aug. 2, 1799; m. Sarah Derby in 1827; b. in Westminster, Feb. 26, 1800; d. in Racine, Wis., Sept., 1878; he d. in Niles, Mich., 1852.

He was many years in business at Westminster, where he was last engaged in the manufacture of cane-seated chairs, supplying firms in various parts of Mass., and forwarding his stock to those places with the teams which he kept on the road for that purpose. A business firm owed him a sum of money, large for those days, to recover which he employed Franklin Pierce (afterward president of the U. S.). A delay in the suit followed, during which the available property of this firm was placed beyond the reach of the law. This brought financial disaster, the sacrifice of his business, and his home in Westminster. He moved West with his wife and eight children, locating at Niles, Mich., and where he died a few months later. After his death the family moved to Racine, Wis., the elder children engaging in teaching and commercial occupations, the younger ones obtaining an education at the high school.

Of his life and character his daughter says: "Looking backward into the old white house, opposite the tavern, our old New England home, I see my father, Alvin Upham. Physically he was rather below the average man in weight and strength, though fully of the average height. He had a thoughtful, earnest look, large, dark-blue eyes, a full brow, with mouth and chin, denoting firmness and strength of character; his countenance lighted by the half hidden quiet humor of his nature; brightened also by a trusting spirit, which, unfortunately for him and his, darkened and burdened his last days by an over-much confidence in others. In town and church his quiet influence was felt, and always for the good. He was given to hospitality, and an indulgent father; some of his children were ever at his side, whether at his business or in his home. Grace was said by him before meals, and there was daily family prayer, and reading of the Scriptures. His mother lived with him many years, dying in his home after she had passed into the nineties. Her last look to him was a benediction, for it said: 'Alvin you have been a good son.' He was a good son, a good husband, a good father, and a good citizen. His was a life of fifty-two years, 'filled with little nameless acts of kindness and love.'"

His posterity has been most respectable, and his children, without exception, have been prominent, useful and influential members of the communities in which they have lived.

Alvin Upham and his wife Sarah had :

April 14, 1802. His father died when he was four years old, and he went with his mother to Waitsfield, Vt., remaining there three years, when his mother married James Goodrich, of Pittsfield, Vt., and with them he lived three years; he then returned to Waitsfield, and lived with Ashbel Miner—who had married his Aunt Dolly Wallis—where he remained until he was of age. He was after this employed as a school teacher and a surveyor, and after his marriage in 1823, in farming for some years. Some years later he engaged in the building of mills and bridges, though at the same time continuing the occupation of a land surveyor, as occasion offered—his residence during this time being at Warren, and for five years at Lincoln. In 1837 he bought a farm at Warren, which was his home for the remainder of his life. He was elected to the Legislature of Vermont, becoming a member in 1848. In 1850 he was a member of the Constitutional Convention. In 1854 and 1855 he was one of the associate judges of Washington county. In 1864 and 1865 he was Senator from Washington county in the State Legislature. During his life he filled nearly every office in the town of Warren. In his earlier political life he was a "Jackson Democrat," with which party he remained until the organization of the "Liberty Party," which he joined, thus identifying himself with the early "Abolitionists;" and for the principles and success of this party he labored zealously. He was one of the 319 who voted for James G. Birney for President. He was a firm believer in the Christian religion, and for sixty years a member of the Congregational Church. He was also a life-long worker in the temperance cause, and especially active in all movements for the general benefit of the community in which he lived. In 1869 he sold his farm, but he and his wife continued to live with their son-in-law on the place. He died May 26, 1884. Denslow Upham and his wife, Adah H. Richardson, had:

A. J. Stephens

- 386 I Edward Fisk, b. Jan. 29, 1825, in Warren; m. March 10, 1847, Orleana Dodge, and was a doctor of medicine at West Randolph, Vt.

218. Hon. Don Alonzo Joshua¹ Upham (Joshua⁶, William⁵, Ezekiel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Milwaukee, Wis., b. May 31, 1809, in Weathersfield, Vt.; m. Elizabeth S. Jaques, dau. of Dr. Gideon Jaques, of Wilmington, Del., Oct. 20, 1836, who was b. Aug. 8, 1815. (The Jaques family of French extraction; they left France about the time the Huguenots were driven from that country, and went to England. In 1640, Henry Jaques came from England and settled in Newburyport, Mass.; his grandson Henry, went from Massachusetts to Woodbridge, N. J. Col. Moses Jaques, of Rahway, N. J., who was in the Revolution, was a grandson of the second Henry Jaques, and was the father of Dr. Gideon Jaques, of Wilmington, above mentioned.) She d. Sept. 9, 1888.

Don Alonzo Joshua Upham attended the preparatory school at Chester, Vt., and subsequently, in 1826 and 1827, at Meriden, N. H. At the age of 19 he entered the Sophomore class at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y. He was graduated from Union College in 1831, with the highest standing in a class of about 100, receiving the degree of B. A. In October, 1831, he entered the law office of Gen. James Tallmadge, in New York, as a student. Through the recommendation of Dr. E. Nott, president of Union College, he received the appointment of professor of mathematics at Newark, Del., which position he held for three years, at the same time pursuing the study of law, and writing editorials for the Delaware Gazette—then the leading Democratic paper of Delaware. He was admitted to the bar in Baltimore 1835. He returned to Delaware, and commenced the practice of law in Wilmington, where he was elected City Attorney the year following. From 1834 to 1837 he was editor and proprietor of the Delaware Gazette and American Watchman, published in Wilmington. After having married, in 1836, he left Wilmington in the fall of 1837, and settled in Milwaukee, in the then Territory of Wisconsin. Here he formed a law partnership, the firm being Upham & Walworth, and was known as such for many years. Later he formed a partnership with the Hon. Wilson Graham.

Mr. Upham was a member of the Wisconsin Territorial Legislature in 1840-1 and 1842. He was elected County Attorney for Milwaukee county 1843. He was President of the Constitutional Convention, which met at Madison in 1846 to frame a Constitution for the new State of Wisconsin. He was Mayor of Milwaukee 1849 and 1850. He was the Democratic nominee for Governor of Wisconsin in 1851. He was U. S. Attorney for the District of Wisconsin from 1857 to 1861—during which period the memorable Booth trials were in progress.

His health failing in 1863, he retired from the active duties of his profession, after an honorable and lucrative practice from 1837 to 1863. His leisure after his retirement was occupied in the study of astronomy—one which had been a favorite with him at college—and with the aid of an astronomical telescope of large power, he was able to review his investigations in this direction, learning of the great progress which has been made in that science during the years which he had been actively employed in his profession, and to some extent verifying the computations annually made at the Astronomical Observatory in Washington.

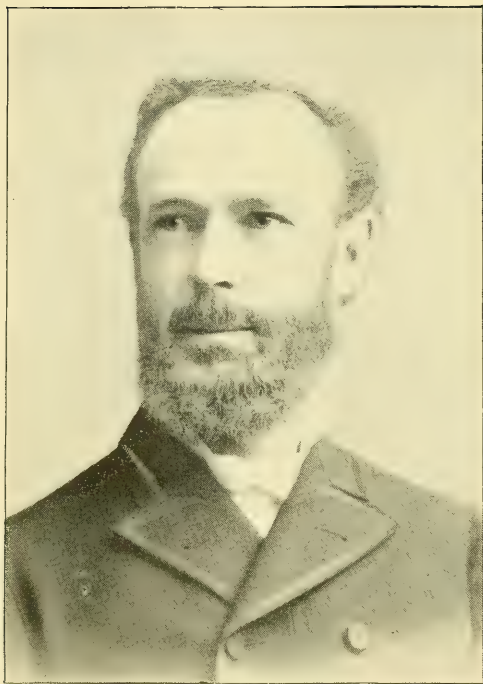

He died July 19, 1877, in his 68th year, and was buried at the Forest Home Cemetery, near Milwaukee, where a monument has been erected to his memory. His wife survived his death, but died September 9, 1883.* They had:

- I John Jaques, b. July 25, 1837, in Wilmington, Del., entered the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, July 1, 1854, graduating 1859; brevet 2d lieut. 9th

He was a Baptist minister, and d. June 30, 1843, æ. 33 years. The following biographical notice was published in the Baptist Memorial and Monthly Chronicle, New York, for Sept., 1843:

"William D. Upham was born in Weathersfield, Vt., Feb. 13, 1810. Inclination and capacity for literary pursuits strongly marked his early life. At the age of eighteen he determined to devote himself to the profession of law. After completing his preparatory studies at Chester, Vt., and Middleboro, Mass., he spent a summer in teaching in the city of New York, and entered Brown University in October, 1831. He spent the next winter in teaching at Dedham, Mass. It was here the great work was effected which changed all his feelings and pursuits. Once in conversation with the writer, after saying that in early life he had frequently been the subject of religious impressions, and had sometimes formed resolutions, which gave him transient peace, but made no permanent change in his character; and that, although he had ever avoided profanity and other gross vices, his views of religion were becoming sceptical, and he deemed Christianity unworthy of his attention, he proceeded to give the following account of this change:

“During the session of anniversary meetings with the Congregational Church at Dedham, in March, 1832, as I stood by the door one bright morning, I accepted an invitation to go to the prayer meeting. As I sat among the praying I thought: How solemn, and how different from mine are the feelings of these people! I was impressed with the thought of my own dishonesty; I had never treated the subject of religion candidly. How vain and conceited I had been! I resolved to read the Bible, and let it speak for itself. The Bible now seemed another book, every verse and line was full of meaning. Several evenings were passed in this way, till I found I could only go like the prodigal to God. I kneeled to pray, but all God's universe seemed to be telling me I was too vile to pray. I kneeled again, and poured out my feelings to God. Some relief came, yet I dared not hope I had fully submitted to Him. One night I felt to place myself in His hands to dispose of as it seemed to Him good; whether saved or lost, I resolved to be His.’

“Mr. Upham now felt a calm peace, the peace of those justified by faith. And his after life testified that unlike his previous self-formed resolutions, which as the early dew had passed away, this was according to the effectual workings of the Holy Ghost. He returned to the university with new and nobler aims, and thenceforth the glory of God, and the gospel of Christ were paramount in his esteem. In devotion to these he found his happiness; still a predilection for Pedit-Baptist views on the one hand, and on the other, a firm determination to adopt no sentiment which he could not clearly sustain from the word of God, kept him for some time from a public profession of religion. At length his love of truth prevailed, and he was baptized into the fellowship of the First Baptist Church in Providence, on the first Lord's day in November.

“He now felt that God had called him to dedicate his life to His service, and with the approbation of the Church, directed his course toward the ministry. At the close of the second year he was compelled to leave the university for the want of means, and spent the next three years in teaching in the village of Wickford and North Kingston, R. I. He often mentioned this as the most interesting period of his life. The only worship in the place was Episcopalian. The few scattered Baptists had no church organization or meetings; vital religion was little thought of. Mr. Upham, unassisted, collected a Sunday-school of 40 scholars. He soon after appointed religious meetings on Sabbath afternoons, where he read and expounded the Scriptures. The blessing of God so attended the effort, that at the close of the year a subscription was raised, and a minister obtained. The few Baptists were soon collected into a church of 13 members, of whom Mr. Upham was one. A revival followed, and at the close of the year they numbered 45. During the next year a meeting-house was built, which cost Mr. Upham one hundred and fifty dollars, besides much time as one of the building committee. He likewise gave the church twenty-five dollars in a Sunday-school library. Such sacrifices from one who had suspended his own course of study for want of means, show no ordinary devotion to the cause of Christ. But he felt that the continued prosperity of the Church, which had now increased to one hundred and fifty members, and an entire renovation in the morals of the place had proven a rich reward from God for his exertions, sacrifices and persecutions at Wickford. While residing at Wickford he married Miss Lucy M. Spink, of that place.

"In December, 1856, he removed to Ludlow, Vt., where for two years he was principal of the Black River Academy. His connection with this institution gained for it a large share of public confidence, and for himself a deserved popularity as a teacher. While here he labored in the gospel ministry, to which, by request of the church in Ludlow, he was ordained in November, 1837. In December, 1838, after having for some time supplied the Second Baptist Church in Townshend, and in acceptance of their unanimous call, he became their pastor. To the work of the ministry he now devoted all his energies; and his faithful, judicious and affectionate labors won to him the esteem and love of his people. So entire and universal was their confidence in him, that no member of his congregation thought of having the relations dissolved by any other event than his death. Under his ministry, God blessed the church with uninterrupted harmony, increasing devotion to the cause, and large accessions to their numbers.

"His disease—bronchitis—which terminated in pulmonary consumption, first attacked him in October, 1839. After this, he was fairly laid aside from public labors. His last sermon was preached on Lord's day, March 20, 1843, from Rev. 22:17. From this time his disease progressed rapidly; but while his strength wasted, his soul was sustained by that religion which he had preached to others. He found it, as he said, altogether better than he had represented it. His reliance on the Saviour seemed entire, and his hope of Heaven unspeakably joyous. 'The thought,' said he, 'that a sinful child of earth should be raised to such a glorious Heaven, is too much for me! It seems as though I should never have capacity enough to praise God.' To those inquiring for his condition, he would answer: 'Almost home!' Or in the morning, 'one night nearer home.' To his people he would say: 'I hope to meet you all at the feet of Jesus. O, how glorious that will be! we shall all be there soon.' To his brethren of the ministry he spoke of his own want of faithfulness, and said that could they enter into his feelings, and view Eternity as a living reality, as it now appeared to him, they would be more faithful in the discharge of duty; they would preach more of Jesus. When asked how he viewed death, he said: 'The thought of dying, and the grave, scarcely come into my mind — but of the glorious world beyond.' In great distress, his quiet prayer was, 'Jesus, keep me from murmuring, for this is nothing to what Thou hast suffered.' At the near approach of death his joy increased. His companion inquired: 'Does the passage seem bright? — Has death lost its sting?' 'O, yes!' he replied, with a smile that seemed lighted with the bliss of the Heavenly world. He said: 'Dear Jesus, into Thy hands I commit my spirit,' and soon after fell asleep. He died June 30, 1843, aged 33 years.

"Mr. Upham was formed for friendship. Affectionate, affable, and sincere, possessing a lively sensibility, always regulated by wisdom, and tempered with meekness and love; with an unaffected humility which ever made him unconscious of his superiority, he was esteemed by all who knew him.

"With a mind intensely active, with much zeal and spirituality, he was always deliberate, candid and rational; his severity was mingled with compassion, and his energy guided by prudence. He was never boisterous, exclusive, or overbearing.

"His piety was uniform and consistent. In a measure which few attain, he was like his Divine Master, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners. None questioned his sincerity, or reproached his character.

'His practice wrought
A living sermon of the truths he taught.'

"His love for Christ and His cause was fervent. The name of Jesus was ever dear to him, and much upon his tongue. The example of Christ was the rule of his conduct; and to Christ's likeness, during his last years, he rapidly approximated. The desire that others should know Him, prompted him to untiring zeal in the ministry, and a hearty co-operation in all judicious measures for the conversion of the world.

"As a preacher he was impressive and interesting. Feeling deeply the truths he uttered, he reached the hearts of his hearers. His skill in delineating the various workings of the human heart, often made his hearers wonder at his acquaintance with their characters, and frequently led them to think him personal. He would portray their faults, and hold them up in all their deformity and exposure to the wrath of God; yet in so affectionate a manner, that while they felt the reproof, they loved the reprover the more. His preaching was eminently practical, yet he always addressed the understanding and conscience. He spoke of guilt and pardoning mercy, much more than of danger, and of a way of escape. While he dwelt comparatively little upon the advantages of piety, the obligations of Christians to be Christ-like, to glorify God, and make sacrifices for the extension of the Gospel, was his favorite theme. Full of benevolence himself, he earnestly labored against every form of selfishness in others.

"His death was much lamented by the ministers and churches of Vermont, among whom his piety, talents and wisdom, had secured him a measure of esteem and confidence possessed by few at so early an age. May the Lord raise up many among us who shall walk in his steps, as he followed Christ."

258. Jeremiah⁷ Upham (Sylvanus⁶, Joseph⁵, Joseph⁴, Thomas³, Phineas², John¹), of Castine, Me., b. there, 1804; m. Cornelia Crawford, at Castine, Oct. 27, 1831, who was b. in Brewer, Me., Oct. 31, 1809, and d. at Castine, Aug. 30, 1865. He went to sea at a very early age and had command of a vessel, but died when his children were so young that but little memory of him was preserved; his eldest daughter remembered him as quiet and reserved in his habits, and of a sensitive and refined nature, though nearly his whole life was spent at sea. He was in the barque "Fredonia," and was taken ill while on the passage from St. Helena to Zanzibar, Africa; at Zanzibar he was placed under the charge of a native physician, but did not recover, and died there, Feb. 14, 1846. His remains were buried on the island of Zanzibar, where the grave was afterward visited and identified by one of his relatives. They had:

- I Cornelia Adams, b. May 17, 1833, in Castine; m. in Castine, Nov. 26, 1855, James B. Osgood, of Ellsworth, Me. They lived in Washington, D. C., many years, where he was connected with the U. S. treasury. They had:

259. Sylvanus Kidder⁷ Upham (Sylvanus⁶, Joseph⁵, Joseph⁴, Thomas³, Phineas², John¹), of Dixon, Ill., b. March 11, 1811, in Castine, Me.; m. in Castine, Jan. 1, 1839, Marianne Brooks, who was b. in Castine, Jan. 11, 1819, and d. in Dixon, Dec. 30, 1870; he m. (2) Mrs. Angelina (Brown) Sewell, widow of the Rev. Daniel Sewell, of Maine, who survived his death, and died in 1892.

When a boy, he went one voyage to sea, in the ship with his brother, but he did not like a sea-faring life. He was first engaged in business at Castine, but finding it unprofitable with the decline of trade in that town, about 1843-4, he moved to Boston with his family, which then consisted of a wife and two children. At Boston he formed a partnership with his brother-in-law, J. B. Brooks, and engaged in the West India goods business on Long Wharf. Later he was in the commission business in connection with a partner who remained in St. John, N. B. On the discovery of gold in California, he became one of a Boston company, of ten members, which purchased the brig "Col. Tayloe," loaded it with merchandise intended for the mining trade, and on the 14th of February, 1849, sailed from Boston, via Cape Horn, for California. After a voyage of more than seven months, they reached San Francisco on the 21st of September, 1849. He was engaged in mercantile business in California about eighteen months, with fair success, at Sacramento, Coloma and Georgetown, and then returned to his family, which had been living at Salem during his absence. He then purchased a place in Woburn, and was for a short time engaged in business in Boston, but found it not quite satisfactory. In 1853 he sold out, went West, and settled in Dixon, Ill., where his brother-in-law, J. B. Brooks, and several others from Castine, who were friends and relatives of both himself and wife, had preceded him and located. At Dixon he engaged in the lumber business, at that time being obliged to have his entire stock brought in rafts down Rock river, as no railroad had yet reached Dixon. He continued in this business many years, and up to within a few years of his death, which occurred at Dixon, February 13, 1883, at the age of nearly seventy-three, caused by an abscess of the bowels, from which he had been suffering some time, but had been unable to determine the cause. The doctor who attended him gave the cause of his death as epididimitis, or inflammation and perforation of the cæcum. In the earlier years at Dixon he was active in the organization of the Congregational church, of which he was a deacon, but the membership was so small they combined with the Presbyterians, and formed one church of the latter denomination a few years later; in the Presbyterian church he continued his interest and membership during the life-time of his wife, but afterward was not active in church matters. At his death the following obituary notice was published by the editor of the Dixon Daily Telegraph, of February 15, 1883:

“Again we are called upon to record the death of an old resident and highly-respected and much-beloved citizen of Dixon. S. K. Upham died at his home in North Dixon, Tuesday morning, after a protracted illness, extending over many months. The funeral services will take place at the residence this morning at ten o’clock. Mr. Upham was born at Castine, Me., March 11, 1811, and became a citizen of Dixon about thirty years ago. He was a number of years in the lumber trade here, a partner at the time of Mr. Charles F. Emerson, of this city; the firm name was Upham & Emerson; but he retired from business some time since. Last summer he took a trip to the South-west in hopes to improve his failing health, but receiving no benefit, returned in a few weeks, and was confined to his house after that time. S. K. Upham had the respect and esteem of all who knew him. He was a gentleman of excellent literary taste, well educated, and possessed of a mind cultured much above the average business man. We have read several bright and sparkling productions from his pen, and we have often thought that had it not been for a peculiar modesty which characterized him, he would have made his mark in the literary world. Genial and generous in his nature, he was a pleasant companion, a good neighbor and a valued citizen. The deceased leaves a widow and three children: Capt. Frank K.

Upham, Mr. Charles C. Upham, and Mrs. Margaret Wright. The latter has been several years in Europe engaged in literary pursuits; and the two sons are in the West, one in the army, and the other engaged as a civil engineer for the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad. The death of Mr. Upham will cause a pang of regret in many a heart, and his good cheer will be missed on our streets."

In the Dixon Daily Sun, of the 14th of February, 1883, also appeared the following similar notice of his death:

"After a long and painful illness, Mr. S. K. Upham died yesterday morning of internal tumor, at the age of 72. He was born in Castine, Me., March 11, 1811. He went to California in 1849, and, after a year and a half spent there, returned to his home in the East. He came with his family, consisting of a wife and four children, to Dixon in 1853, and has been actively engaged in business up to within the past few years. Several years ago he lost a married daughter, and subsequently his first wife. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter. During his long business career no man in Dixon has made more sincere friends and fewer enemies. His kindness of heart and sterling good qualities have endeared him to the hearts of all who came into close relation with him. The funeral services will be conducted at the family residence, in North Dixon, at ten o'clock to-morrow."

Marianne Brooks, the wife of S. K. Upham, was the daughter of Barker and Margaret (Perkins) Brooks, of Castine, and a descendant (in the sixth generation) of William Brooks, who came to Scituate, Mass., from England, in 1635, in the ship "Blessing." His descendants have continued at Scituate, Dorchester and South Boston until the present time; the male representatives through various generations being mostly either sea captains or ship-builders. Barker Brooks, the father of Marianne, was a ship-builder and owned the Brooks Ship-Yard at Castine, where some fine ships were built in former times. (The Brooks lineage appears in Munsell's American Ancestry, vol. III, p. 77.) Margaret Perkins, the mother of Marianne Brooks, was the daughter of Capt. Joseph Perkins, of Castine, a wealthy man and ship-owner, an account of whom, with a record of his family, is published in Wheeler's History of Castine. At the death of Marianne Upham, the following obituary notice appeared in one of the papers at Dixon, written by the Rev. E. C. Sickles, for many years pastor of the church of which she was a member:

"Died — Friday, December 30th, of acute enteritis, Mrs. Marianne Upham, wife of S. K. Upham, Esq., aged nearly 52 years.

"Mrs. Upham was born in Castine, Me., where she passed the greater part of her life before her removal to this place in 1853. For nearly eighteen years, therefore, she has been known among us, winning by her graces of character and person a large number of loving friends. She was gifted by nature with a strong mind and a lovely disposition, and had attained a high degree of culture, so that her loss is deeply felt by all who knew her. It was religion, however, that invested her character with its greatest charm. For many years she was a member of the Congregational church in her native place, and latterly of the Presbyterian church here, and she was more than a consistent Christian — she was a cheerful, happy one, adorning her profession and commending, by her beautiful life, religion to all.

"Her mind readily received the truths of revelation, and her heart fully rested in them. The result was a strong Christian character, peace and cheerfulness constantly. At home she diffused happiness. 'The heart of her husband trusted in her, and her children rise up and call her blessed.' Of her numerous friends and acquaintances, many were in the habit of resorting to her for counsel and comfort in times of perplexity and trouble, so reliable was her judgment, and so full of sympathy her heart.

"Some three years since the shadow of a great affliction rested upon her and hers, in the loss of a lovely daughter, a favorite, too, in the church and community, but resultant, as all her friends could see, were the 'peaceable fruits of righteousness,' and a rapid ripening for glory.

"During her short illness her entire household were present. The elder son, an officer in the regular army, after an absence of more than eleven years on the western frontier, had returned on leave of absence but a few weeks previous; and a younger son, absent for several months, had come to pass the holidays. Certainly, it was a remarkable providence that, after so long a separation, brought them together around the sick and dying bed of a mother, and it was a source of great comfort to her.

"The nature of her illness was such as to produce much suffering and extreme prostration, but she retained the use of her faculties to the end. She gathered the family around her, and gave to each words of counsel and blessing. Frequent were her expressions of peace and joy during the hours of her waning strength, rendering her dying like her life, calm and beautiful. To one who asked if the Saviour were present, she replied: 'Oh, yes! I have trusted him long, and he is no stranger to me now.' To another, who, when near her end, remarked: 'You are almost there, aren't you?' she said: 'Yes, and it fills me with joy when I can fully realize it.'

"Much more she said of like import, until, at last, quietly and gently she 'fell on sleep.'"

'She is not tasting death, but taking rest
On the same holy couch where Jesus lay;
Soon to awake all glorified and blest,
Where day is broke, and shadows fled away.'

"Sabbath, the first inst., was the 32d anniversary of her marriage. On that day, her funeral was attended from the Presbyterian church, which was filled to overflowing with sincere mourners."

Sylvanus Kidder Upham, and his wife, Marianne Brooks, were both buried in the cemetery at Dixon, where a single stone marks their grave. They had:

- I Margaret Barker, b. Nov. 19, 1839, in Castine. She m. at Dixon, Nov. 22, 1859, Dr. Zalmon James McMaster, of Chicago, who was from Auburn, N. Y. He d. æ. 31, while surgeon of an Illinois regiment, in the war of the Rebellion, from the effect of exposure in the line of duty, while caring for the wounded on the battle-field, after Pittsburg Landing, on account of which a pension was granted by the United States to his wife and child. He was the son of Hugh J. McMaster, who died in Auburn, March 31, 1876, æ. 75. The family of Scotch descent, and settled in the Mohawk valley before the Revolution. Margaret B. m. (2) June 24, 1868, Charles Henry Wright, of Chicago, who was b. in Deposit, Delaware Co., N. Y., June 24, 1838. He was a journalist, and at the time of his death at Chicago, on the 10th of Sept., 1869, was city editor of the Chicago Times. The members of the Chicago press published a pamphlet "in Memoriam" at his death. Mrs. Wright has been a contributor to current literature — more especially, art publications; she passed a number of years in Europe, and for a time represented the Art Amateur, and was a correspondent of other American publications. She returned to America, and while her son was a student at Harvard University, she was located at Cambridge, Mass., where she was a member of the editorial staff of the Cambridge Tribune, and supported her-

B Charles Henry Conrad, son of Charles H. Wright, b. Nov. 16, 1869, in Chicago, Ill., after the death of his father. He was graduated at Harvard University, at the head of the class of 1891, and in July, 1891, went to England for the purpose of continuing his studies in mediæval French at Oxford University. He is now a student at Trinity College, Oxford.

419 II Frank Kidder, b. May 30, 1841, in Castine; m. Sarah Elvira Camp. He was a captain in the First Regiment of U. S. Cavalry, and is now on the retired list of the regular army.

III Annie Gay, b. Aug. 20, 1845, in East Boston, Mass.; m. Edward Utley, Nov. 27, 1866, at Dixon. She d. in Dixon, June 12, 1867.

IV Charles Clifton, b. May 5, 1852, in Woburn, Mass.; m. at Dixon, Dec. 18, 1883, Anna St. John Eells, who was b. in Dixon, Nov. 6, 1860, dau. of Samuel Cook Eells, and wife, Anna Moore. S. C. Eells, b. in Walton, Delaware Co., N. Y., March 19, 1822, and a descendant of Nathaniel, who came from England 1634, and settled at Dorchester, Mass. Charles Clifton Upham, a civil engineer. He has been connected with the construction and management of various railroads in the West and South-west, and was for a time engaged as a mining engineer in Colorado. He was with the Grand Junction, Bellville and North Hastings railroad in Ontario, Canada; with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, and Mexican Central roads; with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy; in 1885 was appointed Chief Engineer of the Chicago, Burlington and Northern, then in course of construction, with its head-quarters at St. Paul, Minn. After the completion of the latter he was made Superintendent of all lines of railroad belonging to the C. B. and Q. Co. within the State of Illinois, head-quarters at Galesburg, which position he resigned on account of a temporary loss of health. Later he was engaged in construction of a line of electric street cars at Salt Lake City, Utah, known as the Rapid Transit Company. In the spring of 1891 he became general manager of an electric street car company at Lincoln, Neb., in which line he is also a stockholder.

Charles C. Upham is one of those who have had the opportunity of reading their own obituary notices. Some years ago while he was in the South-west, some of his men were massacred by Indians, and it was thought at first he was with the party; fortunately he was temporarily absent on some business, and so escaped. The following notice appeared in a Denver, Col., paper on the occasion of the news reaching there. It contains numerous inaccuracies, which no attempt has been made to correct, and is given just as it appeared:

"BUTCHERIES ON THE BORDER.—FURTHER DETAILS OF THE MURDER OF THE MEXICAN CENTRAL PARTY OF ENGINEERS.—CHARLES C. UPHAM, A WELL-KNOWN COLORADO ENGINEER, IS FOUND AMONG THE DEAD.

(Special Dispatch to Daily Republican.)

"SANTA FE, July 6.

"Further information from El Paso is to the effect that the Mexican Central surveyors, killed forty miles south of El Paso, were Engineer C. C. Upham and his men. The bodies were found by Colonel J. F. Bennett, of Silver City, and some Denver men, who were going south to look at property in Chihuahua, preparatory to purchasing. They report that three bodies were burned, so as to be beyond recognition, but others could have been recognized by parties knowing the men. It is supposed that Upham was one of the men burned. This party of surveyors numbered thirteen with himself. They were near Candelaria mountains. The bodies are now en route to El Paso to be identified and buried.'

"Mr. Charles C. Upham, one of the victims of the horrible tragedy, was well known throughout the State. He was born in Maine, but in later years resided with his parents in Dixon, Ill., where his father retired as one of the most successful lumber merchants in that section. After graduating at the Troy (N. Y.) Polytechnic Institute and serving an engineering apprenticeship on the Illinois river, he came to Colorado in 1875, locating at Del Norte. There he was afterward elected county surveyor of Rio Grande county. In 1878, he abandoned a lucrative business to join the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe engineering party, then at work in the Royal Gorge. As locating engineer he remained with the company until the line was completed to Leadville.

"Locating in the latter place, he did private work, meeting with the best of success in a business sense, but becoming fascinated with the prospects of a journey through New Mexico he accepted a position with the Santa Fe party moving south, in the spring of 1879. He became distinguished as a locating engineer, in this line his abilities being such as to give him a reputation that would have followed him for years had he lived. A few months ago, after the completion of the main line to Deming, he was offered the position of Chief Engineer on the Mexican Central, but being engaged at the time in settling a business proposition with Denver parties, which if successful would have occasioned his return and permanent residence in the State, he requested that the offer be allowed to remain open until he could give a final answer. The company acquiesced in this. He came to Denver some four or five weeks since, hoping to complete the negotiations that were pending. The trip did not result as expected, and he returned to await developments, with the sad and untimely result chronicled.

"Mr. Upham was 29 years of age, a young man of manly physique and most prepossessing appearance. He was of a very kindly disposition, courteous and gentlemanly, and beloved by everybody with whom he came in contact, either in the business or social circle. Possessed of none but the noblest impulses, he was never known to do a single wrong during his long sojourn in the State, and leaves behind a memory among his old associates — especially those of his earlier days in the San Juan — that will live, and living, thrive and gain strength with each succeeding year. A countless host will mourn his death.

"The deceased leaves a brother, Captain Frank Upham, present commander of Walla Walla, Oregon, and a sister of some renown as a writer; besides a father. Mr. Noah Brooks, one of the most talented of the New York editors, is an uncle."

283. Rev. James⁸ Upham (Joshua⁷, Jesse⁶, Timothy⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Chelsea, Mass., b. Jan. 23, 1815, in Salem, Mass.; m. Nov. 12, 1841, Cynthia Jane Bailey, of Providence, R. I., who was b. in Wickford, R. I., Oct. 2, 1815, and d. in Fairfax, Vt., Sept. 25, 1865; m. (2) June 27, 1868, Experience S. Bascom, of Gill, Mass., b. in Greenfield, Mass., Nov. 13, 1831. He was graduated at Colby University, Waterville, Me., in 1835. The next ten years he was successively principal of Farmington Academy, Farmington, Me.; student at the Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass.; professor at the Baptist Theological Institution, Thomaston, Me.; pastor in the First Baptist Church, Manchester, N. H., and then of the church in Millbury, Mass. From 1845 to 1866 he was theological professor, and for the last five years president of the Literary and Theological Institution first located at New Hampton, N. H., and afterward in Fairfax, Vt. After June, 1866, he was for nine years editor of the Watchman and Reflector (since the Watchman); five years associate editor of the Religious Herald, Richmond, Va.; and ten years health editor of the Youth's Companion, Boston, Mass., which position he still held in 1892. His editorials and occasional communications in prose and poetry to the various periodicals number nearly three thousand. The Baptist Encyclopedia (Cathcart's), in a brief sketch of him, referring to his editorship of the Watchman and Reflector, says: "He held this office with distinguished ability." The "Poets of Maine," by George Bancroft Griffith, gives specimens of his poems, with a biographical sketch. In 1860 the Colby University conferred on him the degree of D. D.

When Dr. Upham severed his connection with the Watchman, the National Baptist had the following notice:

"The only matter for regret in the recent change of the Watchman, is in the withdrawal of James Upham, D. D., who for nine years past has held a position on the staff of that paper, and during a greater part of the time (owing to the absence of Dr. Olmstead) has been practically the chief editor. While with characteristic modesty he has kept himself out of sight, he has done his work with remarkable ability, and has given to the paper variety and vivacity, while at the same time keeping steadily in view (in the language of his own farewell), 'revivals; missions, foreign, home and domestic; ministerial educations, temperance and peace.' " As already stated in the introductory pages, Dr. Upham has been largely instrumental in the preparation of this book.

The following lines were clipped from a recent number of the Watchman, and are from the pen of Dr. Upham:

FEW—MANY.

(Matt. 25: 21.)

Few are the duties given,
Fewer the duties done;
Yet vast the compensation
From these few duties won.

Few are the days we spend here,
As servants of our Lord;
Yet crowns and thrones await us,—
Oh, marvelous reward!

Many the rolling ages
Beneath the Saviour's smile,
Ages on ages endless,
Outpouring joy the while.

Oh, to be faithful ever,
In deed and heart and mind!
Oh, to be faithless never,
Whate'er the task assigned!

Large hearted is our Master;
Our duties few and light;
But oh! the blessed prospect
He holds before our sight.

284. Rev. Willard Peele⁸ Upham (Joshua⁷, Jesse⁶, Timothy⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of the Baptist Mission, Cherokee Nation, and later of Massachusetts, b. Oct. 15, 1819, in Salem, Mass. ; m. May 22, 1843, Eliza Oakham Newhall, who was b. in Saugus, Mass., Jan. 22, 1820, and d. in Coffeyville, Kan., March 26, 1884 (at the home of one of her children). He received his education at the Salem High School, the Latin Grammar School and the Dennison University, at Granville, Ohio ; but owing to the effects of protracted study he did not graduate—his health failing. After teaching several years in the West and in New England, he went, in 1843, as a missionary among the Cherokees—the most advanced of all the Indian tribes in Christianity and civilization. He was married on the same evening that he was publicly set apart for this work, and with his young wife, he arrived at the scene of his future labors on the 24th of June, 1843.

Soon after his arrival he took charge of the National High School, which he retained through his missionary life, a period of eighteen years. To this he added biblical instruction of the native preachers, and preaching on the Sabbath. His entire work he prosecuted with enthusiasm and success, until the beginning of the War of the Rebellion, in 1861, which broke up the mission for years. Owing to his known anti-slavery sentiments, the "border ruffians" had a plot to assassinate him, but this plot was divulged to him by a friendly Indian, and on the 1st of July, 1861, he made a timely escape to Kansas, where he purchased a farm and placed his family upon it. But soon after he was settled as pastor of the Baptist Church in Lawrence, Kan. He was in Lawrence during the Quantrell raid, on the 21st of Aug., 1863, on which occasion four hundred and fifty raiders, after having first cut off all means of escape from the city; shot down nearly two hundred citizens, and burned most of the buildings, a number of persons being consumed in the flames. It was said that Mr. Upham's unusual coolness, courage and personal management succeeded in diverting the raiders from their purpose to burn his dwelling, and shoot him, though one shot was fired at him. His house was left like an island in an ocean of flame.

His church was burned, and his congregation killed, ruined or scattered, but he continued to struggle with and for them for more than a year longer, after which he returned to Massachusetts. He was there settled successively as pastor at Ayer Junction, West Townsend and Framingham. In Sept., 1876, he resigned his four years pastorate at Framingham, owing to an affection of the heart. He died at Coffeyville, Kan., while on a visit to his eldest son, May 27, 1877. On the morning of his death he was about to preach, but suddenly ceased to breathe. His remains are buried with those of his wife at Coffeyville.

His brother James said of him: "He proved himself as efficient a pastor in New England, as he had been a missionary among the Cherokees. He was a man of excellent mind, devoted to his work, a genial companion and a most intelligent, ready and interesting conversationalist. Of all the children, he physically most resembled his father. His wife was a woman of rare worth, They had:

441 I Willard Stow, b. April 13, 1845, in Taquoe, Cherokee Nation; m. Emma A. Morgan. They lived in Coffeyville.

II Eliza Maria, b. Oct. 2, 1847, at Baptist Mission, Cherokee Nation; m. July 2, 1874, James McEwen Drake, b. in Rye, N. H., Feb. 19, 1846, and now, 1889, one of the firm of Perry, Mason & Co., Boston, Mass. They had:

A Stella Maria Drake, b. May 14, 1875, in Westerly, R. I.

B Henry Newhall Drake, b. Dec. 28, 1877, in Hartford, Conn.; d. Jan. 10, 1878.

C Durant Drake, b. Dec. 18, 1878, in Hartford.

The following reference to Mrs. Drake is from a Newton, Mass., paper:

"We learn with pleasure that Mrs. Maria Upham Drake, one of our most brilliant and effective speakers, has consented to her nomination as a member of the executive committee of the Newton Indian Association, which was made at the last annual meeting. Mrs. Drake was born among the Cherokees, in Indian Territory, her father, Rev. W. P. Upham, having resided there for eighteen years as missionary. When she was thirteen years of age she was sent to New England to be educated. As her childhood's memories must be full of the voices of the sons of the forest, we trust that now she will lend the influence of her logical mind and silver-tongued words to the cause. Mrs. Drake understands the 'art of putting things;' she has, by inheritance and acquisition, a moral and intellectual acumen, which has enabled her to grasp the question of the hour. Great success has attended the intellectual course of lectures to women, which she first gave for the Boston Young Women's Christian Association early in the winter; this has been repeated in Medford, West Medford, Charlestown, Malden, Everett, Chelsea, and next week it will be commenced in East Somerville, and early in May in Lynn. The tickets have been sold at $1.00 for the course, and the societies have added scores of dollars to their treasuries. In a private letter from a lady in Malden to a friend in Charlestown, the writer says: 'I cannot overestimate the value of these lectures. I felt that the first lecture fully paid for the price of the course. The enthusiasm of Mrs. Drake makes the ladies realize the importance of these subjects, as they could not from reading them.' The subjects of these lectures are, 'Heredity,' 'Physical Culture,' 'Moral Culture,' 'Spiritual Culture,' 'Social Purity.' Mrs. Drake has long been favorably known through her poems and stories, and her eloquent and intelligent advocacy of temperance. Now we may trust that she will join in the work for the Indian here in Newton, where such work is as old as the days of Eliott and Waban, and where it is said a white man and an Indian never lifted a deadly weapon against each other."

286. Thomas Cogswell⁸ Upham (Nathaniel⁷, Timothy⁶, Timothy⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Bowdoin College, Me., b. Jan. 30, 1799, in Deerfield, N. H.; m. Phebe Lord, of Kennebunkport, Me., who survived his death, and for some years lived in New York city. He was graduated at Dartmouth College, N. H., 1818, and in 1821, at Andover Theological Seminary. He was first ordained and settled as pastor of the Congregational church at Rochester, N. H., remaining there during the years 1823 and 1824. The degree of D. D. was conferred on him. He was professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy, and instructor in Hebrew, at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me, from 1825 to 1867. His published works are numerous, and also deeply spiritual and suggestive. He also translated from German. The following is a list of his works: Translation of Dr. Jahn's "Biblical Archæology;" author of: Ratio Diciplinæ, 1829; Elements of Mental Philosophy, 1831; Treatise on the Will, 1834; Manual of Peace, 1836; Outlines of Imperfect and Disordered Mental Action, 1840; Principles of the Interior or Hidden Life, 1848; American Cottage Life (poems), 1850; Treatise on Divine Union, 1851; Religious Maxims, 1854; Life, and Religious Opinions of Madame Guyon, 1847; Letters from Europe, Egypt and Palestine, 1855; The Life of Faith, 1856; Life of Catherine Adorna, 1856; Prize essay on a Congress of Nations, etc., etc.

He died April 2, 1872. They had no children, but adopted two, who took the name of Upham. One of these was:

George Barnard; m. Sarah Boynton Richardson. He settled at Yonkers, N. Y., and lived there many years, where he had an extensive practice of medicine. He d. at Yonkers, Aug. 9, 1889. The following obituary notice was published in the Yonkers Statesman on the day of his death:

"To-day it is our sad duty to chronicle the death of the senior physician of this city, Dr. George B. Upham, of 108 Warburton avenue, died this morning, about 3 o'clock, of heart failure, in the 66th year of his age. He was the fourth physician, in point of settlement, to practice his profession in Yonkers. His predecessors were the brothers, Drs. Amos W. and Horatio S. Gates, and Dr. Levi W. Flagg, all deceased. For a short time Dr. Upham was associated with the elder Dr. Gates, but he soon began an independent practice.

"Dr. Upham was born in New York city, March 29, 1824. His boyhood was passed in Brunswick, Me. He received his education under the supervision of Prof. T. C. Upham, of Bowdoin College. After the usual preparatory course, he matriculated, and graduated in 1846. He then entered the medical department of Dartmouth College, having begun at Bowdoin the study of medicine, and was under the teaching of the famous professor, E. R. Peaslee, who was demonstrator of anatomy in Dartmouth.

"Dr. Upham returned to New York city in 1848, and continued the study of medicine and surgery under the celebrated Dr. Valentine Mott. Then he completed his studies at the Bowdoin Medical College, graduating in 1850. He married Miss Sarah B. Richardson, of Bath, Me., in that year, and began the practice of his profession at Brunswick, where he continued nearly three years. In June, 1833, he came to Yonkers and resided for a year at 323 Warburton avenue. Then he removed to 108 on the same avenue, which beautiful place has been the family residence ever since.

"During the War of the Rebellion Dr. Upham was a member of the Board of Enrollment for the Ninth Congressional District, embracing Westchester, Putnam and Rockland counties, and was an examining surgeon for drafted men. The Board was stationed at Tarrytown for three years, and he was on duty there daily during the whole period. When the war was over, he was further appointed by the government an examining surgeon for pensioners, in which capacity he served for six years.

"Dr. Upham was also for many years on the Medical Board of St. John's Riverside Hospital. He was Republican in politics. As a physician he stood with the foremost, both as to professional skill and as to fidelity in his work. He was widely and favorably known—his extensive range of study, under eminent professors and professional men, giving him a reputation well supported by his learning, ability and courtesies.

"As a man he was a thorough gentleman—kind, tender, pleasant. To the suffering he was a comforter, always imparting courage and hope to the sick. He was connected with the famous Delta-Kappa-Epsilon Society.

"It can hardly be said that his demise was unexpected. He had not been well for many months, but occasionally he felt strong and in good spirits. On Wednesday of last week he was seen about the city; he looked well, and acted as if in good health. Thursday he was stricken with the disease that had troubled him, and after lingering for seven days he passed from earth. A widow, two daughters and a son survive him.

"The funeral services over the remains of Dr. Upham were held at the residence on Warburton avenue, on Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. W. Rand officiated. After reading appropriate passages of the Bible, a hymn was sung, which was followed by a brief discourse from the text in Samuel I, xx:3, where David says to Jonathan: 'There is but a step between me and death.' After singing another hymn, Rev. J. Hendrik de Vries offered prayer.

"There were a large number of friends present, who were permitted to take a last look at the deceased through the glass as he lay in a black cloth casket. The remains were interred in the family plot in St. John's Cemetery."

Dr. George Barnard Upham and wife had:

A William Richardson, b. April 15, 1852, in Brunswick, Me. He was graduated at Yale College, 1874, and afterward at Bellevue Medical College, N. Y.; then went to Paris and continued his medical studies. He returned to New York, and was for a time head surgeon at Bellevue Hospital. In 1879 he was practicing medicine at Yonkers.

B George Leland, b. 1855. He was graduated at Yale College, 1875, and d. 1882.

D John Barnard, b. 1863.

E Mary King, b. 1866.

The adopted daughter of Prof. Thomas C. Upham and wife was Sophronia Baker Heard, b. Aug., 1830. She took the name of Susan Elizabeth Upham, and married Mr. De Long, of Nunda, N. Y., by whom she was left a widow with no children.

287. Hon. Nathaniel Gookin^s Upham (Nathaniel^r, Timothy⁶, Timothy⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Concord, N. H., b. Jan. 8, 1801, in Deerfield, N. H.; m. Betsey W. Lord, dau. of Nathaniel, of Kennebunkport, Me., who d. in Concord, Aug. 17, 1833, æ. 23 years; m. (2) Sept. 9, 1834, Eliza W. Burnham, dau. of Rev. Abraham Burnham, D. D., pastor of the Congregational Church at Pembroke, N. H., for more than 40 years, — and who survived his death. She was b. Feb. 21, 1813, and d. April 14, 1882. Nathaniel G. Upham was graduated at Dartmouth College, 1820, and immediately began the study of law in the office of Hon. David Barker, Jr., of Rochester, N. H. Having completed his studies, he was admitted to the bar, and began the practice of his profession in Bristol, N. H., remaining there until 1829, when he removed to Concord. He continued in the practice of law at Concord until 1833, when he was appointed one of the associate justices of the Superior Court of New Hampshire, at the age of 32. He continued in the latter position for 10 years, until 1843, when he resigned his seat on the bench, and became superintendent of the Concord railroad; and of which road he was later made president. It has been said that the success of this railroad may be justly ascribed in no small degree to his wisdom and energy. He held the office till 1866, when his connection with the road ceased. In July, 1853, while still connected with the Concord railroad, Judge Upham was appointed as one of a commission to act upon various claims which had from time to time, for nearly forty years, been made by the citizens of the United States upon the government of Great Britain, and by the subjects of Great Britain upon the government of the United States. These difficulties had for some time been the cause of unpleasant feelings between the two countries. One commissioner was to be appointed by each government, and the two were to name a third person to act as umpire in cases where the commissioners might differ in opinion. Judge Upham was appointed on the part of the United States, and Henry Hornby, Esq., on the part of Great Britain. Their decision was to be regarded as final, and in accordance with it, all the claims between the two countries were to be adjusted.

A writer in a leading journal, in speaking of the selection of Judge Upham for this duty, at the time said: "The numerous friends of Judge Upham will be gratified with the high mark of distinction conferred upon him. The office to which he is appointed is one of scarcely less importance than that of a minister to a first-class power. Its duties require talent of no ordinary character for their correct and proper discharge. Judge Upham possesses all the requisites for an efficient discharge of the duties which this appointment devolves upon him, and will faithfully represent the interests of his countrymen in all the conflicting claims which may come up between the two governments, and their citizens and subjects. In addition to practical good sense and correct business habits, he is a sound lawyer and a scholar of superior endowments."

The commission met in London, in September, 1853. Within the allotted time they had acted on all the claims that were presented, amounting in the aggregate to many millions of dollars, and pronounced upon each a deliberate and final judgment. In accordance with the decisions thus rendered, the claims were paid by the respective governments, and the irritation which had been growing satisfactorily settled.

Mr. Buchanan, then minister to England, in a letter to the secretary of state, at the close of the commission, said: "It would scarcely be possible for any individuals to have discharged those duties in a more satisfactory manner. The business of the commission was conducted by Judge Upham and Gen. Thomas, in their several spheres of action, with much ability as well as indefatigable industry and perseverance; and the result of their labors has proved to be quite as favorable to our country as could have been reasonably anticipated. The action of this commission will be a great relief to the two governments. All the claims of the citizens and subjects of each on the government of the other, which have been accumulating since the date of the treaty of Ghent, Dec. 24, 1814, and had given rise to so much diplomatic correspondence, have happily now been decided, and can no longer become subjects of discussion."

The success of this commission probably led to the selection of Judge Upham for another service of a similar nature. In 1862, in a commission appointed by the United States and New Grenada for the settlement of claims between the two countries, he was chosen as umpire. At the time of his death his name was prominent for the office of arbiter in a mixed commission between the United States and Mexico. He was a strong advocate of friendly arbitration as a means of settling international difficulties, and thought that much could be accomplished in this way to avoid the evils of war.

In politics Judge Upham belonged to the school of Jefferson; but he was never active as a politician, and in but a few instances did he hold any political office in the State. He was a member of the convention called in 1850, to amend the Constitution of New Hampshire. In 1865 and 1866 he was a member of the State Legislature, in which he was a strong advocate for the proposed amendments of the national Constitution.

When the War of the Rebellion came he at once took an open and decided stand on the side of the government, and for the Union. His addresses delivered on public occasions, his letters and essays published in leading newspapers and in pamphlet form, and distributed through the country, were said to have exerted a great influence in the cause of the Union. His address on "Rebellion, Slavery and Peace," delivered in Concord, was afterward published by the Loyal League Publishing Society, in New York, and had a wide circulation in all the loyal States. He expressed his opinion in regard to the continued existence of slavery in the following words: "There can be no reasonable assurance of a permanent peace while slavery exists." He held that, "if any one should doubt whether slavery was necessarily the death of the Union, still if he believed its existence would seriously endanger and imperil it, that danger should insure its overthrow."

During the war he addressed a letter to Hon. Gilman Marston, then in Congress from New Hampshire, entitled "The Present Crisis," in which he discussed the principles involved in the controversy between the North and the South. This was received with great favor by all friends of the Union, and was published in full in many of the leading loyal papers.

Judge Upham was one of the original members of the Concord Society of Natural History. He became a member of the New Hampshire Historical Society in 1833, and continued his membership until his death, being three years president of the society. In 1862, Dartmouth College conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. In 1837 he became a member of the Congregational church, and continued his church membership through life. He was especially interested for many years in the efforts which were made toward African colonization, and at the time of his death was president of the New Hampshire Colonization Society.

He died at Concord, Saturday, December 11, 1869, æ. 68. His memoir, from which the foregoing has been mainly taken, was written by Prof. Daniel J. Noyes, D. D., of Dartmouth College, and read at the annual meeting of the New Hampshire Historical Society, June 14, 1871. It was afterward published in a volume of fifty-eight pages, giving a full and complete account of his life, his work and his character.

IV Mary White, b. April 19, 1843; d. Sept. 10, 1844.

288. Joseph Badger^s Upham (Nathaniel⁷, Timothy⁶, Timothy⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Portsmouth, N. H., b. Dec. 11, 1808, in Rochester, N. H.; m. May 8, 1833, at Dover, N. H., Sarah Chase Currier, dau. of Jacob Morell Currier. He d. at Portsmouth, Tuesday, March 12, 1889. His wife survived his death.

He went from Rochester to Portsmouth when a young man, and engaged in the wholesale grocery business with his uncle, Col. Timothy Upham. At the conclusion of their partnership he took an extended tour through the West, but returned to Portsmouth, where he again engaged in the same business, continuing in it many years. He was appointed collector of the port of Portsmouth, by President Lincoln, April 17, 1861, which position he continued to fill until July 23, 1870; and after that time was not engaged in any active business pursuit.

One who knew him well, in writing of him after his death, said: "His health and strength gradually failed as he approached his eightieth year, and on the 12th of March, 1889, he passed away, having been confined to his bed but a few days. He was a man of great kindness of heart and gentleness of manner. He was a devoted husband and father, an upright and consistent Christian gentleman, and a public-spirited citizen, ready at all times to do what he could for the benefit of the community in which he lived. He was honored and beloved by all who knew him, and most by those who knew him best." They had:

- I Sarah Amanda, b. Sept. 12, 1834, at Portsmouth; d. there, April 9, 1839.
- II Joseph Badger, b. at Portsmouth, Dec. 25, 1840. He received his preparatory education at Phillips Academy, and was graduated at Bowdoin College, in 1861. After a brief period spent in the study of law, he entered the U. S. navy as third asst. engineer, Nov. 17, 1862. He was first placed on duty at St. Louis, Mo., as an assistant to Chief. Eng. Shock, having charge of the work being done there by Mr. Eads; next in connection with a monitor building at the Portsmouth navy yard. In 1864 he joined the "Chicopee," at New York, proceeding thence to Albemarle sound, where the vessel was employed on the "inside blockade" during the remainder of the war, taking part in the first attack on Plymouth, after the sinking of the ram "Albemarle," and other duty in connection with the blockade. After the war he made a cruise on the "Ticonderoga," on the European station, returning to the United States on the frigate "Franklin." After some shore duty, he made a cruise in the double-turreted monitor "Miantonomah, which was followed by a tour of duty as an instructor in steam engineering at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. He then went to China on the flag-ship "Hartford," remaining on that station about one year and a half, when he was sent home on sick leave. In 1875 he was placed on the retired list of the navy on account of heart disease, having at that time the rank of passed assistant engineer. He never recovered his health, and died of heart disease and consolidation of the lungs, at Portsmouth, Aug. 13, 1889. He was a man singularly unpretentious in character, but with a mind well stored with useful knowledge, particularly on scientific matters, the subject of chemistry being one on which he was especially well versed. He was given to scientific speculation, and modestly expressed many clear and original thoughts on such subjects that would have added interest to the leading publications of the day. He was a member of the DeWitt Clinton Commandery, K. T., and of the Order of Cincinnati.

The Portsmouth Times of Aug. 14, 1889, published the following obituary notice on the day after his death:

JOSEPH B. UPHAM DEAD.

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF A WELL-KNOWN CITIZEN.

It has pleased Divine Providence to again enter the home of one of our most esteemed families and remove therefrom a well-beloved son and friend, one who during his life residence in Portsmouth has endeared himself to us by his many good qualities of mind and of heart.

In the demise of Passed Assistant Engineer Joseph B. Upham, U. S. N. (retired), which took place on Tuesday evening at 10 o'clock at his late residence on Middle street, companions and friends are called to drop tears sacred to hallowed memories of the departed. Modest and unassuming as he was in demeanor, he was yet resolute in the right; a man of broad character, generous impulse and warm heart, frank and affable in speech, and genial and sunny in temperament; indeed, those most intimately acquainted found a filial and trusting heart and an ever obedient and consecrated life, one singularly gifted with elements that are good in human kind. Yea, it can be truly said of him that he had not a single enemy in the world.

Mr. Upham entered the United States naval service from New Hampshire as third assistant engineer on Nov. 17, 1862; was promoted to second assistant engineer on March 15, 1864; became first assistant engineer on Jan. 1, 1868, and passed assistant engineer on Feb. 24, 1874. Soon after one of his late promotions, Mr. Upham was stricken with heart trouble which developed so rapidly that he was ordered before a medical examining board, the result of which placed him on the retired list as a passed assistant engineer from Dec. 27, 1875, after a total sea service of seven years and five months. His enforced retirement was a source of keen regret to him, and many a time and oft the writer has heard him lament the physical necessity which compelled his release from active official duties.

He was a conspicuous member of the Masonic fraternity and of De Witt Clinton Commandery, Knights Templar, of this city, in which noble branch he was profoundly interested and wherein he had held several official positions.

The sufferings of Passed Assistant Engineer Upham during the past few months were at times intense, yet he bore them with unusual fortitude and with meek and humble submission to the higher power. He gave to God a filial and trusting heart, and referred to death without fear.

The heavily bereaved and universally esteemed mother, who within a few brief months has been called to part with her husband, and now her son, has the most gracious sympathy of this community in her desolation. 'Tis some consolation in the darkest hour to have faith to believe that "All's well with them;" that

"Themselves will fade,
But not their memory.
And memory has power
To re-create them from the dust."

"Laurens Upham died at his residence, corner River and Lincoln streets, Brookfield, Tuesday night, at 12 o'clock, of pneumonia, at the age of 73. Mr. Upham was born in Brookfield, and was descended from an ancient family, who for four generations preceding him had lived in this town, and the old homestead in Portapaug still belongs to his estate. Receiving an education at Leicester Academy, he early in life chose the calling of a school teacher, and followed it successfully in the towns of Leicester, Spencer, Paxton, Brimfield, and in Barnstable county, until a partial loss of hearing compelled him to forego his honorable pursuit. A man of firm principle, strictly temperate in his life, believing in his fellow men, 'he spoke no word of slander; no, nor listened to it.' Careful of this world's goods, he acquired a competency, and has left a name that commands the respect of the community in which he lived. The Spy was a weekly visitor to his household, and has been to his family since its early publication. He was married in 1847 to Miss Catherine Prouty of Brimfield, who survives him. He also leaves a brother, Nathan Upham, the well-known school teacher, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and four children: Henry, who lives in Mayfield, Cal.; Mrs. M. L. Miner, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Nathan, of Waterbury, Conn., and George, who at present is living at home. The funeral will be held at the family residence, Saturday, at 2 o'clock, p. m."

He, with his uncle, Phineas Upham, for a while and subsequently, was associated with the late George Searle, of Boston, in the agency of the Nashua and other manufacturing companies. In 1842 the firm became Upham, Tucker & Co., and afterward Upham, Appleton & Co. He retired from business Dec. 30, 1870. An obituary notice in a Boston paper said of him: "He was successful in whatever he undertook, except in 1836, when his firm failed to meet their engagements. Though at once released by their creditors, Mr. Upham labored for twenty-five years after that to make good his share of the deficiency, and he succeeded. He was a man of considerable talent, and of agreeable manners." He visited Europe in 1852, and again in 1865. He purchased his place in Brookline from Hon. William Appleton, in 1860. He was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, in Boston, and afterward of St. Paul's Church in Brookline. He d. April 25, 1875. His remains were buried at Mount Auburn Cemetery, tomb 578.

III Fannie.

302. George Phineas⁸ Upham (Phineas⁷, Phineas⁶, Jabez⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Boston, Mass., b. there, Jan. 1, 1826; m. Oct. 15, 1856, Sarah, the dau. of Hon. Peleg Sprague; she was b. in Hallowell, Me., and was living in 1889. Her father was b. in Duxbury, Mass., and practiced law in Hallowell in earlier life; he was representative in Congress from Maine, and afterward he was U. S. senator from that State. Later he was appointed judge of the United States District Court, and resided in Boston. His wife was Sarah Deming.

George P. Upham was graduated at Harvard College in the class of 1845, and at once entered the counting-room of the firm of Upham, Appleton & Co., Boston, commission merchants, and agents for the management and sale of the goods of several large cotton manufacturing establishments located at Nashua, N. H., Lowell and Lancaster, Mass., and other parts of New England. The partners in the firm were Mr. Henry Upham (cousin of George P. Upham, and who appears elsewhere in this book), Mr. Robert Appleton, and Mr. William W. Tucker. About one year later Mr. George P. Upham became also a partner in the firm. Upon the death of Mr. Appleton, in 1851, the firm name was changed to that of Upham, Tucker & Co. Mr. George P. Upham ceased to be a partner in this firm in 1856, withdrawing for the purpose of devoting himself entirely to the management of the extensive financial interests of his father, then quite an old man. After retiring from the firm, Mr. Upham retained a desk in the counting-room, and continued to retain the same in 1889. He has never held any political, municipal, or State office, but has filled his share of directorships, trusteeships, executorships, etc., and has always been recognized as one of the prominent business men of Boston. His residence is on Beacon street.

After the death of Mr. Henry Upham in 1875, and that of Mr. William W. Tucker in 1885, the name of the above firm was again changed to that of Dana, Tucker & Co., the present Mr. Tucker being the son of the late William W. Tucker. At the formation of the new firm in May, 1886, Mr. George P. Upham, Jr., whose name appears below, also became a member of the firm. This house is one of the few that has passed successfully through the various commercial crises of the past forty years. George P. Upham and wife Sarah had:

- I George Phineas, Jr., b. Nov. 29, 1859, in Boston. He was graduated at Harvard University, in the class of 1881, and in 1886 became a member of the firm of Dana, Tucker & Co., Boston. He d., unm., Sunday, Sept. 6, 1891, after an illness of several years. His funeral took place on Thursday, Sept. 10, at Emanuel Church, Boston, the remains being taken to Mount Auburn for interment. The following obituary notice was published in the Boston Daily Advertiser:

"The death of this promising young man is not only a grief to his friends but also a matter of regret for the community in which he lived. He was of the best type of the young men who, born in independent circumstances, without the necessity of exertion, choose to take their share of the burdens of the world and to qualify themselves to worthily carry forward those labors which the present generation must soon relinquish. He did not allow himself to be tempted to idleness, but was a faithful student when in college and afterward a seeker of employment. He finally received an important business position, and while every thing looked bright before him, with an opportunity to show his abilities and high qualities, he was attacked by a fatal disease. He was especially high-minded and refined, and endeared by his amiable disposition to all who knew him. He was faithful, loyal, conscientious and sincere. Such a character can ill be spared, and it will long be followed by affectionate remembrance and esteem."

- II Charlotte, b. March 6, 1864, in Boston; m. Nov. 17, 1888, at Emanuel Church, Boston, Walter Cabot Baylies, of Taunton, Mass. He was graduated at Harvard College, 1884, and at once entered the office of the freight department of the Erie R. R. in New York. In the spring of 1889 he was appointed assistant general freight agent of that corporation.

NOTE.—Mr. George P. Upham says that his father and his grandfather were accustomed to write their names "Phinehas."

303. Edward⁸ Upham (John Murray⁷, Joshua⁶, Jabez⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Loborough, County Frontenac, Canada, b. July 5, 1820, in County Lennox, Ontario, Canada; m. Sept. 3, 1847, at Watertown, N. Y., Phebe McGuinness, b. in Jefferson Co., N. Y., Sept. 6, 1829. He was a magistrate, and in 1879 had a hotel in Loborough. They had:

317. Frederick^s Upham (Samuel S.⁷, Amos⁶, Amos⁵, Phineas⁴, Phineas³, Phineas², John¹), of Fairhaven, Mass., b. Oct. 4, 1799, in that part of Malden which has since become Melrose, Mass.; m. Deborah Bourne, b. Oct. 24, 1797, a lineal descendant of the Rev. Richard Bourne, of Sandwich, Mass., one of the most celebrated of the Puritan clergy. Frederick Upham left his native town at the age of 20, became a Methodist clergyman and D. D., all his ministry being in New England. On his 89th birthday, Oct. 4, 1888, he preached a sermon, having been at that time 68 years in the ministry. He led a very active life, and at one time declined what was probably an opportunity of entering Congress, for the reason that he considered politics inconsistent with his profession as a minister. Besides preaching at Fairhaven for many years, he had also preached at Dorchester, Providence, and other places.

The Boston Journal of Oct. 5, 1889, contained the following notice of Dr. Upham:

“REV. DR. FREDERICK UPHAM,

THE NESTOR OF THE M. E. CHURCH, CELEBRATES HIS NINETIETH BIRTHDAY.

“The nestor of the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist denomination, the Rev. Dr. Frederick Upham, of Fairhaven, celebrated his 90th birthday yesterday, after a service of nearly 70 years in the ministry, 63 consecutive years having been in effective relations with this conference. The venerable clergyman received his first appointment in 1821, which was to the pastorate of Scituate. Subsequently he served successively in Sandwich, Martha's Vineyard, Falmouth, New Bedford, Newport and almost all the stations in the Southern New England Conference. Dr. Upham is a native of Melrose, Mass. For 11 years, from 1837 to 1847, he was presiding elder. He has been a member of four General Conferences—1832, 1840, 1844, 1872—and was honored with the degree of D. D. in 1855 by what is now De Pauw University. At the General Conference of 1832, which was held in Philadelphia, he met Bishop McKendree, who was elected to the Episcopate in 1808, and was the second bishop after Asbury. So far as can be learned there is now but one other living member of that General Conference. He was granted superannuated relations in 1883, because of impaired health. His general health now, however, is very good, and his mind bright and active. He is the father of Prof. Samuel F. Upham of the Drew Theological Seminary at Madison, N. J. The venerable clergyman has not wholly relinquished ministerial duties, and frequently displays his old-time vigor in prayer and preaching. Yesterday he received the felicitations of numerous friends at his Fairhaven home."

He d. March 20, 1891, as shown by the following obituary notice :

"THE REV. FREDERICK UPHAM.

BOSTON, March 20 (Special).—The Rev. Frederick Upham, probably the oldest Methodist clergyman in America, died at his home in Fairhaven this morning. He was born in Melrose, Mass., on Oct. 4, 1799. At the age of 21 he began to preach in the Scituate Circuit as junior preacher. That circuit included all the towns from Plymouth to Dorchester, and he traveled over it once each month. He was stationed in New Bedford in 1825, 1853, 1854, 1871 and 1872. He was also stationed at different times at Sandwich, Bristol, Provincetown, Fall River, Newport, Providence, Taunton and Fairhaven. From 1837 to 1847 he was presiding elder. He was a member of the General Conferences held in 1832, 1840, 1844 and 1872. In 1865 he received the degree of D. D. from the institution now called De Pauw University. He retired from active work in 1883 because of physical infirmity. He leaves a son—the Rev. Dr. S. F. Upham, professor of practical theology in Drew Theological Seminary—and two grandsons—the Rev. Frederick Upham, Jr., of the New England Conference, and the Rev. Frank Upham, of the New York East Conference. The public funeral services will be held at the Methodist Church, Fairhaven, on Monday, March 23, at 1 o'clock. Among the prominent clergymen expected to be present are the Rev. Dr. S. M. Buckley, of New York; the Rev. Dr. Ela, of Boston; the Rev. Walter Ela, presiding elder of the New Bedford district, and the Rev. Dr. Talbot, of Providence."

Norris, formerly of Monmouth, Me. (Henry A. Norris died at the residence of his son-in-law, at the age of 85, and had lived in Melrose about forty years. He was for many years one of its most influential citizens, and aided greatly in its development, at one time owning a great deal of real estate; a section of the town at the Highlands is called Norrisville, on account of the many improvements he made there. He was always prominent in public matters and held several offices at Melrose. He was interested in the enlistment of the soldiers from Melrose for the war of the Rebellion, and served on the citizens' committee for that purpose. He was one of the earliest members of the Wyoming Lodge, F. and A. M., and also a member of the Waverly Royal Arch Chapter. At his death, besides Mrs. Upham, he left four married daughters. Orne Upham is living in the "old Upham house," which was the home of the third Phineas, and has continued in this particular branch of the family until the present day. Allen Sawyer, b. Nov. 8, 1824, in Schoharie, N. Y. His father died when he was 7 years old, and at the age of 10 he went to Watertown to live with his aunt Rebecca, the wife of Job Sawyer; lived on the farm until 18 years old, after which was clerk in a store 5 years. From 1843 to 1854 was partner in a mercantile house. In 1856 was elected cashier of a bank at Watertown, since the Third National Bank, in which position he continued until his death. Samuel Baker Upham died at Watertown, May 10, 1892. The following obituary notice was published in the Watertown Times of May 11:

“DEATH OF S. B. UPHAM.

“Between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock last night, at the family residence, No. 23 Clinton street, Samuel B. Upham, the much-respected citizen and well-known banker, passed quietly away at the age of 72 years. He had been in poor health for a long time, and since October last has been afflicted with illness that gradually grew worse until the end. Death has not been unexpected for several weeks past. Its cause was kidney trouble.

“Samuel B. Upham was a native of New England, but a resident for much the greater part of his life in this county. He was born at Templeton, Mass., Sept. 28, 1819, his father being John Upham, of Templeton. His mother's maiden name was Susan Baker. His father died when he had attained his eighth year, and in 1828, a year later, he came to Watertown Center to reside with his uncle, Job Sawyer, a farmer. There he lived until his eighteenth year, when he removed to Rodman and accepted a position as clerk in the general store of Moffatt & Hanford, which he held until he came to Watertown. In 1844 he left Rodman and engaged in the dry goods business with Mr. O. C. Utley, in the store now occupied by F. R. Lamon, this city, and he remained there until 1854, when failing health obliged him to retire. In 1857 he was appointed cashier of the National Union Bank, which place of trust he held at the time of his death.

“The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian church many years. He was at one time a director of the C., W. & S. H. R. R. Co., and at the time of his death he occupied the position of vice-president of the Jefferson County Savings Bank, of which institution for many years he has been a trustee. Though a strong believer in the principles of the Republican party, Mr. Upham never accepted nor sought public office. He was an able financier, a trustworthy, confidence-inspiring cashier, and his death is a loss to the community and to the banking institution with which he was connected, as well as a grievous affliction and a loss which nothing can replace to a devoted wife and family.

"Mr. Upham, in June, 1847, married Miss Mary Allen Lawyer, of Schoharie. From the union there were seven children, all but one of whom survive him. They are: Addison L., Charles O. and Samuel A. Upham, Mrs. John Sterling, and Misses Annie R. and Lizzie A. Upham, all of this city.

"The funeral will occur Friday, at 4 P. M., from the family residence. The interment will take place at Brookside."

361. William Keyes⁸ Upham (William⁷, Samuel⁶, Samuel⁵, Samuel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹) of Canton, O., b. April 3, 1817, in Montpelier, Vt.; m. Marie Elizabeth Weeks, of Hardwick, Vt., June, 1844, who survived his death and was living in Canton, 1889. He d. at Canfield, O., March 22, 1865, æ. 48.

William K. Upham received his education at the University of Vermont, Burlington. Among his classmates were Luke P. Poland, Mat. Carpenter, Stephen A. Douglas and Thaddeus Stevens, all of whom were Vermonters and studied law in Montpelier, and were his particular friends until his death. He studied law in the office of his father, at Montpelier, at which place he was admitted to the bar soon after reaching his majority, and practiced his profession in Vermont several years. In April, 1845, he moved to New Lisbon, O., where he remained until 1858. In the latter year he removed to Canton, O., where he gained a large and lucrative practice, ultimately rising to the head of his profession in that state. It is said there are many men now living (1889) who were indebted to his influence with Mr. Lincoln's cabinet (nearly all of whom were his personal friends) for their promotion and the position in life which they have since attained. Those who knew him said he inherited in a large degree the talents and genius of his father, was well versed in the law and an eloquent advocate, and that he was at all times kind and considerate in his dealings with the younger members of his profession. He died at Canfield, Mahoning Co., O., while attending court at that place. At the time of his death the Steubenville (O.) Herald of April 4, 1865, made the following mention of him:

"William K. Upham, Esq., was a native of Vermont and a son of the late United States Senator Upham of that state. He was a gentleman of fine family, education and presence, and as an attorney stood at the head of his profession in this state, ranking with Chase, Stanton, Corwin, Vinton, John A. Bingham and others. He had his faults, but with many noble traits; he was social, magnanimous, and generous to a fault. As a man of talents he claimed our special admiration."

The members of the Stark County (O.) Bar erected a monument to his memory over nine feet high, of finely wrought and finished Italian marble, as a mark of respect from the lawyers of Stark Co. to one who was once a leading light in their profession. On the base, in large letters, is simply the name:

UPHAM.

The face of the spire, near the base, bears the following inscription:

"WILLIAM K. UPHAM.

Born at Montpelier, Vermont, April 3d, 1817.

Died at Canfield, Ohio, March 22d, 1865.

Erected by the Members of the Stark County Bar."

Both William K. Upham and his father were six feet in height. William K. Upham and wife Marie Elizabeth had:

I Sarah M., b. 1845; m. Wallace H. Ballou. She d. at Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 26, 1882, leaving children, Ida M. and George Langdon.

- II Mattie Peck, b. 1848; m. at Canton, George Rex. She d. at Canton, Feb. 3, 1888, leaving a son, Harry Richard Rex, who was in 1889 a student at the law school of the Cincinnati (O.) College.
- III William Keys, b. Oct. 27, 1851. Living at Cleveland, O., 1889, a salesman, not married.
- IV Charles Carrol, b. Aug. 1, 1854, in New Lisbon, O. He was educated at Montpelier, and in 1889 was living at Canton, engaged in the practice of law; unmarried.
- V Mary Annette, b. Feb. 28, 1859; m. at Canton, B. L. Meredith, of Van Wert, O. Living at Van Wert, 1889. They had Katie Marie, b. Aug. 19, 1881.

362. Samuel Curtis^s Upham (Samuel¹, Samuel⁶, Samuel⁵, Samuel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Philadelphia, Pa., b. Feb. 2, 1819, in Montpelier, Vt.; m. Dec., 1846, in Philadelphia, Anne E. Bancroft. He d. June 29, 1885, of cancer of the stomach.

He left Vermont at the age of 20, in 1839, and went to the city of New York, where he was employed as a clerk; was also so employed in Richmond, Va., and other cities in the South, but soon returned North. In 1842 entered the U. S. Navy at Norfolk, Va., and was made purser's clerk; the year following being transferred to the U. S. brig Truxton, which sailed for Constantinople, and returned to New York in Jan., 1844, with the remains of Com. David Porter; was then assigned to the steamer Princeton (Com. Stockton), with the rank of master's mate, and was on board of that ship at the memorable explosion of the gun "Peacemaker." Transferred to the sloop-of-war Falmouth, and after cruising in the Gulf of Mexico until the next year, was discharged from the navy at Pensacola, Fla., and returned to Vermont.

In the spring of 1846 went to Philadelphia, and was employed as a book-keeper in the lumber business, remaining there until 1849, during which time was married.

On the 16th of Jan., 1849, sailed for California in the brig Osceola from Philadelphia; went around Cape Horn, touching at Rio de Janeiro and Talcahuana, and arrived in San Francisco Aug. 5, 1849.

Was for a time engaged in mining on the Calaveras river, but soon returned to San Francisco and obtained employment as book-keeper with the Pacific News, a newspaper just being started, at a salary of $100 per week. In the spring of 1850 he associated himself with five practical printers, and in Sacramento started the Sacramento Transcript, the first daily paper published in California outside of San Francisco. In the fall of 1850 he sold his interest in the Sacramento Transcript for $10,000 and returned to Philadelphia.

In February, 1851, he started the Philadelphia Sunday Mercury, which paper he continued to publish three years; and was then in the stationery and news business in Philadelphia until 1863, after which engaged in the perfumery and proprietary medicine business at 25 South Eighth street, in which he continued during the remainder of his life, though his later years were mostly passed in Florida, where he had pecuniary interests, and in the development of which country he was greatly interested personally.

He took great interest in all matters pertaining to the early days in California, and in 1878 published a bound volume entitled "Notes of a Voyage to California via Cape Horn, together with Scenes in El Dorado in 1849 and 1850," which was highly appreciated by the older Californians as a truthful and creditable history of the times of which he wrote. He was delegated by the "Society of California Pioneers" at San Francisco to represent that society at the dedication of the Lick Monument at Fredericksburg, Pa., on the 22d of April, 1878, which duty he performed in a highly creditable and satisfactory manner, his address on that occasion being published in full in the California papers, and being the subject of much favorable comment there and elsewhere by the press. He was one of the vice-presidents of the "Associated Pioneers of the Territorial Days of California," the members composing which society being residents of the Eastern States — "returned Californians." Expressly for the meetings of this society he wrote a poem and three songs dedicated to the pioneers of California, all of which were published; one of these, the "Song of the Argonauts," was especially remarkable, and "The Land We Adore" was replete with graphic reminiscences, though not without a vein of pathos in its vivid portrayals and "fond recollections of long-ago times." He also wrote an article on "Pioneer Journalism in California," which attracted the general attention of the press. For the centennial year at Philadelphia he composed the following:

1776 — CENTENNIAL ODE — 1876.

BY SAMUEL C. UPHAM.

One hundred years have rolled around
Since Freedom's natal morn,
Conceived in blood, in battle's strife,
Columbia then was born;

Her outstretched arms with vigor now
 From sea to sea extend,
 A hundred years have passed away,
 And peace and plenty blend.

Chorus.—America, it is to thee,
 Land of the brave and free,
 We strike the lyre, and consecrate
 Our glorious Jubilee!

On history's page their names are writ,
 Those fearless men and true,
 Whose battle-cry was "Liberty!"
 Their flag red, white and blue.
 Their glorious records handed down
 From father unto son,
 A sacred cherished heritage
 Of battles fought and won.

Chorus.—America, it is to thee, etc.

We greeting to all nations send,
 To India's sunny land,
 To Russia's mountains clad in ice,
 To Afric's golden strand.
 The Teuton from his vine-clad hills,
 The Saxon and the Gaul,
 The royal Queen of England's throne,
 All answer to the call.

Chorus.—America, it is to thee, etc.

PHILADELPHIA, February 11, 1875.

He was an unusual man, of remarkable energy, many resources, and strongly-individualized character, as evidenced by the events and incidents of his life. He was much interested in the preparation of this genealogy, and furnished most of the information here recorded pertaining to the Montpelier Uphams; but (like several others who have manifested a like interest and have passed away during its preparation), he did not live to witness its publication. As already shown, he died in his 67th year.

366. Calvin Hoadley⁸ Upham (Alvin⁷, Jonathan⁶, Jonathan⁵, Samuel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Ripon, Wis., b. Feb. 18, 1828, at Westminster, Mass.; m. at Westminster, Oct. 28, 1851, Amanda E. Gibbs, who was living at Ripon, 1892. He was an officer in the war of the Rebellion, and served as captain and commissary of subsistence in the Department of the Gulf, where he rendered very able and efficient service. His commission was signed by President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton, a fact which he regarded with considerable pride. He was for many years a prominent citizen of Ripon, at which place he died, February 27, 1892. At his death the following obituary notice was published in the Ripon Free Press, of March 3, 1892:

“OBITUARY.

“After a brief sickness, the result of apoplexy, Mr. C. H. Upham died on last Saturday morning, and was buried from his residence in Ripon on Monday morning, the service being conducted by the Rev. E. H. Merrell, of the College. His brothers from Shawano and Marshfield, with their wives, his son Fred and wife, from Marshfield, a sister and her husband and a large number of neighbors and friends were at the funeral.

“Mr. Upham was born at Westminster, Mass., on Feb. 18, 1828. He was educated in the common school of his neighborhood and at Westminster Academy. At the age of 20 he came to Niles, Mich., but returned to Westminster in 1851, where he married. In 1853 he came to Racine, Wis., and from this place his neighbors sent him to the State legislature in 1861. In 1862 he joined the army and remained in the service till the close of the war. He held the important post of chief of commissary for the department of Louisiana, which lies west of the Mississippi, during the larger part of his service. In 1866 he went to Shawano, Wis., where he engaged in general merchandising with a brother, and was very prosperous. He removed to Ripon with his family in 1877, where he has since resided. He was postmaster of Ripon during Arthur's administration.

“Mr. Upham was a shrewd and exact business man, a sterling patriot, a kind neighbor, and a generous friend. He had a very wide acquaintance among public men, and was greatly respected by them.

“He was one of a family of nine, five boys and four girls. Two brothers and three sisters survive him. Of his own family, besides the widow, a son, Frederick Upham, Esq., of Marshfield, and a daughter, Mrs. Dr. Frank Everhard, survive. One daughter died in infancy.”

Calvin H. Upham and wife, Amanda E. Gibbs, had:

- I Frederick William, b. Jan. 29, 1861, at Racine, Wis.; m. Alice C. Judd (a descendant of the "Mayflower Brewsters"), at Ripon, Jan. 8, 1885. In 1891 he had been for some years living at Marshfield, Wis., where he was vice-president of the Upham Manufacturing Company, and a leading citizen. For a full account of the Upham Manufacturing Company, and farther references to F. W. Upham, see the record of William H. Upham, of Marshfield, No. 369.
- II Catherine Jeannette, b. Feb. 8, 1864, at Racine, Wis.; m. May 2, 1890, Dr. F. A. Everhard, of Ripon. They had: Frederick Upham Everhard, b. Sept. 20, 1891, at Ripon, Wis.

Chris M. Hoffman

at the first battle of Bull Run; was paroled, and in 1862 was appointed a cadet at the U. S. Military Academy, having been selected for that purpose by President Lincoln. He was graduated at West Point in the class of 1866; entered the regular army as second lieutenant, Fifth U. S. Artillery, June 18, 1866; transferred to the Fourth Artillery, Oct. 23, 1866; promoted first lieutenant, March 4, 1869; resigned Nov. 18, 1869. After resigning from the army he engaged in business in Wisconsin, and in 1891 was living in Marshfield.

The Milwaukee Telegraph of June 10, 1888, published an account of Marshfield, as "One of Wisconsin's Most Remarkable Cities," which account included various references to The Upham Manufacturing Company, and its president, William H. Upham. The following is an extract from the paper in question :

"The city of Marshfield, whose almost magic growth from a dense wilderness to the business, financial and social proportions of one of the finest cities of the state and North-west, has become known to all enlightened readers, furnishes an excellent illustration of the results that can be accomplished by a brainy, enterprising and public-spirited class of citizens and business men, all united in the common purpose of erecting and maintaining a busy, live and thriving city. It is a true saying that it is the citizens that make a city, and this maxim has never been exemplified in a more striking degree than by the accomplished results of the energy of the citizens of this most remarkable of the Northern Wisconsin cities.

"Marshfield is situated on the main line of the Wisconsin Central railroad, 192 miles north-west of Milwaukee, 33 from Stevens Point and 40 from Wausau. It is located in the midst of one of the richest agricultural regions of the West, and is bounded on the west by the Yellow and on the east by the Eau Pleine rivers. The timber is mainly hardwood, with heavy pine forests on the lower lands. Nowhere in the West is there a city more favored by natural advantages and climate, and with such varied and diversified resources to welcome the manufacturer, the business or the professional man, the farmer or the laborer. The town was platted and organized as a village in 1879, and incorporated as a city in 1883, and is now subdivided into four wards. The municipal government is conducted by a mayor and board of aldermen, and the city has no bonded debt.

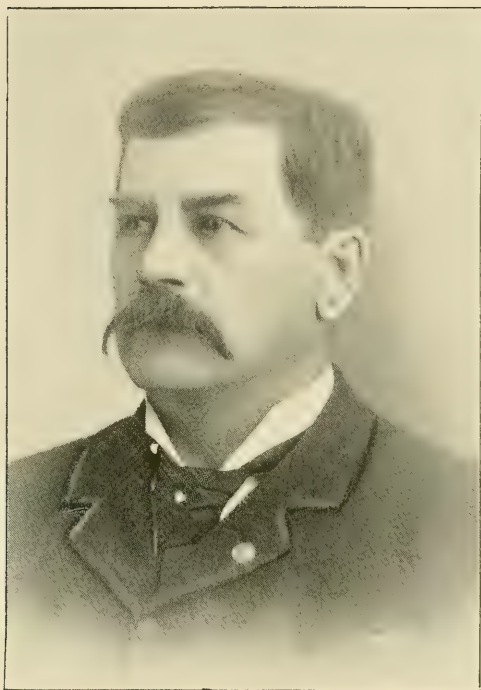

"The first impetus toward building a city was in 1879, when Colonel W. H. Upham, then of Shawano, came to this section, then a dense wilderness, and built a small saw and shingle-mill, and it is to the indomitable will, enterprise and public spirit of this remarkable man the town owes its development and present standing as a great manufacturing center, and to him justly belongs the title of being the father and founder of the city. Colonel Upham is a gentleman in the prime of life, tireless and devoted to his large business, which he personally supervises; is a man of rare education and ability, having been educated and graduated at West Point, served in the Civil war and in the regular army, and is admired by all for his untiring energy and integrity.

"After the mill started business, business men and settlers flocked to this region, and the population increased rapidly from 718 in 1880 to 2,092 in 1885, while the census of January, 1888, taken by the city, showed the number to be 3,009. Unlike many western towns, Marshfield has never experienced a 'boom,' nor the attendant financial disaster following an inflation of values and property. The growth has been strong and steady and there can be no backward progress, for though the leading business at present is manufacturing, the city is backed by one of the finest farming countries in the world, already well developed.

"Prior to June 27, 1887, the entire business and residence portion of the town was built of wood and highly combustible. On the day last named, one that will be forever recollected by all citizens of Marshfield, a fire started in the large lumber yard of The Upham Manufacturing Company, and by 9 o'clock of the same day the entire business plant of the company, a large number of residences and the entire business portion of the town, excepting one small store, was in ashes. Hundreds of men, women and children were homeless and in dire need of the plainest necessities of life. Much doubt existed in the minds of all whether the manufacturing industries and the city would be rebuilt, and then it was that the mettle of the business men was fully tested. Considerable doubt was expressed as to whether The Upham Manufacturing Company would rebuild its various mills or not, but on the 28th of June Colonel Upham ran up the American flag, and announced his determination to rebuild, when all doubts were dispelled as to the future of the city. Then began such a building boom as has never before been equaled in the history of Wisconsin, and as a result, sixty-two solid brick business blocks were erected and being occupied prior to Jan. 1, 1888, besides the various mills and numerous residences. All are of modern designs, and will rank among the finest in the state.

W. H. Upham

OF MARSHFIELD, WIS.

"While considering the interests and advantages of this western city, it is but proper to make more than a passing mention of the real nucleus of its solidity — its manufacturing interests. Foremost among these is The Upham Manufacturing Company, whose business plant stands second to none in the state or in the West, both in its magnitude and in the diversity of its manufactures. The officers of this company are: W. H. Upham, president; Fred. W. Upham, vice-president; Charles M. Upham, managing director at Shawano; Merrill H. Wheeler, secretary, and Frank R. Upham, treasurer. The company owns and operates a large saw and shingle-mill, running two of the noted 'band saws;' a planing-mill, a furniture factory, veneering works, machine shops, and one of the most extensive roller flouring-mills in the North-west. About 800 men are employed the year round, who are paid weekly. To illustrate the quality of the manufactured products, it is but necessary to remark that the flour products of the Marshfield roller-mills and the manufactured furniture are mainly sold in the cities of San Francisco, Portland, Ore., Boston, New York and Chicago, while several orders have been filled for firms in Glasgow, London and other European cities. In addition the above company also operates one of the largest retail general stores in the West, employing a manager and a large force of clerks. The company also operates a logging train of cars and locomotive, used mainly in transporting logs to the different mills. No company stands higher in Wisconsin, and none is more highly esteemed by its employes.

"The Banner Roller-Mills also deserve more than a casual mention, from the fact alone that they are one of the largest flour and feed manufacturers in the West. These mills are owned and operated by The Upham Manufacturing Company, and have a capacity of 300 barrels per day. The main mill is five stories high, lighted by electric light and heated by steam, and cost originally upwards of $40,000."

It will be observed that in the organization of The Upham Manufacturing Company are included the names of several Uphams, all of whom may be duly identified with the particular families to which they belong.

A later paper, published in Milwaukee, Aug. 11, 1889, contained the following personal notice of William H. Upham:

"A REMARKABLE CAREER.

[Yenowine's News.]

"There are scores of people in Milwaukee who know W. H. Upham, the unpretentious, mild-eyed, easy-talking, ex-army officer, who founded Marshfield, Wis., ten years ago. He is a member of the Loyal Legion, a frequenter of the Milwaukee Club, a prominent G. A. R. man, a tower of strength in commercial circles, and a politician of acknowledged shrewdness. He has the distinction of being the first private volunteer soldier to be honored by an appointment to West Point, receiving his commission from the hands of President Lincoln. Major Upham is one of the few people who have lived to read their own obituaries. He participated in the first battle of Bull Run, was shot through the lungs and left on the battle field for dead. The news reached Racine, where he was then living, and his relatives and friends mourned him as one dead. The Racine papers printed long and eulogistic biographies, one of them erecting a cut-rule tombstone at the head of the notice, with two angels kneeling and weeping before it. Rev. Mr. Hutchins, of the First Baptist Church, Racine, preached a fervent funeral sermon, which was printed in full the next day and now occupies a conspicuous position in the major's scrap book. Seven months after this mournful event the young soldier turned up in Libby Prison, where he had been all the time, hovering between life and death for a long time after being hauled off the battle field. These and other events have made Major Upham's life a very remarkable one.

"About fifteen years ago he resigned his position in the army and penetrated the pine forests of Wisconsin to make his fortune. After operating at one or two places he decided to locate on the site of what is now the town of Marshfield, a bustling, enterprising little place on the line of the Wisconsin Central Railway, 192 miles north of Milwaukee. It was then an unbroken wilderness, with only one house. Major Upham erected a saw-mill and went to work. The forest has disappeared, a town of 4,000 inhabitants has sprung up, there are big mills and manufacturing plants, and one of the finest farming sections in the state has been opened to trade and commerce. When one stops to think that all this change has taken place in ten years, the results seem truly marvelous. And even more than this — the town has been built twice in this short time. Two years ago it was entirely destroyed by fire. The loss was very heavy and the blow was a terrible one. The plucky people decided at once to rebuild, and in consequence it is to-day one of the handsomest towns of its size in the country. There is a whole street of brand new brick stores and houses and the effect is very pleasing. The streets are lighted by electricity, the sidewalks are well paved, and for its size it is the best looking and most substantial town in Wisconsin. The leading industry of Marshfield is The Upham Manufacturing Company, of which Major Upham is the head and center. The plant includes one of the best equipped saw-mills in the state, with a capacity of 20,000,000 feet a year; a large furniture factory employing several hundred men, a finely equipped flour-mill, a planing-mill and a large general store. The Upham Manufacturing Company gives employment to half of the population of the town, and its payroll amounts to a quarter of a million dollars a year. The plant is most perfect in all its details, and the business is so methodically organized that it runs like clockwork. There is one notable thing about the operations of this company. Other towns in the state have suffered by mill men sawing up all the best pine in a section and then pulling up and going to new fields, leaving the place to a slow but inevitable death. The Upham Manufacturing Company converts the pine into lumber and at the same time saws up the hardwood and manufactures it into furniture. By this arrangement the plant becomes permanent and a much greater number of men are employed.

"Major Upham, whose genius and executive ability has given life to this vast enterprise and made its existence possible in the face of many seemingly insurmountable obstacles, is a comparatively young man. He was born in Westminster, Mass., May 3, 1841. He was the first to enlist in the Belle City Rifles at the breaking out of the war, and this company was of the only Wisconsin regiment in the first battle of the war. As already stated, his name was reported in the list of soldiers killed. He only knew that he was shot down and later taken off the field and placed in Libby Prison, where he was kept for seven months and then paroled. He went to Washington and was sent for by Lincoln, to whom he was able to give a succinct statement of affairs in the South. Then he was given an appointment at West Point, and it is a singular fact that his first duty after being assigned to the army was to guard Jeff Davis, who was a prisoner at Fortress Monroe. Ten years' service in the army gave Major Upham all the military life he wanted. His career in the development of north-central Wisconsin has been something remarkable. A clear-headed business man and a patriotic citizen, Major Upham has long ago taken a place as one of the leading figures of the state."

In 1891 William H. Upham was elected by the Grand Army of the Republic as commander of the Wisconsin department of that organization. William H. Upham and wife have:

I Elsie Calkins, b. Oct. 28, 1869.

II Carrie Lucy, b. Dec. 30, 1874.

370. Ebenezer Phineas^s Upham (Ebenezer P.⁷, Ebenezer B.⁶, Ebenezer⁵, Samuel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Oak Park, Ill., b. Aug. 20, 1827, in Mayville, Chautauqua Co., N. Y.; m. at Jamestown, N. 381. Hon. William⁸ Upham (William W.⁷, Leonard⁶, Ezekiel⁵, Ezekiel⁴, John³, Phineas², John¹), of Spencer, Mass., b. Feb. 27, 1825, in Brimfield, Mass.; m. June 28, 1853, Lucretia Howe Pope, of Spencer, who survived his death. He d. at the Palace Hotel, in San Francisco, Cal., June 14, 1882, while a member of an eastern excursion party to visit the Pacific coast.

He was an extensive manufacturer of woolen goods at Spencer. He was an earnest Christian, and member of the Congregational church, very active and consistent in the cause of temperance. He was full of political zeal, and always had great influence in town and state affairs, and at different times held all the important town offices at Spencer. He was appointed justice of the peace in 1855, chosen representative in 1857, state senator in 1859, was of the governor's council, with the Hon. Alexander H. Rice, in 1877 and 1878, and with Hon. Thomas Talbot in 1879.

The following is one of several similar notices which were published at Spencer on the occasion of his death :

"THE LATE WM. UPHAM.

"The dispatch announcing the sudden death of our prominent townsman, which occurred at San Francisco on Wednesday morning, created a profound feeling of sorrow in this vicinity, and nowhere was the feeling more manifest than among his own employes of the Spencer Woolen-Mills. Spencer will be fortunate if she ever finds a man that can take his place. His position in political, social and town affairs cannot be overestimated. He was always public spirited, as his first thought in encouraging any local institution was not of self-interest, he did not ask will it pay me, as a manufacturer, but will it be of benefit to the town. We know of many examples where this spirit was spontaneously manifested. He has served the town faithfully at all times, and was never known to be sparing of his time and money in the cause of local progress, and if these services could be estimated at their intrinsic worth even our own citizens would be astonished at the aggregate. He was a father to his employes, many of whom have grown old living a contented life in his and partners' service. We never entered the Spencer Woolen-Mills, and we have been there a great many times, without hearing some of the employes say he was a good man to his help, and that in dull times, he operated his mills at a loss to keep them at work. He always had a kind word, a genial smile for every man, woman or boy in the mills, and they all remember the many holidays, trips, and presents they have received from his lavish hand. We never saw him so happy as when he spent a day taking his operatives to the New England Institute fair at Boston, last fall, and these pleasant memories will live after him for years. His partners, Messrs. Geo. P. Ladd, Wm. Stanley and Hugh Kelly, had the same spirit, and we hope will continue to ripen the seeds of mercantile generosity scattered by their chief. It is not so much for what he did in the legislature, the state senate, or the governor's council that we revere the memory of Wm. Upham, but for the friendship, succor and practical help which he constantly gave to the lowliest employe in his mill. He had some plans, thoughts and methods that sometimes made him enemies, but what human being is perfect, and as it requires no stretch of magnanimity to forget all these, let us only remember his good deeds, and perpetuate his virtues. To young men starting in business life, he was always stretching out a helping hand. We shall never forget the practical help, and the trust he placed in us when we began the duties of publishing the Sun."

He was a member of the Massachusetts legislature in 1855, his only public office. His son wrote concerning him: "He was eminently a family man, and the dearest spot on earth to him was his own fireside. There was no pleasanter family than his, and no one enjoyed it more than he. His convictions were very strong, and whatever he believed he cherished with his whole nature. He was a 'Free Soiler' from the start, an ardent temperance man, and an earnest advocate of every cause he believed to be right."

At his death the following obituary notice appeared in the paper at Stoughton:

"Died in Stoughton, Thursday, Sept. 20, 1888, at his residence on Lincoln street, Abel Tilden Upham.

"'Uncle Abel,' as he was familiarly called, is gone. His was a familiar and well-beloved face on our streets. For many years he has gone in and out among us, always the same pleasant, honest and respected citizen, whose friends embraced the entire community, and whose goodness was recognized by all. In the death of Uncle Abel the writer loses a personal friend, and we know we voice the sentiment of the community when we testify to the sense of deep loss in his death. It seems only yesterday that his form was seen at the post-office and on our streets. He had lived beyond the full of three score years and ten, and yet we cannot but feel the deep sense of sadness at his taking away.

"He has always resided in our midst. For about two years his health has been failing, the result of a cancer, which caused his death.

"There are left to mourn his loss a wife and three children: Louisa, wife of Albert Holbrook, of this town, Alfred, our prominent shoe manufacturer, and Mary A., of this town. He also leaves two brothers and a sister: Enos, of Canton, Amanda, wife of Geo. Waugh, of this town, and Artemus, of Ashburnham.

"Mr. Upham was a member of the Stoughton Musical Society, and of the Stoughton Grenadier Association, of which association he was a constant attendant. The Grenadiers will attend the funeral in a body. Funeral from his late residence, this afternoon, at 2 o'clock."

“THE SILENT MESSENGER.

“In this city, July 17, 1888, of typhoid fever, Mrs. John R. Hogg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Upham, aged twenty-seven years and ten months.

“Few announcements of a similar kind have occasioned more surprise or awakened more heartfelt regret in this community than did the intelligence of the death of Mrs. John R. Hogg. Upon the threshold of womanhood, with a pulsation of a mother's love warming the young hearts of her three little darlings, the loving wife and excellent lady was torn from husband, mother and father, sisters, brothers, and passed to the pathetic silence of the tomb. As Miss Lizzie Upham she was known for her refined affability, her gentle good nature and unparalleled sweetness of temper. As Mrs. Hogg her power to compel friendship was no less potent than in her maiden days, and if all the kind words could be printed that have been spoken in her praise, they would fill many volumes. The funeral took place yesterday from the family residence, the services being conducted by the Rev. A. McDonald, pastor of the Baptist church, of which she was a devoted member. After the service at the home a long, sad cortege filed away to the cemetery, where the last solemnities were administered, and Mrs. Lizzie Hogg was lowered forever from the scenes that had been so bright to her, and that she had rendered so much brighter by her presence."

IV Charlotte M., b. Dec. 19, 1862.

James B. Upham was educated mainly at the New Hampton Literary Institution at Fairfax, Vt. He went to Detroit, Mich., in 1866, and entered the employ of E. B. Smith & Co., book-sellers and publishers. This firm established a branch store at Jackson, Mich., in which he had an interest. In 1871 he sold his interest in the bookstore at Jackson, and took charge of an important department in the firm of Perry, Mason & Co., of Boston, publishers of the Youth's Companion, the circulation of which at that time was 70,000; at this time, 1891, it had reached 500,000. June 18, 1886, he was admitted as a partner in the firm of Perry, Mason & Co., which position he now holds. Since 1880 his home has been at Malden. In 1888 he was chosen deacon of the First Baptist Church there, thus continuing the diaconate in the family at Malden so long filled by its progenitor. The present beautiful church edifice at Malden, located at the corner of Salem and Main streets, owes its existence, it is believed, to the forethought and enterprise of Mr. James B. Upham. - VI Abby Janeway, b. June 8, 1876.

443. Henry Pratt³ Upham (Joel W.³, Pliny³, Nathan³, Isaac³, Phineas³, Phineas³, Phineas³, John³), of St. Paul, Minn., b. in Millbury, Mass., Jan. 26, 1837; m. Sept. 23, 1868, Evelyn Gertrude Burbank, b. in Lewis, Essex Co., N. Y., October 30, 1844, the daughter of Simeon Burbank, of St. Paul, formerly of Ludlow, Vt., where he held a commission as colonel of Vermont militia. Colonel Simeon Burbank's father was Samuel Burbank, who m. April 22, 1773, Eunice Kendall, of Sherburne, Mass., and served in the Revolution. He was at the battle of Lexington, as an ensign, at Bunker's Hill as a lieutenant, and in the Rhode Island campaign as captain. His widow, Eunice, received a pension until her death, June 30, 1845, at the age of 95. Captain Samuel Burbank lived in Massachusetts and in Vermont.

Henry Pratt Upham's mother died when he was two years old, and his father marrying again, he was brought up by a stepmother, whom he bears in affectionate remembrance. When about three years old his father moved from Millbury to Worcester, Mass., and continued to live there during the remainder of his life, where he acquired a competency in the manufacture of the famous turbine water-wheel. Henry P. Upham attended the public schools at Worcester until about 1856, and soon after went West. He reached St. Paul on the 9th of March, 1857, then a little town "out west," of about 10,000 inhabitants. Here he formed a copartnership with Chauncey W. Griggs (afterward State senator and colonel of the 3d Minnesota Regiment in the war of the Rebellion). The firm was successfully engaged in the lumber business for about one year, owning and operating a saw-mill on the banks of the Mississippi. Mr. Upham was also engaged in the flour milling business for a time. In 1863, he became teller in the banking-house of Thompson Brothers, then the leading bankers at St. Paul. During 1863, the Thompson Brothers, with other capitalists, organized the First National Bank of St. Paul, the first bank of this kind in Minnesota, and one of the earliest in the United States, its charter being numbered 203. The bank was started with a capital of $250,000. Mr. Upham was teller for two years from its organization, and then assistant cashier. In 1869, Mr. Upham, with others, aided in organizing the City Bank of St. Paul, of which he became cashier, the president being General H. H. Sibley. This bank was operated successfully for four years, when it was consolidated with the First National Bank, Mr. Upham becoming one of the officers of the reorganized bank. After the death of James E. Thompson, in 1870, Horace Thompson became president, and in 1873, Mr. Upham became cashier. After the death of Horace Thompson in 1880, Henry P. Upham was elected president, which position he has held continuously until the present time, and it is a recognized fact that the remarkable success of this bank is due to the excellent management and business ability of its president, with the aid of his associate officers and directors. At the present date the capital stock has quadrupled, with a surplus of $1,000,000, which is constantly increasing. In 1884, a large and well-constructed building was erected for the use of the bank, one of the most commodious, secure, and well-planned bank buildings in the West, suited to accommodate its extensive and rapidly growing business, with its necessarily large corps of attaches. Among the business men of St. Paul, H. P. Upham stands as one of the foremost in ability and integrity, most enterprising and reliable, and at the same time most conservative. By these characteristics he has acquired a handsome fortune.

It is not, however, in the business world alone where Henry P. Upham is known. He is familiar with books and authors, and owns a large and carefully selected private library, to the contents of which he is no stranger. His especial interest is in the direction of historical and genealogical researches. With American genealogy, it has been said, there is probably not one more familiar outside of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, at Boston, certainly there is not one more so in the West, and many families in the North-west are indebted to him for what they know of their origin, labor of this kind, to him, having been a labor of love. He has been for many years treasurer of the Minnesota State Historical Society, whose library comprises one of the most extensive collections of historical and genealogical works in the United States, probably second to none other than that of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society already referred to; and it is to him almost exclusively, that this society is indebted for the watchful and painstaking labor which has resulted in the rare collection of valuable books, so rare that persons from a remote distance frequently send to St. Paul to have researches made at this library. He is also an honorary member of the Worcester Society of Antiquity.

In the preparation of this (Upham) Genealogy, Henry P. Upham's labor has been untiring, and his interest has never flagged; many "lines" of Uphams owe it to him alone that they find themselves attached to the "main stem." His time and money have been liberally contributed, and the Upham posterity owe as much to him for the appearance of this book as to the compiler, though he declined the offer to have his name placed with that of the compiler on the title page. Mr. Upham's residence, on Summit avenue, is one of the handsomest in St. Paul, where, as he says, "the latch string is always out to the descendants of John Upham."

He attended the public schools at Stoughton, and the Adelphean Academy at North Bridgewater; was early engaged in teaching, and chosen one of the school committee at the age of twenty-one. He was an active and energetic member of the church. He was chosen town clerk at Stoughton in 1855, and served as such a period of years, holding that office during the war of the Rebellion, during which time he was especially active in the Union cause, and was of great assistance, both officially and personally, in raising and equipping troops for the war. He was for some years a member of the firm of Atherton, Stetson & Co., boot and shoe manufacturers at Stoughton. In the fall of 1872, he and his brother Alfred, established the firm of Upham Bros. & Co., in the same line of business, in which firm he continued until his death. Of his character, his brother Alfred wrote: "He was an especially social man, and one whose advice was much sought. Peculiarly so by his younger friends, who came to him often for the words of encouragement or guidance which he knew so well how to bestow. His presence brightened every gathering, his words were apt and timely, his friends were the community in which he lived, and his death was a public loss." Charles Upham and wife Laura had:

Agnes McDougall (a descendant of William Putnam). He was elected as a Republican, in the twentieth Dakota district, to the House, in the Territorial Legislature of Dakota, Nov. 6, 1888. The St. Paul Globe (Democratic) of Nov. 24, 1888, publishes the following notice of him:

"Nathan Upham, lately elected to the Dakota legislative assembly by an overwhelming majority, was born at Great Village, N. S., Nov. 25, 1856. After attending the graded school in his native town until 14 years old, his time was mainly spent as a clerk in a store until he came to Dakota. He visited the Red River Valley in 1878, but did not stay. While on his way he became acquainted with W. R. Tweedlie, ex-register of deeds in Pembina county, who also returned to Ontario. After some correspondence, they determined to come out again in 1879, and took up land in Drayton township, where they lived and worked together until late in the fall, when Mr. Tweedlie returned to Ontario for his friends and stock. During his absence in the winter, Mr. Upham was employed in hauling wheat for Budge, Eshelman & Co., who had then started business in the new town of Acton. W. J. Anderson, one of the firm, being appointed receiver of the United States land office, Mr. Upham took Mr. Anderson's place in the store. In Nov., 1880, he was elected judge of probate for Pembina county, considered a very unimportant office. But as he was the only person who could take final proofs, or make loans between Pembina and Grand Forks, the business became extensive and profitable. Upon the organization of Walsh county, in 1881, he resigned the office and was appointed register of deeds for Walsh county, which office he held until 1886. During the latter period of his term he had acquired a farm of eight hundred acres in St. Andrews township, upon which he has resided for about three years. This is one of the best located and desirable properties in the Red River Valley outside of the railroad belt. He gives his exclusive attention to farming, not mere grain raising, having a herd of 100 to 130 head of cattle, and living on the farm. He has been married nearly four years, and has one surviving child. He has been able to secure and maintain his popularity by inspiring confidence in his honesty and ability, and by unassuming and conciliatory address." Nathan Upham and wife Agnes had:

I Roy Clinton, b. 1886; d. Sept. 11, 1888, at St. Andrews, Dak., æ. 1 year and 10 months.

CONCLUSION.

Nearly a quarter of a century has slipped away, since, after a prolonged absence which had begun at an early age, I spent a winter at home. I took that opportunity to question my father on the subject of his Upham ancestry — a matter about which I had always been curious, and of which I had often thought while in the far West. He could tell me little more than that his father came from Dudley, Massachusetts, and that there was a tradition that the family had originated in Wales; with the exception of an aunt, he had never seen any of his father's people, and knew very little about them. He was able, however, to tell me the names of his grandparents, and of his uncles and aunts — more than is usually known under such circumstances, as I have since had occasion to learn. I made notes of such information, and those notes have grown until they have formed the records in the preceding pages, embracing grandfathers — “ready-made,” so to speak — for an endless number of Uphams now living and yet to be born.

The long-promised “Upham book” is at last an accomplished fact, and the labor has ceased; though the work could be extended indefinitely, and as long as the posterity of John Upham continue to be born, to marry, and to die. I send these last sheets to the publishers, and lay aside the work with satisfaction, though not without regret. Regret that I shall here part company, and in a certain sense cease to associate with the ancient worthies whom I have learned to know so well. The Johns, Phinehases, Richards, Thomases, Nathaniels, and others, who have left behind as unseen forces those hereditary influences which have characterized us to the present day — almost as with the hand of Destiny.

In my wanderings from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the British Columbia line to Mexico, and while at remote frontier stations, these have been with me, lo, these many years. Constant familiarity with their names and brief biographical records has caused them — with me — to seem to live again. I run through the generations mentally and recognize each individual, as the long procession passes in review. Theirs has been a shadowy but a pleasant companionship, and I shall miss it.

I can see the stout-hearted John, his wife Elizabeth, and their little ones, and his sister Sara, as they leave forever the ancestral home at Bickton, in old Devon, to join with the Hull colony, and find a home in that western world beyond the sea. Here, unconsciously to him, to take his place at the head of this large family. Then the brave Phinehas, the first-born American Upham, as he goes forth to fight in those early days of that war of races which was inevitable, and in which his descendants have not yet ceased to participate, helping to make civilization on this continent possible, and moving with the star of empire on its westward course. I can see him wounded and bleeding on that fatal Sabbath morning at the storming of the Narragansett fort — one of the greatest Indian conflicts in the history of this country, now almost forgotten — borne in the arms of his comrades from the frozen field where he had so gallantly led his men and fought so well, over the snow red with the blood of two races. Carried hence to distant Malden, there to die; his wife Ruth, widowed, his children fatherless. Down to this point our ancestry is a common one; here the "lines" diverge, but I have followed them all, to the eleventh generation.

And now, since the printing of the earlier pages of this book, comes from Old England the knowledge of a remoter ancestry, and a contemporaneous kindred, extending, as with us, down to the present generations. Our English kindred we hail with cordial greeting, and though for nearly three centuries the broad Atlantic has separated us, we claim the unity of blood. Soon we that live, and bear the name on both sides of the ocean must take our places in that silent company of which the earlier members have moved on — perhaps to know each other in a life beyond.

During the progress of the work many changes have come — the original manuscript shows them. Death has been among us and gathered his harvest; even as I write, I stop to record the taking of one whose end has come — but whose life has been worthy. With a habit of scanning the obituary columns of the daily press I do it apprehensively, for several who have assisted in the preparation of this genealogy, and have looked forward to its appearance with pleasurable anticipation, have already gone without being permitted to witness its completion.

The compiling of a genealogy is a laborious though fascinating task. Those who appreciate its object are comparatively few, and one so engaged must be willing to work on without the incentive which might be furnished by a general co-operation on the part of those for whose benefit the work is intended. And yet the accomplishment of this one has proved to be one of the satisfactions of a lifetime. If its effect is — as I have hoped it may be — to cause each one bearing the name of Upham to feel that he has a responsibility for bearing it creditably, then indeed will a grand object have been attained, and we may all adopt the sentiment of the New Brunswick Uphams:

“If it is not in all mortals to command success, we will do more, deserve it.”

NOTE.

I shall be pleased to receive notice of all errors which may be discovered at the appearance of this book, also of any additional information which may help toward the completeness of the Upham genealogy in all its branches. Errors will be corrected, and additional information preserved, with the hope that at some future time there may be a revised edition. While at present I have no permanent local address, a letter will always find me if sent to my official address, viz.:

END OF THE AMERICAN GENEALOGY.

SUPPLEMENT,

SHOWING THE

English Ancestry of John Upham,

OF NEW ENGLAND,

WITH AN

ENGLISH UPHAM GENEALOGY

From 1523 Down to the Present Time.

ALSO MUCH VALUABLE INFORMATION CONNECTED WITH THE UPHAMS IN ENGLAND, ONLY RECENTLY DISCOVERED.

EXPLANATORY AND INTRODUCTORY.

When pages 7 to 18 — under the heading of “the name in England” — were sent to the publishers, it was with the hope that they might be useful in a search for the English ancestry of the American Uphams, should it ever be practicable to undertake one. But such a discovery was only regarded as a possibility of the indefinite future. It was little anticipated that even before these proof-sheets were corrected, this knowledge would be in our possession. Yet such is the case, and the book now includes not only the identified ancestry of the emigrant John Upham for several generations, with indications of a still more remote trace of the family, but also an English genealogy of very considerable scope, showing the Uphams from an early period down to the present date, thereby adding immensely to the interest and value of this as a record of the Uphams of England and America.

For this important knowledge we are indebted to the perseverance and untiring labor of our young kinsman, William Upham Reynell-Upham, Esq. — whose ancestry is shown — until recently living at his home in Bristol, England, but now in the United States, where he brought with him all the records which follow, and has since his arrival here taken the time — important to his personal interests — to arrange for publication in these pages. Before leaving England he spent fourteen weeks in his voluntary and self-imposed task of searching the various sources of information, and it is sincerely hoped that the valuable service which he has contributed will be appreciated.

At this place I take pleasure in recording the wish of Mr. Reynell-Upham that the valued assistance which he received from the following-named gentlemen should be acknowledged, viz.: Dr. T. N. Brushfield, of Budleigh, Salterton, who searched the Budleigh records for him, and afterward sent him a number of names which he had found; the Rev. R. Hobhouse, of St Ive, Cornwall, who sent him full details of Upham farm, etc.; Arthur Burch, Esq., bishop's secretary, who gave him access to the bishop's transcripts, visitation books, etc., preserved at the Diocesan Registry, Exeter; the record keeper, Somerset House, London, who gave him permission — only granted in special cases — to extract details from the Probate Calendars; and others.

A notable feature of the "new light" is the fact which appears that the wife of our ancestor, John Upham, of New England, was not Elizabeth Webb, as "assumed" so confidently on page 34, but Elizabeth Slade. The mistake was a natural one, still it is only another illustration of the often-repeated lesson, that no assumption is safe in genealogical researches, frequently so strangely misleading. In this connection I will only invite attention to what is mentioned on page 34: "John Upham, to have been the uncle of Joseph, the son of Richard Webb, must either have married the sister of the said Richard Webb, or Richard Webb must have married the sister of John Upham." With reference to Sara, the sister of John Upham, mentioned in her father's will, as well as in the passenger list from England, it is suggested, as will be seen, that "she may have become the wife of Richard Webb."

With regard to the Rev. Joseph Hull, as already seen on page 19, he had been for eleven years rector at Northleigh, which position he resigned in 1632, "and gathering a company of devoted followers," etc., sailed with them for this country two years later. Northleigh—pronounced Norley—is about ten miles from Bickton, and what seems more natural than that John Upham, then a young married man with a growing family, a younger son, with little prospect of succeeding to the limited ancestral acres at Bickton, should have been induced to join his fortunes with those of the Hull Colony. Whether the Puritan movement of the day toward New England was wholly the cause of this may be questioned. Until two years prior to his departure from England, Mr. Hull had been in the established church. On page 24 it also appears that he was afterward, in 1659, having returned to England, again identified with the Episcopacy as rector of St. Buryan's, Cornwall. While we know that for many years prior to his death, John Upham was a deacon in the New England Congregational church, there remains a reasonable doubt as to his religious tendencies in England. None of the members of his father's family seem to have been identified with those who had abandoned the Episcopal forms, and his uncle Thomas lived and died as a clergyman of the established church.

It is interesting to observe how the names have been repeated through the numerous successive generations. Nathaniel, so usual among the American Uphams, seems to have come in with the Slade ancestry in England, and to have continued with the Richards, Johns and Thomases down to the present time. Phynahas seems to be purely American in its introduction, and to have been unknown among the English Uphams. The suggestion near the bottom of page 47, as to the origin of this name, seems now even more probable.

Boddl.

Robert Uphom came 53d on the list for the hundred of E. Budleigh, and fourth in the second (the right hand) column. On the left margin of the membrane the names of the taxpayers were written close to the edge, and no names of villages or towns were added, but on the right hand (indented) margin there was plenty of space, where as above represented the names of localities were inscribed. We took down the whole list of the taxpayers in the parish of "holebrok" where this Robert Uphom* was living in 1332, (6th Ed. III) as the names would be of great value in identifying the family and locality of Robert Uphom in these records where the name of the parish is so frequently absent. Next to the above list came "Boddl," (Budley) with its taxpayers, not however containing any Uphams or Uphoms. An examination of the hundred of East Budleigh on the map of Devon, reveals a parish named Halbbrook near Sowton, and a little to the south of it we note "Wynslade House" marked.

* This Robert Uphom was probably living there in 1327, for the lay Subsidy in 1 Ed. III contains his name with others who are found in this parish.

Clianger. A farm of about 429 acres, value (1774) £175 per an. situate two miles from Buckland, to the S. W. upon the declivity above Revels Hill. It derives its name from clay, the nature of the soil, and "Hangre," which at the end of words, according to Sir Wm. Dugdale signifies the slope of a hill. 5 Ed. III a messuage and carncate of land at Cleyhangre had been held by the Abbot of Milton for above 100 years past of the heirs of Alured de Lincoln, by service of 12d per annum, for all services of the gift and feoffment of the said Alured. Buckland Abbas a very large parish about 4 m. N. E. from Cerue Abbas, and gives name to the hundred, yet in the roll of the Nona inquisition it is called Bouncloude, and is placed in the hundred of Nyweton and Choulonde. It derives its name according to Sir Robert Atkyns, from the tenure of its land, by deed in writing anciently called Bockland, i. e. Book-land; as other land not so held was called Folkland, as having no other evidence but the testimony of the people. It received the name of Buckland Abbas, from its belonging to the Abbey of Glastonbury. It continued part of the Abbey's possessions till the dissolution, at which time we meet with this account of it in the roll entitled "The certificate of Richard Pollard and Thomas Moyle Esq^{rs}, general surveyors of the Kinge's landes, made upon the survey of all the lordships, manors, landes &c. belonging to the late attainted monasterie of Glastonburge, lying in sondry countys, now in the Kinge's handes by the attaincture of Richard Whiting late abbot of the same, of haute treason attainted, and according unto the view thereof by us in particular bokes made."

Oratrix pleads that the quenes maiesties most gracious writte of subpœna be granted directed to the said Millissent Culliford to attend, answer and receive the direction of the court of chauncerie &c.

The Answer of Millicent Culliforde widowe Def^t to the Bill of Compl^t of Margaret Upham widowe complaynaunte.

In the course of this reply she denies the various statements and charges in toto and asserts that her late husband Robert Culliford died "seysyd in his demeane as of freeholde in a tement and closes of lande parte of the mannor of Plattforde in the countie of Wiltes, held by copie of courte roll." She denies that there is any manor named Plattforde, in the county of Southampton and prays to be "dismissed out of the bill of complaynte withe all reasonable costs and charges for wrongfull vexacōn susteyned in this behalf."

"Plaitford in the hundred of Trustfield, Co. Wilts, is so called from the wide or crooked ford over the stream which passes through it and adjoins the parish of Landford. It forms an oblong narrow strip of land stretching in greatest length from north to south, and intersected nearly in the middle by the turnpike road leading from Salisbury to Southampton. The parish is bounded on the north by Melchet Park, on the south by Bramshaw, on the west by Landford and on the east by the tything of West Wellow in the county of Hants. At the time of the general survey Platford was held by Edmund a Saxon noble, in chief from the Crown. In the reign of Edward the Confessor it was the property of Algar and was assessed at a yard-land. "Here (says the record) is half a plough land with two borderers and two cottagers. The mill pays 10 shillings. The wood is three furlongs in length and one broad. Thesame Edmund holds one yard-land, in which he has half a plough-land and four borderers and two cottagers." These two estates together are worth forty shillings. In the 3rd Edward I John de Grims, tead of West Grimsted held the manor of Plaitford of the Crown by the serjeantry of having the custody of the royal park of Melchet and by paying eleven shillings to the king through the bailiff of Clarendon. From this period Plaitford is included in the numerous inquisitions taken of the members of that distinguished family.

In 22nd Ed. III it was assigned as the dower of Eleanor wife of Adam de Grimstead and on the death of her son John without issue in 1363 it descended to Reginald Perrot the son of Isabella de Grimsted his aunt. He died seised of Plaitford, in 1371 when it became in part the dower of his widow Beatrix and in 1391 (13th Richd. II) Ralph Perrot his son surrendered Plaitford to John Earl of Huntingdon. Eight years afterwards Sir John de Bettesthorne died seised of the manor: but it would seem that Reginald Perrot was afterwards in possession as he passed it with other lands by a fine to Sir John Berkeley, the husband of Elizabeth daughter of Sir John de Bettesthorne—Catherine Berkeley the great-granddaughter of Sir John having married Sir John Brereton Knt. left an only daughter Wybergha the wife of Sir W^m Compton of Compton Winyates, Co. Warwick, Knt. who through her became possessed of this property and died seised of it in 1528. It continued in his descendants until about 1680 when Richard Compton of Bisterne, Co. Hants, Esq sold the manor and principal estate to Sir Stephen Fox, Knt. There are in the parish about 1460 acres the principal part of which comprising a farm of nearly 300 acres considerable wood lands and other properties leased out for lives belongs to the Earl of Ilchester." Upham v. Upham

To the right honorable the commission appoynted for the custody of the greate seale of England.

Humble complayninge, sheweth unto yo^r hon^{rs} your orator William Upham of Upton in the county of Somerset, husbandman now that one John Upham of Hewish Champflower in the county aforesaid husbandman five years scithence or thereabouts borrowed of yo^r said orator the sume of twentie pounds of lawfull monie of England and the said John Upham became bounden, in a certain bill or writinge, obligatorie to your said orator in the full sume of fortie poundes for the true payment of the said twentie poundes to your said orator at a certayne daye then following, and your said orator at the special instance and necessitie of the said John Upham his brother entered into bonds with the said John Upham; to Thomas Longe of Upton aforesaid in the penall sume of six poundes for the true payment of three poundes to the said Thomas Longe; to Robert Reade of Wivilscombe in the said countie in the penall sume of twentie poundes for the true payment of ten poundes to the said Roberte, to Richard Chilcott the younger of Wivilscombe aforesaid in the penall sume of ten poundes for the true payment of five poundes to the said Richard Chilcott the younger att a certaine daye and time of payment speciallie mentioned in the said bonds or writings obligatorie. And the said John Upham about five yeares scithince borrowed of George Upham of Hewish Champflower another brother of yo^r orator twentie and six poundes and John Upham became bound in two bills to the said George Upham for the payment thereof. About three yeares afterwards the said George Upham made his last Will and Testament appoynting yo^r orator sole executor thereof. After whose decease your orator proved the will &c. John Upham four yeares scithince intermarried and took to wife one Joane daughter of Roger Cheeke of Uplowman in the countie of Devon with whom the saide John Upham made agreement to hande the sume of one hundred and twentie poundes and an estate in a tenement in Brushforde in the countie of Somerset for all the terme to come and unexpired as the marriage portion of the said Joane. And two years scithince the said John Upham died possessed of the said tenement in Brushforde and a personal estate well worth two hundred pounds and upwards and Joane the relicte of the said John Upham took out letters of administration in the archdeaconry Courte of Taunton to the estate of her late husband. But may it please yo^r lordshippe the saide Joane Upham, the relicte of the said John, Roger Cheeke aforesaid and Thomas Webber of Hewish Champflower aforesaid husbandman and others (whose names though at present unknown he prays may be made parties to this bill of complaint) combined to defraud yo^r said orator of the said twentie poundes whiche the said John Upham borrowed and of the said twentie and six pounds which the said John borrowed of George Upham deceased and now owing to yo^r orator as his executor." The said Joane Upham having "purloyned" and possessed themselves of the testamentary estate of the said John Upham and converted the same to their own use and wittingly willingly &c caused much of the testamentary estate and goods to be left out of the inventory: the orator prays that a writ be directed to the said defendants requiring them to appear, answer to the said charges and receive the direction of the Court of Chancery.

The sevrall answeare of Joane Upham wydowe, one of the Defendants to the bill of complaynte of Will^m Upham Complaynante.

"The said def^t saying unto herself now and at all times hereafter all advantage of excepcon to the incertentie and insufficiency of the sd bill of compl^t and of the matters and things therein contained for playne declaracon of the truth of the said premises to soe much thereof as doth concerne her this def^t shee this def^t sayeth &c." She denies all knowledge of the bond between her late husband and the comp^t admits that her father Roger Cheeke paid £120 to John Upham as her marriage portion shortly after her marriage but denies that the estate in the tenement in Brushforde was also given to John Upham as part of the said marriage portion or that John Upham ever received the profits thereof but asserts that the said tenement was before her marriage by agreement between the said Joane Upham, and John Upham and Roger Cheeke assigned over to Roger Cheeke aforesaid for the use and benefit of John Palfrey, Elizth Palfrey and Joane Palfrey children of the said defendant Joane Upham by her former husband John Palfrey dec^d to which agreement in writing the said compl^t is a witness. She denies that John Upham died possessed of the said estate in the tenement at Brushforde or of a personal estate worth £200 which is untruly alleged in the said bill of comp^t. By an inventory remaining in the Archdeaconry Court, Taunton a personal estate of £80-5-8 is shown left by John Upham. She also states that J. U. was in debt at his decease to W^m Hoyle £4, Humphrey Upham £5-8s, John Hoyle £7-10s, M^r Meade £10-8s, John Date £4-15-5, Henry Clattam £6-10s, Robert Bullory 33s, John Webber £20, John Steevens £8, Thomas Langdon £6-12s, & David Webber £5. Joane says that she paid some, gave security for others and fully administered the estate; that the complainant was one of the appraisors for the inventory and was himself pressed to take his debt out of the corn but refused to accept confessing that the corn was much overvalued. She prays to be dismissed out of the bill with all reasonable costs &c.

Upham v. Prin et al.

To the Right Honorable Thomas, Lord Coventry, Lorde Keeper of the Greate Seale of England.

"xii daie Febru 1638.

"In most humble manner complayning yo^r orators and humble suppliants, Christopher Upham of Elworthy in the county of Somerset, yeoman and Alice his wief doe show &c. That whereas about fifteen yeares sythens there was a treatie betweene one John Welshman of Elsworthy aforesaid and Cicilia Venne of Calue in the said county of Som-sett widdow for a marriage to be had betwene the said John Welshman and yo^r oratrix Alice Upham one of the daughters of the said Cecilia Venne uppon conclusion of which marriage it was agreed that the said John Welshman should have with his wief three score pounds." This sum was never paid and the plaintiffs maintain that the estate of the late Cecilia Venne (who died "about a year sythens appointing one Henry Prinn executor under her will") is indebted to them in that amount. However before the said marriage of Alice Sellecke and John Welshman, Alice's mother Cecilia Venne "by the persuasions and cunnigne insinuations sett on foote by one John Sellecke of Otterton in the said countie of Som-sett, Clarke brother of yo^r said oratrix Alicē and Henry Prin of Kilne or Kilme in the sayd countie yeoman who before that time was married to one of yo^r oratrix her sisters," induced her to enter into a bond with her mother the said Cecilia in the penall sum of £40. This was intended so they told her to secure her against her husband (Welshman) should he not treat her well, but if he acted badly to be put in force against him. Alice in her youthful innocence trusted them in the matter and signed without understanding the effect of her action. Alice had been the wife of Welshman two years and no demand was made on account of the bond during that time nor after his death during her widowhood. But since her remarriage with Christopher Upham and upon the death of Cecilia Venne one Henry Prinn the executor proved Cecilia's will and incited by the said John Sellecke of Otterton, Clarke, John Sellecke of Overstowe fuller and one Robert Withers and Frances his wife agreeing with Henry Prin to share the monies put the said bond in force by the common law "contrarie to all right, equitie and good conscience, noe monie beinge diewe." He states that Cecilia did not pay a legacy left to oratrix by Thomas Venn under whose will Cecilia was executrix. She prays for a writ directed to the def^{ts} commanding them to appear and answer to the charges &c.

The Sev-ral Answeres of Henry Prin one of the Def^{ts} of the bill of Comp^t of Christopher Upham and Alice his wife Complaynants.

In the course of a lengthy reply he denies everything and everybody. He asserts that the complainant Alice by the name of Alice Sellecke by her bill bearing date the 9th Sept. in the first year of his now majesty's reign a^o Domini 1625 acknowledged being indebted to Cecilia Venn in the sum of ten pounds and that the money had not been paid. He prays to be delivered out of the bill with all reasonable costs &c.

Upham v. Hunt.

To the right honorable the Commissioners for the custody of the greate seale of England.

"In all humble manner complayninge sheweth that your orator George Upham of Wiveliscombe in the county of Somerset, yeoman &c." The substance of this complaint is that one Joseph Hunt of Braunton in Co Devon yeoman "three yeares last past" owned a house and "some four score" acres of land pasture &c. in the parish of Wiveliscombe and as he lived 40 or 50 miles away from it and "beinge a very sicke man at that tyme and by reason of the troubles then beinge in the kingdome no man was able to travel quietlie, or in peace to abide att home" the said Hunt had the house and ground on his hands tenantless and getting out of repair so Ann Hunt his wife by the direction and appointment of the said Joseph went to Geo. Upham being a near kinsman of the said Joseph Hunt and earnestly entreated him to get a good tenant and lease the property and if unable to find a tenant that he would look after it, repair the house make the best of the land, take down trees for making and mending of gates and barr posts and make the best of the woods furze and broom growing thereupon and pay the great taxes and that whatever he disbursed should be paid him again. All this George Upham undertook "uppon the entreatie soe made by the sayd Ann with the consent and approbation of her husband the said Joseph." He tried to get a tenant but "noe man would deale or meddle therein by reason of the tymes." Upon which G. Upham took possession of the house and land made all needful repairs "tooke downe one timber tree for the doinge thereof" paid the rates and taxes discharged the quarteringe of soldiers and expended of his own money some six or seven pounds more than he made out of the place. G. Upham asserts that notwithstanding all his trouble taken when "noe man would meddle therein" the said Joseph Hunt hath in a most — manner commenced an action against him for entering the house, treading down the grass, cutting down timber &c. The said J. Hunt pursuing his action with all violence and extremity and refusing to come to any account with the compl^t for the money that he had disbursed or any part thereof "contrarie to all righte equitie and good conscience." He acknowledges that he has no evidence to prove that the said Joseph Hunt gave such directions to his wife except the confession and acknowledgment of the said J. Hunt made to him in private without calling witness thereto, but hopes that the said Joseph and Ann Hunt will upon their several oaths speak nothing but the truth. He prays for his majestys most gracious writ of subpœna to be directed to the said defendants commanding them and any of them to appear at a certain day &c before the hon. High Court of Chancery and thereupon to answer to all and singular the premises &c and to stand and abide by any further order and direction therein.

June 1648. The Answer &c of Joseph Hunt and Ann his wife
Def^{ts} to the bill of Compl^t of Geo Upham Compl^t

"About three yeares sythens" M^{rs} Winefrid Upham mother of the defendant Ann died. After whose decease the house and lands in the said bill of Compl^t named came into the possession of the defendant Joseph Hunt. Shortly after Ann Hunt with consent of her husband demised the said house and land to one John Tutbole of Wivlescombe Co Somerset, husbandman he paying Jos. Hunt 4s. per week while in possession. He goes on to state that after 5½ years Tutbole left without notice and gave the keys to Upham the complainant who thereupon entered and took possession without the consent or knowledge of the defendants. When the latter heard of it Ann Hunt with approval of her husband went to Wivlescombe to see Upham entered the premises and demanded possession on behalf of her husband but the compl^t knowing that Hunt was sick and unable to travel, taking advantage of the latter's distance from the house and lands and the unhappy state of the Kingdom refused to yield possession, and had received the profits for one year value £20 and carried away wood and growing timber value £10. Thereupon the defendants took action in H. M. Court of Common Pleas at Westminster against the compl^{ts} to recover &c. The def^{ts} swears to the truth of their statements and prays to be delivered out of the bill with all reasonable costs &c. Dated 13 Feb. 1638.

No. 3.

To the right hon^{ble} the Commisioners for the custody of the greate seale of England.

"Humble complayninge Geo. Upham of Wivlescombe Co. Somt. sheweth &c." That Joane Perratt the daughter of John Perratt by Joane his wife was by her father's Will to have "four score and tenne poundes" at the age of thirty or on marriage provided she married with the consent of his wife Joane. Joane Perratt was living with her mother when George Upham the complainant came along and they married with the consent of the widow Perratt. On the marriage the latter gave her daughter Joane Upham a lot of things which the latter accepted as wedding gifts but the widow Perratt intended them in lieu of the £90. This is the sum and substance of the bill of complaint to which there is no "answer" attached.

The said John Upham died so indebted on or about 24th June 1646. and on or about the 15th Sept. same year the complainant took out letters of administration of all his goods &c and fully administered his estate paying and satisfying all the beforementioned debts and many others including all necessary expenses, greatly to her own cost as her husband's estate not amounting to above four score pounds or thereabouts. But "William Upham of Upton in the county aforesaid pretends to have a bill or obligation of £40 for the payment of £20 hath now of late causelessly and maliciously put the same in suit against yo^r oratrix &c." She furthermore accuses him of misfiguring the dates on a bill which was entrusted to him, and asserts that if such bond existed it was fully discharged in the life time of the said John Upham. She prays for a writt &c compelling William Upham to appear and answer to the premises &c.

Upsham v. Hinchmann.

14th April 1655. To the Right Hon. Edward Earle of Clarendon Lord High Chancellor of England.

"Humble complaynigne sheweth &c." He complains that having borrowed money of Joseph Hinchman deceased he gave bond for it and afterwards fully satisfied the said bond in money and goods. But that on the death of Hinchman his widow put the said bond in force against him at the common law and had him arrested for debts which he did not owe contrary to all right, equity &c.

The answer of Elizabeth Hinchmann, widdow def^t to the Bill of Compl^t of John Upshan Compl^t. The defendant states: that her late husband Joseph Hinchmann who died in February 1663 lent £50 to John Upshan and acknowledges that the complainant returned £20 of it in 1661. About 1657 John Upshan buried his wife Allice (sister to the defendant Eliz. Hinchmann) and sent some of her wardrobe to the defendant which the latter at first declined saying that he might marry again and that they would then be useful to the second M^{rs} Upsham but upon being pressed ultimately accepted and understanding it as a free gift. On the death of her husband E. Hinchman proceeded to collect the debts due to his estate and on John Upsham refusing to pay the remainder of his debt (he saying that he had already satisfied the bond in money and goods) she put the bond in force and had him arrested. Sir Francis Drake, Barronett and divers other justices of the peace for the said county of Devon that on Wednesday the 14th daye of April last before the date of the said certificate there casually happened a sudden fire upon the houses and habitations of several poore sufferers and inhabitants of the towne and forte of Topsham in the said countie whose names and losses are particularly mentioned in the said certificate. And whereas his majesty beinge soe readily certified as aforesaid, did out of his Princely compassion by his letters patent under the greate seale of England bearing date the fouerthe daye of November in the said seaven and twentieth yeare of his saide majestys reign grante unto the poore sufferers and inhabitants of Topsham aforesaid and in their behalves, their deputy and deputies, the bearer and bearers of the same authorised and appointed under the handes and seals of Samuel Taner, Richard Lee and William Sanford Esquires beinge treasurers and receivers of such moneys as should be collected and received from the charitable benevolence of his majestys subjects within the countyes of Surrey, Sussex, Middlesex, Kent, Essex, Norfolk, Suffolk, Gloucester, Worcestershire, Oxford, Bucks and Herefordshire and in all cities, townes, corporate boroughs, parishes chapelries, townes villages and hamlets within the said counties and not elsewhere — and whereas the said Samuel Taner, Richard Lee and W^m Sanford by virtue of this power and authority for as aforesaid to them given did by the several writeings under their handes and seales constitute authorise and appoint y^r orator the said James Upham the elder and the said James Upham the younger and their assigns on behalfe of the poore sufferers to be collectors of the same.” The complainant states also that he together with James Upham the younger, Leonard ffarmer, Henry Cannington and Aquilla Upham as sureties for the said complainant became bound to the said Samuel Tanner, Richard Lee and W^m Sanford, in a bond or obligation for the sum of one thousand two hundred pounds with condition to render to the said treasurers a just account of the money collected and to give acquittances for such. And shortly after the complainant with James Upham the younger who was then a minor proceeded to collect the charitable benevolences upon the authority aforesaid. According to a contract made betweene the complainant and the treasures he was to have thirtene pence for “every brieft which they should lay disperse and gather” out of every parish church or chapel within the aforesaid places,” the said sum being also in consideration of their “travel payaes and expenses in and about the same.” The compl^t says that he and his son were very industrious and used all possible diligence therein to perform the trust in them reposed and did “lay and disperse near three thousand briefes within the lymitts aforesaid, and under the conditions he was to render his account on or before the 20th June now last past but by reason of the great snow and unseasonable weather the previous winter he had been able to collect little by that time so that he was unable to punctually perform the condition of the bond in this particular — moreover his hopeful son James Upham the younger had disappeared and the complainant had heard nothing of him for months by which the compl^t is prevented from furnishing an account of his son’s transactions and the former knows not where he is. The compl^t states that he had collected about £50 besides his deductions and allowances and rendered his account paying in the sum of £100 to the treasures but the latter refused to accept his account and put the bond in force against him and he was arrested and “remayns a prisoner in the sheriffs ward for the said countie of Devon att the said of the said Samuel Tanner, Richard Lee and W^m Sanford for the said sum of one thousand and two hundred poundes." He complains that he is by this prevented from following his employment and obstructed from finishing the collections and "the rest of the orators are like to be utterly undone and ruined by the strict rules of the com-on lawe (there being sev'ral processes issued against them the said Leonard ffarmer, Henry Cannington, and Aquilla Upham in regard to the said bond) He further states that the said W^m Sanford who acted for the rest refused to accept his account unless he could produce and bring all the briefs from every parish within the said limits which the compl^t says is altogether impossible seeing that many refused to give them back and as the fire at Topsham was very inconsiderable "divers ministers and wardens did charge y^r said orator James Upham the elder to bee a cheate and affirmed that he went aboute to cousin the country" and some threatened to burn the briefs, others said they had lost them. Moreover there were briefs for the towne of Northampton Cottingham, Co Cambridge and Southwark whose losses were considerable and the people gave largely so that this of Topsham (being but a few ragged houses) did not excite their compassion although the compl^t says that his trouble and labor in collecting was increased by the opposition he met with. The compl^t furthermore states : that the losses by the fire at Topsham were not a third of the amount asserted and that most of the sufferers were well able to bear it: that the adjacent and neighboring parishes contributed little or nothing because they were better informed than those who lived remote from it: that in particular the parish of ffarringdon being two or three miles from Topsham "where the said Samuel Tanner, dwells and is a parishioner" gave not so much as one penny towards the said losses. Nevertheless the said Samuel Tanner with the other treasurers of the said fund twice sued arressted and imprisoned the complainant upon the accounts aforesaid. The compl^t to the end that he may have redress according to equity prays for a writ directing the defendants to appear and upon their oaths to answer to the premises and await the direction of the court, and in particular to state how many persons and who in particular sustained loss by the said fire and whether such were really poor and whether it was not rather a confederacy and combination between one Richard Showers of Topsham (who sustained some small loss by the fire) and others of the pretended sufferers to reap advantage by the public benevolence than for any real need or necessity &c. Also asks for writ of Injunction staying further proceedings in the common law until the defendants have made answer &c.

The joint and severall answers of Samuell
Taner, Richard Lee and W^m. Sanford Esq^{rs} Defts to the Bill of Compl^t of James Upham the elder, Leonard Farmer, Henry Cannington and Acquilla Upham Complainants.

“The said defendants saying to themselves now and at all times hereafter all advantage of excep-con &c.” They acknowledge that on 4th Nov. in the 27th year of H. M. reign letters patent were granted “to Richard Shower, William Cawood Gilbert Mogridge, Geo Launder, Robert Pym, Joan Westlake and Elizabeth Knight poore sufferers and inhabitants of the town and post of Topsham to collect within the counties of Devon, Cornwall, Somerset, Dorset, Wilts, Southampton Surrey, Sussex, Middlesex, Kent, Essex, Norfolk, Suffolk Gloucestershire, Worcestershire, Oxford, Bucks, and Hereford, the cittie of Exeter and countye of the same, the cittie of Bristol and countye of the same, the towne and countye of Poole, towne and countye of Southampton, Isle of Wight, cities of Winchester, Chicester and Rochester, citie of Canterbury and countie of the same, citie of Norwich, Universitye and citie of Oxford, borough of Southwarke and all boroughs, suberbs and liberties &c within the said citie, and not elsewhere” — Dated 24th Dec. 27th year &c. The defendants say: that they believe James Upham knows where his son is and that the latter is staying away to form an excuse that the compl^t James Upham has collected much more than he has accounted for and appropriated it to his own use.

They state that the loss sustained by the aforesaid poor sufferers and inhabitants of Topsham was £1567-5-3. They acknowledge that James Upham was a prisoner in the sheriffs ward upon their suit and since by Habeas Corpus has been removed to the “fleete” where they believe he still remaineth a prisoner. The said def^{ts} also assert that they are very desirous and willing that he should be released and will not insist upon the non-compliance with the days and times mentioned on the bond, upon his giving them a fair and just account of what he and the other complainants Acquilla Upham and James Upham the younger have received and giving good security for the uses aforesaid and paying such costs and expenses as the poor sufferers have been put to, in suing and prosecuting the said complainants “which have been very considerable both in this honorable court and at the common law &c. They pray to be dismissed with all reasonable costs and charges for veracōn in this behalf most wrongfully susteyned.”

B & A bef. 1714. vol 30. (Mitford.) 6th part. 90:-Upham v. Hewes.

UPHAM v. HEWES

To the Right Hon^{ble} Thomas Lord Coventry Lord Keeper of the great Seale of England.

9th July 1638.

“Humble complayninge sheweth &c.” The complainant Margaret Upham of Wivlescombe, Co.Somerset widow states that thirty years since there was a treaty of marriage between Thomas Hewes of Laurance Lydeard in said county yeoman and one Joane Smyth widow who had a life interest in a messuage tenement and certain lands in Tolland and Laurance Lideard Co Somerset valued at £30 per annum, the said Thomas Hewes being also seised of a copyhold tenement in Laurance Lideard valued at £20 per an. and by custom of the manor Tho Hewes’ wife would have her widows estate in the said copyhold on the death of her husband. Thos Hewes married Joane Smyth and then resolving to defraud his wife of her widows estate and make void his marriage agreement yielded up his estate in Laurance Lideard to the lord of the manor and retook the same to John Hewes his son now deceased. After some disputes Joan Hewes went to her friends and relatives and they endeavoured to get Thomas Hewes to make over to trustees the property he held in right of his wife, for the benefit of her children. Joane consulted her brother Henry Rew and her brother-in-law John Upham the husband of the complainant and told them she had chosen them to hold the lands and tenement in trust on behalf of her and her children. They consented on her importunity and it was decided that this would make peace in the Hewes family — So Thomas Hewes about May 47th year James I. by indenture made between the said Thomas Hewes of the one part and Henry Rew and John Upham of the other part demise grant &c to the said Henry Rew and John Upham all that messuage tenement with garden orchard, meadows & pasture thereto belonging in the parish of Tolland and Laurence Hideard aforesaid for 30 years thenceforth at a yearly rent of £10. Henry Rew and John Upham became parties to a bond of value £100 for the true performance of the terms of the said indenture. Neither J. Upham nor H. Rew ever held the property by virtue of the said lease but allowed Joane Hewes to keep possession and Joane regularly paid the rent to her husband until about 4 years before the death of Thomas Hewes (which occurred about 1633) when there was some £4 owing and a new agreement was entered into whereby Thomas Hewes was content to receive £6-13-4 as rent from thenceforward as she had "a great charge of children to witte seven by one John Smyth her former husband and five by the said Thomas Hewes." Joane Hewes never made any demands upon the trustee John Upham and Henry Rew in their lifetime well knowing that nothing was done, but since the death of Thomas Hewes his son and his executor having obtained the bond put it in execution at the common lawe against the complainant Margaret Upham she being executor of her late husband John Upham and seeks to recover the whole forfieture thereof contrary to all equity and good conscience. Complainant prays for a writ of Injunction directed to the said John Hewes enjoyning his presence to answer upon oath &c. There is no answer attached.

Vol. 3. 22nd part. 96. Wolsey Uphome W^m. (Devon) v. Abbott John.

Uphome v. Abbott.

"To the most Reverend ffather in God, Thomas, lorde legat Cardenall Archebyschoppe of Yorke & chauncellor of England

In most humble wise compleyninge sheweth &c. that yo^r orator William Uphome of Huysch in the countie of Som^t husbond and Johan his wief daughter and heire of one Thomas Pape dec^d that whereas the said Thomas Pape was seaid in his demeane as of fee of and in forty acres of lande pasture and meddow with appurtinances sett and lying in Deane Prior in the countye of Devon and on his death the pr-myses with the appurtinances descended, and of righte ought to descend to the said Johan the daughter and heire of the said Thomas Pape, and the said Johan entered in and was seaid in fee accordingly. So it is now most joyous lorde that the evidences, writeings, documents, charters &c concerning the said premyes are casually come into the possession of one — John Abbott of Cornewode in the same com of Devon." The complainant having no remedy by the order of the common law prays that a writ of subpœna may be directed to the said John Abbott to appear in the Kinge's Court of Chancery for judgment &c.

“The Annsver of John Abbott to the bill of complaynt of William Uphome and Johan his wife.

“The saide John Abbott saith that the said bille of complaynt is uncertain and insufficient to be answered and the matters therein contained seyured of untrouth &c and are determinable by the com-on lawe.” Nevertheless as he is compelled to make answer to the premises for declaration of the truth, thereupon he saith : that one John Snowdon was seased of alle the premises and lands in question in his demeane as of fee and being so seased gave all the said premises and lands to one John Patya and Isabell his wif daughter of the said John Snowdon for the lyves of the said John Patya and Isabell with remainder on their deaths to one Thomas Patya son and heire of the said John Patya and to Johan his wif and to the heires of the body of the said Thomas Patya and Johan lawfully begotten with remainder to the righte heires of the said John Patya. On the death of John Patya the said Thomas and Johan Patya entered into possession and were seased of the premises and appurtenances and were lawfully seased of the same as of freehold and had Isabell a daughter of theire bodye lawfully begotten and Thomas Patya and Johan his wife died so seased. On whose death said landes pasture and meddow with the appurtenances specified in the said bill of complaynt rightly descended to the said John Abbott as cosen and heire of the bodye of the said Thomas Patya and Johan his wif this is to wete as son of Agnes daughter of the said Isabell daughter and heire of the said Thomas Patya and Johan his wif. In which case all documents evidences, writings, charters and muniments as the said John Abbott hath concerning the said p-msses &c of veray righte apertayne and belonge to the said John Abbott and his heires afore-said by reason whereof he doth retayne and kepe the same as laful ys for hym to do &c.” He denies that Thomas Pape named in the bill was ever seased of any such property or that the lands in question ever descended to Johan wife of William Uphome the complainant as daughter of the said Thomas Pape named in the bill, and prays to be delivered out of the said bill with all reasonable costs &c.

Misc. Chan. Proc. vol. 3 part 96. Uffnam Richd. v. Ingram W^m The name Uffenham or Uffnam is so rarely met with and chiefly in Wilts that lest it should be a variation of Upham or Up-enham we thought brief mention of this case would not be unacceptable.

"In ffull humble wise complayninge sheweth that your daily orator Richard Uffnam cosen & heire of John Uffnam otherwise Laurens that is to say son of Roger Uffnam brother of John son & heire unto the said John Uffnam otherwise Laurens." He says that the grandfather John Uffnam died seised of one messuage, 20 acres of land, 10 acres of meadow, 20 acres of pasture in Sherton Ashton Co. Wilts. On whose death the complainant succeeded to the said property

"So it is now most gracious lorde that one William Ingram hath wrongfullie entered into possesscon of the said p^rmsses and hath conveyed an estate in the said p^rmsses to divers p^rsons unknown to yo^r orator and hath retained the muniments, evidences, charters and writings of and concerning the same" Having no remedy at the common law he prays for a writ of subpoena &c commanding W^m Ingram to "appeare before the Kynge in his chancerye."

W^m Ingram in his reply says that Peter Horder and Thomas Ingram, were seised of the lands in question. Peter Harder died s. p. On the death of Thomas Ingram the premises descended to W^m Ingram as son and heir of the latter and that such being the case he kept the charters, muniments, writings and documents as lawful was for him to do. He prays to be dismissed out of the bill &c.

BISHOPS TRANSCRIPTS.

These records are the result of an enactment passed in 1603, "that the churchwardens shall within one month after the 25th of March in each year transmit to the Bishop of the Diocese, or his Chancellor, a true copy from the Register Book for the year then ended; and that failing to do so the Bishop or his Chancellor may proceed against them at law." If this had been rigidly enforced and the transcript preserved from damp and neglect, we should possess a most valuable series of records which would supply details where the original register is lost or mutilated by fire, damp &c. Unfortunately however this rule was very loosely observed, and those sent in did not receive the care their value demanded, but were skewered together in bundles and left to rot with damp dust and neglect. The subjoined is the result of a careful examination of those sent in from parishes in the Archdeaconry of Exeter which has suffered more than the other archdeaconries in the way of mildewed decay and many years are altogether absent.

This completes the result of our search from the earliest date down to the commencement of the present century. The later years ought to have been more productive of names, but the date is no index to their condition, and bundles are missing some of which may possibly be found among those of the other archdeaconries when they are set in order. In the absence of an exhaustive genealogy of the Uphams of Devon, these items are of value and utility in indicating parishes which have been inhabited by Uphams and whose records probably contain further details of the family.

"Richard Marmyon of Stoke Marmyon com Oxon. Confirmed to Edmund Rede, son and heir of Edmund Rede and Agnes his wife, a moiety of the manors of Stoke-Marmyon, com Oxon, with all other his lands and tenements in Chakyndon, Stoke-Marmyon, and Stoke-Abbat. Hiistestibus; — Reginaldo Parentyn, Petro Fetiplace, Ricardo Englysh, Johanne Upham, Thoma Atte Hyde et aliis. Dat apud Chakynden prædictam in festo S. Mathæi apostoli, anno regni regis Henrici sexti post conquestum Angliæ decimo nono. (Ex. Chartul de Borstall, M.S. f. 23).

In the Consistorial Court Records preserved in Exeter Cathedral in the case of Peankette v. Kennicke the testimony taken 8 Dec. 1676, is entered of Roger Upham of Cadbury Co. Devon Yeoman aged 43 who stated that he was sent for by one Richard Marshall, to bring writing materials and take down his will. Roger Upham went as desired and found Marshall in declining health, the latter requesting him to come again as his wife was about, and the occasion was unfavourable. Upham called some days after, and finding Marshall in his garden, the latter informed him that "he was afraid he should scarce have an opportunity to make a will in writing, his wife was so averse to it and therefore he would declare his will by word of mouth to this deponent and then forthwith declared to this deponent that he did give to the poor of Cadbury tenne pounds to remaine to them forever, the interest to be distributed to them in bread, £10 for his funeral and all y^e rest of his goods and chattels he gave and bequeathed among his wife and children, appoyntinge Lawrence Marshall of Rockley, Pomeroy, and Thomas Marshall of Tiverton, his executors in trust, and he declared to this deponent very seriously beinge of p^{er}fect mind and memory, and with an intent as this deponent believes, that y^e same should stand for his last will and testament nuncupative and the testator desired the deponent to take notice of it and to use his best endeavours that the same might be performed. This witness Roger Upham being worth about £100 came to give his evidence in this cause being first summoned to this effect by a decree issued out of this court.

In another case that of Major v. Bradford, William Dilling of Otterton, Devon, yeoman aged 69, giving evidence 26 Sept 1676 deposed that he knew James Bradford deceased sometime Vicar of Cadbury for about 39 years before his decease and was parish clerk of Bicton where M^r W^m Bradford was and still is rector for almost twenty years next before the death of the said James Bradford with whom the deponent affirms he was intimate and well acquainted with his handwriting and he saith that all or the greater part of the "little booke" in this cause exhibited upon which he is now examined was written by the said James Bradford and that the letters R. U. herein mentioned at y^e place alleged doe signify and stand for the name of Roger, Robert or Richard Upham alleged and this dep^t believes that by what is sett down and expressed in the said booke next after the said letters viz: a mortuary ph., amongst other things is signified and meant that the sum of xviid. was demanded and received by him the said M^r James Bradford from y^e said Upham a parishioner of Cadbury for a mortuary on the decease of his mother or other relation dying in the said parish." Other witnesses followed with evidence to show that the said letters did not have the meaning attributed to them and that "mortuary" the olden custom of paying a fee to the clergyman on the death of a parishioner had not existed.

In the parish of St Ive (pronounced S^tEve) 4¼ miles ENE from Liskeard Co Cornwall are two farms named Upham, a farm called Bicton and another called Slade and a Slade Park. The rector informs us that East and West Upham are two small farms containing respectively 24 and 51 acres belonging to a family named Mallack of Tavistock, according to the tithe rental the ownership being in "the trustees of the late Richard Mallack. Bicton a farm of 355 acres with 160 acres of wood belongs to Lord Compton in right of his wife only child of Lord Ashburton. Upham is called Tiphham by the common people.

MEMORANDA:

Upham, Co. Wilts, has been spelt Uppenham (See Berkshire Visitation 1566, re-marriage of John Goddarde of Uppenham, Co. Wilts, Gentleman, etc.) It seems that Uffenham—several times mentioned—is an easy transition from Uppenham.

The name Peter Jarmond Upham is found in a list of masters and mates having certificates of competency in the British Mercantile Navy List, 1858.

The Uppan glass window in the foreground. To the left of the B. m. Uppan, about the year 1815, but it is now in ruins. A new church has been built in its place, by Lady Roper, but it is now in ruins. UPHAM, OF BICTON, CO. DEVON.

The Upham family held a copyhold estate at *Yettington, in the parish of Bicton, Devon, and were associated with the parish for upwards of three hundred years. The first of the name at Bicton that we have found mentioned, Richard Uphome (sic) of Bykton, died there in 1546; but although in 1791 their copyhold fell into the hands of the then lord of the manor—John, afterwards Baron Rolle—and most of the family had by that time left Bicton, one branch yet remained, the last survivor of which, Frances, daughter of Richard and Martha Upham, died there in 1842.

Bicton is a parish four miles south west of Sidmouth station, on the South Western Railway, and 11 miles south east of Exeter, in the eastern division of the county of Devon, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas', Exeter County Court District, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. It is beautifully situated on the banks of the river Otter, and near the sea coast. It includes the hamlet of Yettington. Population 181 in 1871, 165 in 1881, living in 32 houses, on 1294 acres of land. The soil is sand, subsoil sand and gravel. The crops are wheat, barley and roots.

At the time of the Norman Survey the manor of Bicton was held by the singular tenure of providing a county jail, which tenure was abolished by act of Parliament in 1787. "The possessor of the manor at Domesday survey was William Portiter. King Henry I gave it to John Janitor. It continued in his family for three generations. The manor was afterwards the property of Ralph Balistarius, or Le Balister (the crossbow-bearer), who lived here in 1229. His posterity, by name Alabaster, possessed Bicton for five generations, after which it passed by successive female heirs to Sachville and Copleston. It was purchased of the Coplestons by Sir Robert Dennis, who rebuilt the old mansion, inclosed a deer-park and made Bicton his chief residence. Sir Thomas Dennis, his son, gave it to his eldest daughter Ann, who became the wife of Sir Henry Rolle, ancestor of the Right Hon.

*Spelt Eatenton in Will of John Uppom 1585.

Henry Lord Rolle, who is the present (1822) proprietor." (Lysons Magn. Brit. vol. VI.) The present (1892) owner is the Hon. Mark Geo. Kerr Rolle, D. L., I. P. Bicton House stands in a fine park of 74 acres, well timbered and containing a small lake. The gardens are celebrated for the completeness and rarity of the trees, shrubs and flowers here collected. The park contains a fine avenue of oak, beech and the Chili pine.

The old church, interesting to all Uphams of Bicton as the centre of ancestral associations, the scene of numerous Upham baptisms, marriages and burials, generation after generation (and among others of the baptisms and marriage of the emigrant John), is now in ruins. It withstood the march of time, but fell at length before the relentless hand of the destroyer. In 1851 the owner of the soil had a difference with the rector, and stopping supplies, built a new church beside the old one, which was then dismantled.

Concerning the old church, Polwhele our Devon historian, quaintly remarks: "The church of Bicton, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, is a small but neat building. Its situation is most romantic. Placed in silence and solitude, it stands embowered amidst the fine deep foliage of forest trees that surround it at a little distance and interweave their branches as if to guard it from every prying eye. Whilst we approach the church we feel sensations of awe from its holy seclusion, but they are mixed with ideas of faery scenery. The spot is in itself most delicious. Thus encircled by such a beautiful skreen of woods, thus insulated and far withdrawn from the world, we fancy ourselves amidst the groves of Rousseau's Ermenonville, and recalling his fine painting to memory, can recognise, almost, its prototype in the objects around us." (Collect. Hist. Devon. 1797. Richard Polwhele II. 223.)

The learned antiquary Oliver does not seem to have had his feelings so deeply stirred as did the author of the foregoing. His comment is brief but pointed: "The present church (1839), dedicated I believe to the B. V. M., is 47 feet and a half in length by 41 feet in its greatest breadth, and is kept in excellent repair, but with the exception of the E. window in the chancel, has little to recommend it to the eye of the antiquary. The W. aisle could not have been part of the original fabrick." (Oliver's Eccles. Antiq. Devon. 1839.)

The view of Bicton church is from a rough sketch by Mr. J. W. Upham, artist, and represents it as it appeared in March, 1815. Though the old church was given over to destruction on the completion of the new edifice in 1851, it is but just to say that the latter, built at the sole expense of the Dowager Lady Rolle, is very tasteful and effective in design. It is a building of limestone, in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave transepts, south porch and a tower on the south side with a low spire, containing one bell. There are thirteen stained windows, and the dripstones of the windows generally are ornamented with terminal heads representing the English monarchs from Edward I to Queen Victoria. The corbels supporting the springers of the roof have carved heads of eighteen distinguished Anglican theologians, beginning with John Wyclif. There are 224 sittings. A portion of the ancient church is used as a mortuary chapel, and a cloister connects it with the tower, which is also standing.

Yettington is about a mile and a half from Bickton church. We noticed remains of a village green but no houses that betokened any great age. A fir plantation at the foot of a hill was pointed out to as going by the name of "Upham's plantation."

GENEALOGY.

1. Richard Uphome (or Uphom) of Bicton. He was living at Bicton in 1523 and died there in 1546. In Lay Subsidy Roll for Devon, 15th year Hen. VIII. we find:—

The records of the Archdeaconry Court, Exeter Probate Registry contain Letters of Admōn granted 26th Nov. 1546, to Agnes, the wife of Richard Uphom of Bykton deceased, to administer the estate of the said Richard &c. As he died without a will our information concerning his immediate family is not so complete as it might be, but from other sources we conclude that among the issue of this Richard were:—

2 I John (Uppom) of Eatenton, Bicton.

II Jone “ buried at Bicton 17th Jany 1569.

III Amye “ “ “ “ 28th Jany 1569.

2. John² Uppom(Richard¹), of Eatenton in the parish of Bicton. He paid a tax of 5/- in 1581, being a second collection, so he had paid 5/- before. (Lay, Pabs. 1581.) His wife Joan. “Johan Uppom, widowe buried April 29th 1608.” (Bicton Reg.) He died 1584. Our knowledge of him is chiefly derived from his will, dated 17 Eliz. and proved 10th of March 1585 in the Archdeaconry Court of Exeter:— “I John Uppom of Eatenton, Bickton, husbandman, being weak of body but goode and perfect memory, &c. I give and bequeathe unto my daughter Katherine an estate for the term of her life in myhouse and groundes at Knolle in Renircōn and after the decease of John Seawarde and Bridgett his wiefe payeing therefor yearely when it shall happen to remaine into her handes or possessione to my heires the some of tenne shillings. He seems to have been well in favour with those who had the dispensing of benefices, and had he not been cut off in the prime of his manhood he might have seen a further advancement in ecclesiastical preferment. According to the age given at his matriculation, he would be 43 at his death. "He was buried in the churchyard of St. Andrews at Plymouth, and is the first vicar known to have been buried there." (vide: The Parish & Vicars of St. Andrews, Plymouth, by J. Brooking Rowe, (1874) 33.) His will proved on the 14th Oct. 1603, in the Principal Registry of the Bishop of Exeter: "Dated this xxth daye Auguste Anno Dom 1603. In the name of God Amen. For as muche as all men are borne to dye and doe dye to live with the Lorde I Thomas Uppam P-cher and Vicar of Plymouthe wthin the County of

* The Jopes were an old Cornish family now supposed to be extinct.

6. Thomas¹ Upham (Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Richard³, John², Richard¹), B. A. (Oxon), bapt. at E. Budleigh 6th Sept. 1658. Matriculated at New Inn Hall, Oxon, 9th July, 1678, aged 18. B. A. 2nd May 1682. Curate of Withycombe, or Withycombe Raleigh, Devon, (then united with the parish of Budleigh 1683-1689. Curate of Axmouth 1690-1. The Bishops Transcript supposed to be annually sent to the B. by the Vicar is in the handwriting of T. U. and bears his signature dated April 1691.) Curate of Offwell, Devon 1692-1699. Succeeded to the Rectory of Combyne near Axminster, Devon, 5th Dec. 1699, on presentation of Thomas, Lord Petre, of Writtle, which living he held until his death. He again held the curacy of Offwell 1711 to 1713. He regularly sent in transcripts of his registers to his bishop, and his writing appears to have been admirably legible, neat and precise. While curate of Axmouth he was married there on 30th Sept. 1690, to Elizabeth, a daughter of the Vicar of Axmouth—the Rev^d Edward Rowe by Catherine his wife*.

The Rev Thomas Upham and Elizabeth his wife died very nearly together, and were both buried on the same day, the 24th April 1744, at Offwell. Although his children mention lands which their father "left" them, no will or admōn dealing with his estate can be found at Exeter or London. Rev. Thomas Upham by Elizabeth his wife had issue :

* Rowe Mems: The Rev. Edward Rowe (Vicar of Axmouth 1677-1706,) was buried in Axmouth church, June 7th 1706, aged 66. His wife Catherine, died Feb 2nd 1707, and was buried with her husband and son John (vide memorial in Axmouth ch). His will was proved in the Principal Court of the Bishop of Exeter, 9th Oct 1706. Gives to son Edward Rowe all his lands in Axmouth, bought of Arthur Southcott, Gent, the said E. R. to pay his two sisters Catherine and Martha £200. Other property to his wife Katherine and his daughters Martha Brown and Catherine Rowe. Land in Musbery to son Edward, also all books and writings in his study. £20 to grandson Edward Upham, and £5 apiece to his granddaughters Elizabeth, Sara and Susanna Upham to be paid out of the product of a bond between the testator and his son-in-law Thomas Upham, clerk. The next presentation of the vicarage of Axmouth endowed he has vested in trustees Walter Oke, gent, and another and he directs them to present his son Edward Rowe to the living immediately after his death. Executrixes: his two daughters Catherine and Martha. Dated 24th April 1706. Witnesses: Robert Bowditch, James Wills, Walte Mew. Signed, Ed. Rowe.  28th June 1695.
 III Elizabeth bapt. at Offwell 9th Feb. 1695, buried there 23rd Aug. 1776. In her Will, dated 2nd Dec 1775, and proved in the Archdeaconry Court Exeter 2nd Sept. 1776, she wishes "to be buried at Offwell near her friends and without much ado." Bequests: to cousin Edward Upham "son of my brother Edward Upham." To sister Catherine a life annuity out of land at Offwell, called Pulpitt. To Elizabeth daughter of John and Susannah Tozer, books and furniture. To cousin John son of brother Joseph Upham, lands called "Hill Close at Offwell and Blacklands at Widworthy. To brother Thomas
 Upham her father's ring, silver seal and silver buckles, also two fields called Three Acres and Pulpitt. To brothers Thomas Upham and Joseph Upham the lands called Scrubbards between them for life, after them to Elizabeth daughter of said Thomas Upham. Legacies to cousins Elizabeth and Mary

 Rowe Esq of Bearton the descendant of John Rowe, Serjeant-at-law temp Hen VIII took the name of Hussey on inheriting the estates of Hussey of Marnhull, Co Dorset. Arms:—Arg. a chev. az betw. three trefoils gu.
 Crest: a stags head issuant gu. attired or. It seems probable therefore that the wife of the Rev Thomas Upham came of the Kingston, Devon branch of the Rowes of Kent, as her father used the old Devon Rowe arms, with the crest of the Kentish family. In Pulman's "Book of the Axe," we find that Edward Rowe Jun^r was not presented to the Vicarage of Axmouth immediately after the death of his father according to the will of the latter but that on Nov 13th 1706, W^m England was presented. Probably Ed. Rowe Jun^r was not fully ordained, for England seems only to have been a stopgap, and Edward Rowe was appointed (on Englands resignation) Jan 31st 1709-10 He died 1730. His Will was proved in the Principal Court of the Bishop of Exeter June 2nd 1730. Gives his residuary estate to son Richard. Legacies to his wife Honor and sisters Elizabeth wife of Thomas wife of Walter Mew. Witnesses:—Geo. Bowditch, Nathaniel Pope. Seal; his father's. We have here an instance in a State record where an entirely different name, Upton, must be read as Upham. The error was probably made in drawing up the will and afterward escaped notice.

cousin Elizabeth wife of Richard Salter, and cousin Martha wife of Francis Dommett. Residue and remainder to cousin Elizabeth daughter of brother Thomas Upham. Appoints said Elizabeth sole executrix.

IV Richard of Bicton, bapt. at Offwell, 27th April 1698. Inherited the Eatenton property by Will of his uncle Richard who died without issue, 1728.

V Thomas of Offwell, Serge manufacturer, married at Cotleigh near Honiton, Devon, 29th April 1735, to Susanna Warram and was buried at Offwell 28th March 1777. He was frequently called upon to serve as churchwarden at Offwell. He was either overseer or churchwarden in 1721, 1722, 1723, 1724, 1732-34, and signed allowing the churchwardens accounts to pass. He was overseer for M^r J. Ford's estate 1738, and overseer for M^r J. Ford's estate, and M^r John Baileigh's estate 1745. Churchwarden again in 1746. We find him assessed for poor rate at different times for lands called Cherlands or Chorlands, Mayons and Raddons but a portion of the last two seems also to have belonged to his brother Joseph, as he paid part of the poor rate on them. In the churchwardens disbursements for 1740 we found:— "M^r Upom for his printis peter Dimond £4." M^r Thomas Upham is also mentioned in a "List of the estates (as it comes in turn) to do the office of overseer and churchwarden." We find him mentioned as churchwarden or overseer again at different times until 1759. (Extracted from Parish accounts, Offwell 1732-1768). His wife Susanna was buried at Offwell 14th April 1762. His Will dated 3rd Dec 1774 was proved in the Archdeaconry Court, Exeter 11th April 1777. He gives a life annuity to his sister Katherine wife of Edward Phip of Offwell making it a first charge on all his lands and estate, stock, goods, moneys &c. He bequeaths all his messuage tenements, lands estates and hereditaments, all his goods chattels, stock, ready money and securities and all his other property real or personal (subject to the payment of the aforesaid annuity and his funeral expenses) to his four daughters equally, and makes them joint executrixes. Witnesses:— Saml Warram, Mary Warram, James Channon. Codicil dated 26th Aug. 1776. gives his ring to his daughter Susanna. To his daughter Elizabeth the ring that was his father's. The silver spoon marked R. U. to his daughter Sara. To his daughter Martha the silver spoon marked S. W. and Plathead House and garden after the death of his sister Catherine over and above her part with her sisters.

By his wife Susanna (Warram) he had issue:—

- i Susanna, bapt. at Offwell 22nd Feb. 1735. married there 5th May 1767, to John Tozer, of Ottery, St. Mary, yeoman, and had: Elizabeth, Susannah, Ann, John and Thos Upham Tozer.

8. Richard¹ Upham (Thomas⁶, Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Richard³, John², Richard¹) of Bicton, bap. at Offwell, April 27th 1698. Married there May 24th 1724, Mary (bap Offell July 6th 1696, by Rev Thos Upham) daughter of John fford of Offwell, gentleman, by his wife Mary daughter of Nicholas Fry of Cotleigh gentleman. He was churchwarden of Combpyne 1724 of which parish his father the Rev Thomas Upham was Rector, and again in 1728, and 1736. In the lastmentioned year on the death of Susanna, widow of his uncle Richard Upham of Bicton, who died 1728, he moved to Yettington, in Bicton, and took possession of the Upham property there, according to the will of his uncle. He was churchwarden there in 1739, and probably several other years but as the parish records do not exist we are minus a valuable source of information. He died 1755, and was buried at Bicton. Mary Upham was buried at Offwell, April 13th 1770. Richard Upham's will dated 6th June 1741, was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Exeter 15th May 1755, by John Ford, the surviving executor in trust. Imprimis. To wife Mary Upham all that messuage and tenement in Yettington aforesaid with all lands, meadows, pastures &c. thereto belonging, and all rights members and hereditaments, and all appurtenances. To have and to hold the same for all my right and interest in the same. All my other goods chattels and effects whatsoever, and wheresoever I give and bequeath unto John Ford of Offwell, Gent and Edward Upham of the city of Exeter their heirs and assigns. In trust that they the said John Ford and Edward Upham their heirs &c. do order manage and dispose of all such my trust estate for the benefit of my three children, to and for the purchasing of his her or their lives on the said tenements or as may seem to them desirable or in default for the benefit of my three children. I desire that my wife maintain the children in meat, drink lodging &c., until such time as they may be otherwise provided for, in order to preserve the trust estate for their future maintenance in the world. Witnesses: Thomas Upham, John Elliott. Seal: a lion rampant.

John fford was the 2nd son of Andrew fforde of Feniton, afterwards of Honitor, gentleman by Grace his wife dau of Raddon of Offwell gentleman. They were of the ancient family of Ford at Fordmore in the parish of Plymtree who were seated there temp Ed. I. Polewhele says "They were possessed of great property formerly and seem to have been of the family of de Fortibus, the founders of Ford Abbey in this county." In Offwell church is a memorial to John fford, gent. and his wife Mary dau of Nicholas Fry, gent. It bears the arms of Ford of Fordmore (Gu. a castle arg. in the port a cross formée, over all a ducal crown or.) impaling Fry of Yarty (Gu. three horses courant arg [a crescent between the 1st & 2nd for cadence]).

"This work of M^r Upham's contains so much precious information regarding the philosophical and literary History of Budhism, that it is impossible for it to be too much appreciated" (Journal des Sçavans.) He was a contributor to the Asiatic Journal, Lond. Gentleman's Magazine and other periodicals. An article of his on the North Western District of China, with map in the Oct. issue of Gent. Mag. for 1832, was subsequently published in separate form. Between the publication of these productions he was engaged upon the very laborious task of completing the Index to the Rolls of Parliament which had been left unfinished by Rev. Jno. Pridden F. S. A., after he had been employed on it for 30 years. M^r Upham undertook the task on M^r Pridden's death in 1825 and completed it in 1832.

M^r Upham died at Bath, January 24th 1834, probably while staying with his brother John. In an obituary notice in the Gentlemen's Magazine it states that it was related of him that when officiating in his mayoralty on the bench with the learned judges of the circuit, the erudition he displayed excited their astonishment. After speaking of his literary labours it continues:— "It is a matter of deep regret to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance that his literary exertions should have been trammelled and weakened by severe mental and corporeal sufferings for many years. Calm and placid in his demeanour, cheerful in the company of those he esteemed, and possessed of high moral rectitude, a genuine philanthropy, and a truly Christian piety, he was respected while living, and now will be much regretted." His Will was proved March 1834 in the Principal Registry Som. Hse London. He bequeaths £150 to Janette Thompson Upham. Residue to brother John whom he makes executor. See Gent. Mag. (Obit.) 1834, Atheneum, Alibones Dict. of Authors &c.

10. John⁸ Upham (Richard⁷, Thomas⁶, Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Richard³, John², Richard¹) of Bicton, bapt at Combyne, 15th March 1724. The last Upham who held the lands at Yettington, Bicton. He died 1791, and was buried at Bicton. Letters of admōn of his estate were granted Dec 1791, in the Archdeaconry Court of Exeter. Upon his decease the Upham estate at Yettington fell into the hands of the lord of the manor, John, afterwards Baron Rolle. He seems to have lived at Offwell until the death of his mother in 1770. John Upham married at Offwell 7th Nov 1750 Elizabeth Lee, by whom he had:

Susanna, bap. January 15th 1752 at Offwell; buried January 16th 1752 at Offwell.

- 12 John Ford, bapt at Offwell May 6th 1753.
 Mary, bapt at Offwell March 9th 1757, died at Bickton
 May 10th 1807.

11. Charles⁹ Upham (Charles⁸, Edward⁷, Thomas⁶, Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Richard³, John², Richard¹), of St Martin's, Exeter, bapt. St. Kerrian's, Exon, 6th March 1771. Married at Exeter 30th Dec 1795, by licence Fanny daughter of M^r Peter Carthew, merchant of Tiverton. M^r Charles Upham died 1829. His will dated 19th April 1826, was proved in the Principal Registry, Somerset House, 20th June 1829. He mentions legacies which his children received from M^{rs} Wilcocks. He leaves certain property and the sum of £1000 to son John. £400 to son Charles, a house &c in parish of St. Martins, to be sold. Son John to have option of purchasing. Residue and remainder to be invested for benefit of his six younger children. The shares of any who die to be equally divided among the survivors. Trustees and Executors: John Sarver of St Sidwells, Esq., Robert Herbert of London, leather seller, and Elizabeth Paget, of Exeter, spinster. Witnesses: W^m Bowring, John Smale, James Prout. By Fanny his wife, he had issue:

13 I Charles of Exeter, and afterwards of London.

II John.

12. John Ford⁹ Upham (John⁸, Richard⁷, Thomas⁶, Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Rich.³, John², Richard¹), of Offwell, near Honiton and Greatwell in Ottery, St. Mary. Gentleman, bapt. at Offwell May 6th 1753. Married at Sidbury, by licence, dated Dec 2nd 1771, to Honor, only d. of John Guppy Esq of Roncombe and Court Hall, Sidbury, Devon, by Ann (Gore) his wife. By this marriage the Uphams became possessed of part of the manor of Sidbury. Honor Upham died May 16th 1797, aged 46, and was buried at Sidbury. In 1800 he married 2^d Elizabeth Welman, of Somerset, spinster, who survived him. Marriage settlement dated 22nd May 1800. In his youth John F. Upham inherited considerable property from a great uncle, John Ford of Offwell, gent., who d. Oct. 20th 1770, and upon this gentleman's stone in Offwell churchyard, the following lines were formerly to be seen, which J. F. U. had engraved thereon as a mark of affection and esteem:

“ Here lies an upright man,
 Whose honest fame was known:
 True friendship was his plan
 For envy he had none.
 From guilt and folly clear
 He passed his happy days,
 And now the thankful heir
 This humble tribute pays.”

In 1797, John Ford Upham was Lieutenant, Sidbury Volunteers. His name is mentioned on some presentation colours given by his relatives. The flag which is in good preservation is of yellow silk and on the one side beneath the Royal Arms, is the inscription:—Presented by J. P. Manley, Esq. & W^m Guppy, Esq. 1797, Lords of the manor of Sidbury, Devon.” On the reverse side the inscription runs: “John Pearse Manley, Capt. Commandant, Lieut^t Upham, Lieut Guppy, Artillery Capt Robert Manley. Sidbury Volunteers.” Of his second wife — Elizabeth (Welman) little is known except that his marital relations with her were not marked by the same comfort and felicity that he enjoyed with his first wife Honor. It was said, though it is hoped without foundation, that she used to grease the house steps on the chance of her husband falling and breaking his neck upon them. She was not popular in the neighborhood, and on J. F. Uphams death it is believed she returned to her own people. He was Captain of the Sidbury Volunteers in 1804, and the portrait given, executed in the October of that year, by his artist son, M^r John W. Upham, represents him in the quaint uniform of his regiment. He was fond of hunting and frequently out with the hounds, kept by his brother-in-law John Guppy of Roncombe. Old letters also show that it was his custom to make frequent journeys with one of his daughters upon the saddle with him — to call upon the old folks at Bickton.

His Will dated 8th March 1814 was proved in the Archdeaconry Court, Exeter, 18th May 1820, by John Pidgeon, gent., one of the executors. He left the house at Offwell with the orchards, fields and pasture belonging thereto, the lands in the occupation of Henry Hodge as his tenant, and all other his lands of inheritance wheresoever situated. In trust to John Pidgeon of Honiton, gent, and Henry Hodge of Offwell, Yeoman, to sell and dispose of the same, and after deducting expenses pay the residue in equal shares to his sons J. W. Upham, and Jonas Upham, and his daughter Mary Upham. Appoints John Pidgeon and Henry Hodge, executors. He disposed of the Greatwell estate in Ottery St. Mary during his life subject to a rentcharge which expired on his death. M^r J. W. Upham was the purchaser of the remains of the Offwell property which comprised the house, two orchards and the old Park with other lands in Offwell.

By Honor his 1st wife he had:—

1 John William Upham, landscape painter in water-colour, born at Offwell Jany 21st 1773. He early exhibited a talent for art, as in a somewhat less degree did most of his brothers and sisters, who survived infancy. While still young he became warmly attached to a Miss Anne Renell, the eldest daughter of an Exeter attorney, a member of one of the oldest and most famous Devonshire families; but owing partly to the defective postal facilities of the period, the affair came to an early termination. For on one occasion he sent his next brother, Jonas, who happened to have business in that direction, with a letter to Miss Renell who found the messenger more delightful than the message. It may be that like Pricilla the Puritan maiden, who when in a similar predicament said "Why don't you speak for yourself John" she gave the messenger some encouragement, at all events she placed her affections with Jonas, and ultimately married him instead of M^r J. W. Upham. The latter felt the disappointment keenly, and though he came in time to forgive his brother, he did not forget the injury and never married. Soon after this frustration of his hopes he left home and travelled on the continent, practising his art the while. Returning he settled at Weymouth, Dorset, as an artist, and identified himself with every undertaking for the benefit of the youth of the locality, notably the Weymouth and Malcombe Regis National and Church Sunday Schools, among the founders of which institution he was most prominent. His Majesty King George III with his consort and family having visited Weymouth for the first time in 1789 being greatly pleased with the place ultimately made it his marine residence, and M^r J. W. Upham was appointed Professor of Drawing and painting to H. R. H. the Princess Augusta. Some of M^r Upham's larger pictures published in 1801 were dedicated, by permission, to his Royal pupil. In 1804, M^r Upham was engaged in company with Prout, Varley and other artists in illustrating the "Beauties of England and "Wales" (an important work published in about 20 vols 8 vo by Vernor & Hood & others Lond. 1801-1818. In the Introduction to the same work by I. Norris Brewer, F. V. A., Lond. 1818. Preface p. xxxiv M^r J. W. Upham is acknowledged as a contributor of literary and local information for the county of Dorset. A water-colour portrait of H. R. H. the Princess Augusta, and another of H. R. H. with a brother at her side, both by M^r Upham are in the possession of the present representative of this line. Some subjects in sepia after Gainsborough, dedicated to all his pupils were published in 1811. He published many views of Weymouth, and he depicted the mountain scenery of North Wales and Switzerland, also choice parts of Devon and Cornwall, the Channel Islands, France, Belgium and Holland. He died after a lingering illness on Jan'y 5th 1828. For a just estimate of his character and life we cannot do better than give the remarks of the county paper on the event:—

“Died on the 5th inst., universally and deeply lamented, M^r J. W. Upham, many years resident professor of drawing and painting in this town (Weymouth) Endeared as he was to all classes by the urbanity and kindness of his manner, his death has caused a blank in society that will be long and sorrowfully felt. The excellency of his character is more fully shown than words can express by the intense interest and heartfelt sorrow his death has excited among almost every inhabitant of this place. But the loss of this worthy man will be also most severely felt by an Institution that we may almost say was founded by him—certainly to his talent constant and unwearied care and attention the Weymouth National School is most essentially indebted for that pre-eminent situation in which it stands, for moral and religious improvement. The whole tenor of his life appeared grounded on the principles of rectitude and truth, and the great resignation to the will of God during his protracted illness showed how firmly he trusted in the mercies and promises of his Redeemer—and the calmness and serenity with which he departed this life (for he died without a groan, a struggle or a sigh) lead us to hope “his trust is not in vain in the Lord.”—Dorset County Chronicle Jan'y 10th 1828.

His Will dated 3^d July 1824, was proved in the Principal Registry Som. Hse. London March 1828. He bequeaths all his effects whatsoever to Matthew Virtue, of Melcombe, Regis, musician, and Benjamin Barlow of the same, wine merchant. Upon trust that after payment of expenses his effects be divided into eleven equal parts. He gives four of such parts to his brother Jonas Upham, two to sister Anna Stone (this not because he has less regard for her but as his father made better provision for her in his lifetime than he did for Jonas) Residue to sister Mary wife of Major Saml Fox H. M. 30th Reg^t for her separate use for life, after to her son Charles Fox. If the latter die leaving no issue the said effects to go to any of other children of Mary Fox, who may be living, if none, then to Jonas Upham if living, if not to his son John William Upham and sisters. An annuity to sister Susan Tancock. Witnesses:— John Luckham, Thomas Coombs Hawkins, Henry Read Ryall Groves. He made a codicil 15th Dec 1827 in favour of Mary Louisa Fox and Amelia Rose, leaving £100 to the latter to be expended in giving her a fit education to fill the office of a governess.

There is a tablet in each room at the Weymouth National Schools to his memory.

13. Charles¹⁰ Upham (Charles⁹, Charles⁸, Edward⁷, Thomas⁶, Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Richard³, John², Richard¹), of Exeter, afterwards of 8 Ashley Place, London, S. W., a clerk in Tithe Commission office. He married Harriet Stewart widow of Lieut. Stewart, R. N., and daughter of John Hazlitt artist, (brother of the well known essayist W^m Hazlitt.) M^r Upham died 28th January 1873. Harriet Upham died Springtime, 1882. His Will dated at Red Hill, Surrey, was proved by John Hazlitt Upham, of 15 Belvidere Crescent, Lambeth, in the county of Surrey, Gentleman, the son, one of the executors 14th Feb. 1873. He had issue :

15. I Charles born June 24th 1829.
 II Harriett married Thos. Pierce.

 Nov. 6th 1882.

14. Jonas¹⁰ Upham (John F.⁹, John⁸, Richard⁷, Thomas⁶, Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Richard³, John², Richard¹), of Bristol, born at Offwell, Devon, March 2nd 1777. Named Jonas after a relative Jonas Guppy, Esq., of Sidbury Castle. Married by licence dated Nov. 7th, 1801, to Ann, eldest child of William Renell* of Exeter, attorney-at-law, by Mary (Nichols) his wife. M^{rs} Anne Upham born Oct. 19th, 1768, died Feb. 13th, 1847. Jonas Upham was to have entered the church but paternal losses prevented his going

* William Renell was one of thirteen sons of Richard Reynell or Renell a Levantine merchant of Exeter, by Ann (Poe) his wife. "The first of this family on record: Sir Richard Reynell of Pyttney Co. Somerset, flourished in the reigns of Henry II and Richard I, and during the absence of the latter in the Holy Land, had the custody of the castles of Exeter and Launceston delivered to him 1191. These castles he stoutly defended against John, Earl of Moreton, the King's brother, who in the monarch's absence endeavoured to usurp the sovereign power. On the death of Richard, and the accession of John, the latter remembering the part which this Sir Richard Reynell had taken against him, deprived him of his estates at Pyttney. This Sir Richd. Reynell was sheriff of Devon 1191-1194. His son Sir Richard Reynell had his father's lands restored to him by King John, on condition that he should serve him with one horse and armour for one year, as appears by his deed dated at Bined. 27th July 1214, a copy of which is in the Harleian M. S. S. No 1195. A great grandson of this gentleman Sir Hugh Reynell Kt., was Grand Master and Governor of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem in 1275. There is a small harbour in Malta still called by his name (Renelle). The inheritance of the Reynells says Prince "has decreased by their long following the French Wars and their liberality to their retinue and soldiers exhausted a great part viz: the lands which came by Alan de François." Several branches still exist though their numerous and vast possessions in the counties of Cambridge, York, Warwick, Somerset, Devon and Cornwall have passed with heiresses into other families or been otherwise alienated," (Burke's Hist. Com.) The last male in the elder line of this ancient family:—Lieut. Gen. Sir Thomas Reynell, Bart, K. C. B. was wounded at Waterloo, in command of the 71st Highland Light Infantry and immediately after the battle was decorated with the insignia of a Knight of the Austrian Order of Maria Theresa and of the order of St. George, on the recommendation of the Duke of Wellington. Sir Thomas married 12th Feb. 1831, Lady Elizabeth Pack, daughter of George, 1st Marquis of Waterford, and widow of Major Gen Sir Denis Pack, K. C. B. Sir Thomas Reynell died without issue at his seat Avisford near Arundel, on Feb. 10th, 1848, and the Baronetcy, one distinguished from its creation by lawyers, statesmen, and warriors, became extinct.

to Oxford, as was originally intended. Soon after going to Bristol he joined Mess^{rs} Lucas Bros., shipbuilders, Canons Marsh, and eventually took an active part in the management of the business until his decease. He enjoyed excellent health, and scarcely had a days illness in his life, so that it was a great shock to his family when one day he was conveyed home from the office unconscious from an apoplectic seizure, from which he only recovered consciousness at the last to wish his affectionate and sorrowing relatives farewell, passing peacefully away on the 5th Dec. 1838. He was a man of something over six feet in height, and proportionately well developed, with fair hair, noble forehead, blue grey eyes and aquiline nose. The portrait given is taken from an oil painting by James Curnock, a portrait painter of some note, and a friend of M^r Upham's. He had mental qualities of a high order, and had it not been for a love of quiet retirement (too characteristic of many of his family) he might have achieved greater success and would not have relied upon expectations of large inheritance destined never to be fulfilled. However he was widely respected and beloved, and departed with a cheerful hope of a future life. His deeply religious nature, almost Puritan in severity, with a firmly rooted hatred of all show and ostentation, was combined with great cheerfulness and love of fun, which made him a favorite with children, and in his youth gained him the nickname of "Mirth." He possessed great tact, and capability of calm and judicious judgment, and it is said the influence of his kindly nature was such that there was no possibility of quarreling in his presence. He was for about 30 years, deacon in the congregational church, and his wife deaconess, and the minister's right hand in all good works. They lie buried together with all their children in the family vault, Brunswick Square Cemetery, Bristol. Jonas Upham and Ann his wife had:

- 16 I John William of Carleton House, Bristol.
- II Mary Ann, born January 8th 1805, died June 5th 1866, unmd.
- III Elizabeth, born Aug 11th 1806, died April 27th 1807.
- IV Emily, born March 9th 1808, died Dec 5th 1870 unmd.
- V Julia, born March 19th 1810, died Dec 19th 1873, unmd.
- VI Ellen Renell, born May 2nd 1813, died unmd Aug 10th 1828, from bite of a favourite turkey.

All the above were christened by the Rev Samuel Lowell of Bridge Street Independent Meeting Bristol.

15. Charles¹¹ Upham (Charles¹⁰, Charles⁹, Charles⁸, Edward⁷, Thomas⁶, Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Richard³, John², Richard¹.) of Ashley Place, London, S. W., Clerk in Tithe Commission office St. James Sq. S. W., married, Oct. 1862, to Ellen Caroline, daughter of Professor W^m Maginn, L.L. D. (Dublin Univ.) who survives him. M^r Chas Upham died Oct 12th 1878, leaving issue:—

- I Charles Hazlitt, born July 20th, 1863 Surgeon R. N., L. R. C. P., (Lond. 1886.), M. R. C. S., (Eng. 1885). appointed to H. M. S. Phæton, 1886. Appointed from H. M. S. Cambridge to Naval Hospital Hong Kong, China, 1892.
- II Ethel Maud Mary, born Jan'y 28th 1865. Married Aug 25th 1892, to Rev Patrick Alison Kennedy Mackenzie, of Ardour, Co. Argyle, N. B., (M. A., Ph. D. Aberdeen).
- III John Hazlitt, born Sept 23rd 1867, of Habana, Mackay, North Queensland Australia.

16. John William¹¹ Upham (Jonas¹⁰, John F.⁹, John⁸, Richard⁷, Thomas⁶, Richard⁵, Thomas⁴, Richard³, John², Richard¹), of Carlton House, Bristol—born at Bristol, Dec 27th 1802, secretary and librarian of the Bristol Institution for the Advancement of Science Literature and the Arts. He was named John William after M^r J. W. Upham of Wyke Regis, Dorset, artist, his paternal uncle, and was educated with the expectation of entering the counting house of his maternal uncle M^r Robert Prudom Renell, head of the then well known firm of R. P. Renell & Co. English and foreign merchants, 12 Mark Lane London, and at Gibraltar, Barcelona, Lisbon and Baltimore, U. S. A. This did not meet the views of a younger brother M^r W. Trehawke Renell, (a polished linguist but lacking business aptitude) who, during the illness of his brother, had managed two of the foreign branches so that they had to be closed—one after the other—at a loss, causing his retirement from the firm. So he contrived to postpone indefinitely his nephew Upham's entry into the business. However, M^r R. P. Renell having amassed an ample fortune made his nephew J. W. Upham his heir, and by will provided also for his sisters. Meanwhile M^r Upham became secretary and librarian of the Bristol Literary Scientific and Philosophical Inst. intending it as a temporary occupation. Upon the death, in 1836, of M^r Robert P. Renell, it was found that the will had been obtained by bribery from the clerk at the office and suppressed. M^{rs} Jonas Upham arrived in London to find her brother's body unattended to, while the house was being ransacked of plate and all available valuables. It was represented that affairs were in confusion, and that there was little or nothing for anybody. The Uphams not caring to enter upon a costly lawsuit, took no action in the matter. The misguided individual who seized upon everything, did not live long to enjoy his ill gotten gains, for the clerk who gave up the will, mentioned the facts to a friend, and the latter used the information to extort money, under threat of exposure to the Uphams, demanding larger and larger sums, until one day the said individual, after paying a demand for £2000, distracted lest he should soon be unable to meet his business engagements, died by his own hand. M^r Upham's prospects of Renell property having thus dissolved, he settled down at the beforementioned Lit. Sci. & Philos. Instit. and continued secretary librarian and general manager there for upwards of forty years, a great part of the time doing the work of curator, for as the old shareholders and friends of the Institution dropped off there was no strife among the citizens to supply their places, consequently the Institution got poorer, and rigid economy had to be exercised all round. Thus the willing horse was worked to death.

He scarcely took a day's holiday all the years he was at the Institution, and had he yielded to the solicitations of friends (who perceived his health failing) and taken rest and change, his life might have been prolonged for many years. In 1862, the members of the Institution feeling compelled to recognize M^r Upham's long and devoted services in a becoming manner, presented him with a purse and a richly chased salver inscribed:

Presented with the sum of one hundred guineas by the members of the Bristol Institution for the Advancement of Science, Literature and the Arts to M^r J^{no} W^m Upham as a Testimonial of the respect and regard entertained by the Society for his faithful services to the Institution
during a period of thirty nine years
February 1862.

He remained at the head of the Institution until, early in 1866, failing health compelled him to resign. The loss of his eldest sister Mary, who died on the 5th June 1866, was a great shock to him, for he was devotedly fond of her. This hastened his death, which occurred on the 23rd of the same month. He was a man of medium height, with clear cut features and brown curly hair. In early youth he developed a taste for art and studied under the artist W^m Müller. He chiefly painted in oils, and sea pictures with shipping were his favorite subjects, though later in life he took up portraiture, and in this favoured the Dutch school. He possessed great mechanical talent, and spent many spare hours for some years repairing a fine model of a British war ship the "Melampus," which he had purchased in a delapidated condition. The model had originally been built by some French prisoners of war. It was built to scale in every detail and each man had his own special work on it. His varied talents and generous, kindly nature endeared him to a large circle of friends, and the frequency with which he was required to act as trustee bore evidence to the solidity and uprightness of his character. He married at St. Paul's Ch. Portland Square, Bristol April 15th 1841, Mercy, only child of James Pearce, or Pierce, by Mary his wife, only daughter of William Williams, Esq. of Velindre, Brecon N. Wales. (Mercy Upham b. March 12th 1812. d. July 7th 1842,) by whom he had issue:

Mary Anné Renell Upham, born January 22nd 1842, married at Victoria Wesleyan Church, Clifton, Sept 4th 1866, William Withers Jones, M. P. S. (Lond 1853). (b. Aug 19th 1830. d. May 5th 1892,) elder son of Richard Jones Esq of Rhyston, Co. Salop, by his wife Anne Withers, only daughter of Lieut. Richard Edwards, of H. M. 7th West India Regt., and niece of Lieut Col. John Edwards, of H. M. 80th Regt.

They had issue:

1. William Upham, b. Dec 30th 1867. He was until recently a medical student in Bristol, but is now in the United States, where he arrived, September 18th 1892. He is a student of architecture at the school of the Art Institute at Chicago, Ill. By legal process, he has taken the surname of Reynell-Upham in lieu of that of Jones for the reasons: First, that representing a branch of those families it seemed fit that his name should indicate the fact. Second, that "the honorable and honored name of Jones (as a barrister once said) is so undistinguishable by reason of its multitudinousness." He was the compiler of the English supplement to this genealogy.
2. Florence Ellen, b. June 13th 1869.
3. Gertrude Emily Clara, b. Oct 26th 1874.

NOTE.—The following mention of the Gutter family should have appeared with the will of John Uppom, 1585, and should be read as if appended thereto, viz.: Richard Gutter admtd. 29 April, 1592. Sir Richard Gutter, clerk buried 30, Oct. 1601. (Ec'cl, Antiq. Devon, Olivers Rectors of Bicton.)

Faithfully Yours
W. H. Regnell Upham.

INDEX I.

CHRISTIAN NAMES OF AMERICAN UPHAMS.

(For method of tracing ancestry see page 30.)

The figures denote the pages on which the name occurs.

(With the exception of a very few females, wives of Uphams — whose maiden names are not known — every name in this index is that of an Upham by birth.)
